MISCELLANEOUS.

A Singular Burial .- The Courier des Etats Unis from the "Avenir" of Point Peter, Guadaloupe, gives the following instance of superstition remaining among the blacks of that island. The occasion was the burial of a negro cook:

A few moments before taking up the coffin. all the cooks of Point Peter, a pretty imposing number, had arrived at the house of the dead. Each wore upon his mourning dress, the white apron, symbol of the profession, and carried in his hand—one a saucepan, one a frying pan-in a word, all the kitchen utensils accompanied all the cooks. The coffin was followed up by a complete meal-carefully prepared, and which would have been much better for a living, than a dead man. There were fine looking roast fowls-iced hams, plates of baked rice-and the usual compliments of these dishes, which, carried with becoming gravity-with their crape covering-recalled a distant idea of the caparisoned war horse following the last march of his master.

At intervals, in the funeral procession was heard loud, or smothered cries-not of heart stricken mourners, but of cocks and ducks, whose heads were cut off from time to time, with great solemnity, and their blood sprinkled along the road.

Arrived at the outskirts of the city, the procession halts, and then begins a most singular movement; some rub the kettles, some sharpen the knives, some blow violently the invisible bellows. One is apparently broiling a chop, another cutting up parsley, another turning the spit, and another tasting the sauce. It is a final representation of the bustling scenes of a kitchen on great occasions- a last discharge over the funeral of the cook. like the military discharge over the grave of a soldier. When the coffin was let down, the dishes they had brought were all placed in order upon it, and the well provisioned body covered with earth. The crowd returned, at their leisure, convinced, no doubt, that the dead would fare well in his tomb.

The Little Showman .- In New York, for the last past year or two, says the Picayune, a mild blue-eyed little Italian lad might almost daily be seen about the streets on the battery and in other public places, exhibiting in a small brown looking cage, but a trifle larger than a good sized rat-trap, a few pretty little mice, as white as the fresh and soft cotton that their little master daily placed in their dwelling. The child was a perfect picture of angelic meckness. His coarse blue trowsers, his well worn black velveteen jacker, and a full claimsy looking blue cloth cap, from which streamed his long silky flaxen hair. and his little box slung acres his shoulders by a leather strap, could not fail to interes: the attention of the passer by. As he doffed his cap and bowed with a natural and inimitable grace, and uttered his "You see at fite mice ?" his look was irresistibly touching, and when receiving an assent the joy that beamed in his smiling countenauce and lighted up his face as he eagerly took the little creatures from their cage, and let them clamber upon him, over his face and into his bosom, imparted a glow of pleasure to even the most stoical old gentleman that ever wore a speccer and carried a blue cotton umbrella. He was alone, a stranger in a foreign land, and the only beings that he could press to his bosom with the knowledge they at least were his little companions, the mice. This lad is recalled to our recollection by seeing announced in the Boston papers that a small, interesting little Italian lad named Angelo La Hwer, who exhibited a white mouse in that city, had died in the Massachusetts Hospital, after an illness of ten months. He enlisted the sympathy of all the officers of the institution, who extended circumstance—the appearance in the gar-den of the bospital of a white mouse. The Times thus concludes a notice of the death : The day before he died, a beautiful young white mouse was found in the garden of the hospital and brought to Augelo. He was delighted. The bitterness of death was for the moment forgotten. The night which followed was solemn and melancholy to all his fellow sufferers, as they listened to his touching ejaculations, 'I cannot die! I am afraid to die! I want my mother ! But the weary one was soon at rest : "For when the morn came dim and sad,

And child with early showers, His quiet eyelids closed-he had Another morn than ours."

