Besides these, many prisoners were allown the ravine, on one side of which was taken, and among them a number of oils cers. It was here, that Gen. Nicolas Mendoza was captured. It is matter of astonishment that so, few of the enemy's balls took effect-the dis trace being so inconsiderable. They flew hick as hall immediately over the heads of the soldiers; but none were directed suf ficiently low to strike the person. Bu two of the Regiment, were in the slighest degree wounded. It is difficult to account for this. It may have been owing somewhat to the position the enmey occupied. They were elevated by the bluff on which they stood, above the Palmetto Regiment, and were compelled to shoot slightly down wards. This may, have in a certain degree, hindered them in their aim .. But we suspect a better reason, may be assigned. It was rather closer than they had been accustomed to fight, or drilled to fire. They aimed as they had been used to aim when fighting against one another at the distance of four or five hundred yardselevating their pieces, so that the halls in their declination to the ground, might take effect :- or, perhaps, agitated and frightened by the close proximity of the enemy, they lost their presence of mind, and knew not hong to aim at all.

Having conducted the prisoners to the village and placed them under the charge of company E. and a company from the New York Regiment, the General ordered the Regiment to be put immediately on the march in pursuit of the enemy, who fled along the main road, that leads to the Alas ! how little did any one, at that line, dream of the grand event that was to happen in a few hours! And how unconscious of the lamentable disasters, the Regiment was soon to experience!