. A Woman Killed by her Husdand at her own request .- The following extraordinary case occurred a short time since in Wurtemburgh ; we find it related in a late foreign journal :

Adam Gayring, a man sixty four years of age of honest and upright dealings, loved and respected by all who knew him, presented himself on the 8th ult. before the authorities at Heidenheim, and stated ca mly that he had just killed his wife .-His declaration was immediately taken as follows:- "My wife." he said, as every one knows, has been suffering for a long time from illness, and at times the pains she had to endure were such as to affect her reason; she latterly gave up all hopes of recovery, and continually repeated that not only was life a torment to her, but that she feared that if I died before her, she would be reduced to misery. This morning, after we had read together the 4th chapter of the Book of Judges, (they were devout people and read the Bible every day,) she requested me to drive a nail into ber temple, as Jael did to Sisera, as such a death seemed to ner short and easy, and would put an end to her sufferings; she said she forgave me beforehand for the act, of which she absolved me before God and man. A nail, she said, would not cause a great homorrhage, and would make but a alight wound. 'As soon as I am dead,' she added, 'you can close the wound, put on me a clean cap, and no one will know any thing at all about it. After long resistance (continued Gayring) I gave way to the wishes of my wife. I took a nail and began to drive it into her left temple with a hammer, but the nail was too weak, and the point, instead of entering flattened itself on the bone. I then took a small drill, but was equally unsuccessful. My kill her at once with the hammer, which | I accordingly did, by knocking in the skuli. The body of my wife is at my house, where you can examine it at your leisure."

The magistrate immediately proceeded to the house with a medical man, and Gayring under a strong guard. They found the body dressed upon the bed. On the left temple there were two wounds, and the right side of the skull was knocked in as low down as the temple. Beside the bed was a table on which was a Bible, the nail, drill, and hammer a luded to. the ground was a basin of water in which the murderer, according to his own de-claration, washed his bands before presenting himself to the authorities.

Gayring is now in prison; he is perfectly calm and convinced that he acted well in fulfilling the wishes of his wife by putting an end to her sufferings. Some Wurtemburg papers state that the inhabitants of the village of Gussehtadt, where the murder was committed, left their work as soon as they heard of the murder, and spent the day in the church, fasting and praying for the soul of the departed.

There are those to whom a sense of reigion has come in storm and tempest; here are those whom it has surrounded amid scenes of revelry and idle vanity; there are those, too, who heard its still small voice amid rural leisure and placid contentment. But perhaps the knowledge which causeth not to err, is most frequently impressed upon the mind during seasons of affliction and tears are the softened showers which cause seeds of heaven to spring and take root in the human heart.

Cancer. Scrofula and Goitre. Ample experience has proved that no combi-nation of medicine has ever been so effectual in removing the above diseases, as JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE. It has effected cures that have been truly astonishing, not only of Cancer or other diseases of that class, but has re moved the most stubborn diseases of the Skin, swellings, Dyspepsia, &c. This medicine en ters into the circulation, and eradicates diseases wherever located. It purifies the blood and other fluids of the body, removes obstruction in the pores of the skin, and reduces enlargements of the glands or bones. It increases ses the appetite, removes headache and drow. siness, and invigorates the whole system, and imparts animation to the diseased and debilita. ted constitution. There is nothing superior to it in the whole materia medica. It is perfectly safe and extremely pleasant, and has nothing of the disgusting nausea accompanying the idea of swallowing medicine.

Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma .- No rem. edy has ever been found to remove the above diseases so promptly and effectually as Jayne's Expectorant. It cleanses the lungs from all irritating matters, while at the same time it heals and invigorates them. Prepared only at No. 8 South Third street, Philadelphia. R S. R. S ROBERTS, Sole Agent, at Edgefield C. H., South Carolina. Beware of Counterfeits!

August 19 3t EAD! READ!! READ!!!—Having used HEWES' NERVE and BONE LINI-MENT, prepared by JOSEPH T. RÖWLAND, I can certify to its good effects. A troublesome rheumatic affection in my right shoulder of three years standing, was by a few applica-tions thoroughly cared. Filten months have elapsed since its use, without a recurrence of the complaint. Several relatives or friends to whom I recommended it, have also received great benefits from its use. A general know-ledge of its virtues would be the source of the alleviation of much pain and inconvenience. With this object in view. I have WITHOUT so LICITATION authorized Mr. Rowland to make use of this testimonial as he may think proper.
