

From the Southern Cultivator.
WHAT ARE OUR FRIENDS DOING?
 In the February number of the CULTIVATOR, we invoked the aid of the work, assuring them that "the patronage was inadequate to defray the expense of publication." This was to us a humiliating acknowledgment, but it was, nevertheless, true then; and it is still more humiliating that it is true now! What say the friends of the SOUTHERN CULTIVATOR to this? Are they willing to sit down and quietly fold their arms, while we are toiling to promote their interest, without a prospect of reward? If every man who reads this paragraph would obtain only ONE SUBSCRIBER, we should have that consolation which the hope of reward affords the laborer; but now, unless our friends bestir themselves, certain pecuniary loss awaits us. In view of this state of things, the publishers earnestly request every man who reads these remarks, and who desires to save them from positive loss, to constitute himself an agent, and procure as many subscribers as possible before the first day of May. Let every man resolve to obtain ONE SUBSCRIBER with as many more as he can, and let him never cease until he has secured his object.

From the Southern Cultivator.
CULTURE OF THE GROUND PEA.
Mr. Editor.—I have observed with pleasure that the culture of the Ground Pea seems to be exciting something more of interest among farmers of our State than heretofore it has done. Convinced, as I am, that a large amount of profit would result from its general adoption as one branch of every crop, I am induced to send you the results of one or two experiments which I have made, in the hope the others may be induced to make similar ones: for I feel well assured that the Ground Pea will not be readily abandoned, after the experiment of its cultivation shall have been once fairly made.

My first trial was made on about one-quarter of an acre of land, so poor and worn that it produced in corn, the year previous, (an ordinary crop year,) with good cultivation, not more than one barrel per acre. In the fall, I gathered ten bushels of peas, and have no doubt as much as two bushels were left in the ground and picked up by my hogs. This gives a production of 43 bushels per acre, on land, which, with the same amount of labor in cultivation, would have yielded one barrel of corn. It is true that the labor of gathering is very tedious. But this labor may be avoided by allowing hogs to gather them. The Peas may be suffered to lie in the ground, and the hogs to feed upon them, during the whole of the winter, and until April, without injury to the Peas. Or they may be plowed up with the vines, if done before the vines are killed in the fall. Peas gathered from the vines, of nights, and in bad weather during the winter, without loss of time from other business of the farm. In this case, the vines, if preserved would, make excellent food for cattle, and they are very fond of them. I am fully convinced that hogs fatten more kindly on the Ground Pea than on any other food I have ever tried; corn and potatoes not excepted.

In the experiment above, the land was bedded, as for planting cotton—2½ feet from the centre to centre of the beds. A furrow was opened with a coultter in the middle of each bed, and the peas dropped two or three in a place, 2 to 2½ feet apart in the furrow, and covered by running the coultter on each side. In land of better quality, the beds should be wider, say 3 to 3½ feet. Much of the cultivation may be done with the hoe, and no more work with the hoe being necessary, than just enough to keep out the grass, and to level the surface of the beds around the vines where the plow has failed to do its work well. The labor is about equal to that which is necessary in cultivating a crop of corn, and less if the grass is not abundant. I usually prepare the seed by breaking each pea in two between the kernels, instead of shelling them. And the germination will be hastened by soaking in tepid water a few hours before they are planted.

I planted again, about two acres, as nearly as I could guess, of a field the balance of which, being the same sort of land, produced, the same season, one barrel of corn per acre. The land was prepared breaking it up, without bedding. The planting and covering was done as before, with the coultter. I obtained two-thirds to three-fourths of a good stand, and did not replant. After the peas had been some time up, a white pointed coultter was run on each side of the pea row, as near the peas, and as deep as possible, followed by the hoes, and then thoroughly cleaned out. In this situation they remained until the grass began again to make its appearance. The peas having grown to some size, a long scooter was run as deep as possible, and as near the vines as it could be done without covering them, followed by the hoes to level the beds around the vines and take out the grass where the plow had failed to do its work well. Some weeks after this, working the middles were plowed out by running a scooter next to the peas, and wide shovel once in the middle of the rows. The hoes passed over once more, to take out the grass and weeds which have been left at the previous working. I never cover any part of the vines, as some do, by throwing earth on them with the hoes. This covers up the bloom whose only office is to fructify the vine by scattering over it the pollen which it produces, and of course obstructs or prevents this process and lessens the production. In gathering this crop, I left a large portion of peas in the ground for my hogs, I think not less than one-fifth of the crop. We gathered and dried one hundred and twelve bushels, (measured,) besides what my family, consisting of fifteen persons, without restraint, during six or eight weeks consumed. My opinion is, that this crop, including what was left for the hogs, and what was consumed by the family and others was not less than 75 to 80 bushels per acre.

I am convinced by these and other trials that if farmers would plant with ground peas, one acre out of every fifteen acres on which they plant corn, they might fatten all their pork, and feed all their stock of out hogs, so as to keep them in fine order, from the first of November to the first of April, without a grain of corn, and with less labor than if they fed on corn. I say with less labor, since the pea requires not more labor in its cultivation than corn does, and none in gathering when designed for feeding hogs. J. C. PAULETT.

Madison, Ga. March, 1848.
REMARK.—The above strikes us as worthy of extended trial. Swine are very useful to make manure, and if their meat and lard will pay for their keep, their fertilizing powers will be so much clear gain.

DR. JOEL BRANHAM'S LIVER & DYSPEPTIC MEDICINE.

IN offering this valuable Medicine to the people of S. Carolina for the relief and cure of many diseases incident to a Southern climate, I do not claim for it infallibility; neither do I say it will cure all diseases. But in CHRONIC LIVER AFFECTIONS AND DYSPEPSIA.

I can confidently advise and recommend its use, from my personal observation and use of the article in my own practice. This article is favorably received wherever it has been used. I am allowed to refer to Mr. George Heard of "Troup," Mr. John Warren of Columbus, Mr. McAfee of Cobb, Mr. Ashby Hall of Athens, Mr. William D. Terrell of Putnam, Rev. J. John E. Dawson of Lagrange; to which we bear their testimony to its value.

Habitual constiveness is found very frequently connected with feeble constitutions, and persons of sedentary habits, which often exert a very unfavorable influence upon the general health of the subject, and is particularly manifested by a restless and desponding state of the mind, irregular if not a loss of appetite. For this condition of the system, this article is confidently recommended with the positive assurance that if the dose is properly adjusted, so as not to move the bowels too actively, relief may be relied on, without any, even the least of the unpleasant consequences, resulting from the use of the common purging medicines usually resorted to. This article will be found to act as a pleasant, cordial and tonic, restoring the appetite, and at the same time fulfilling every indication that the common purging medicines are designed to effect.

There are some constitutions liable to regular attacks of Bilious fever almost every fall, to such, I recommend the use of this Medicine, beginning at least by the middle of May, or first of June.

Many persons whose Digestive organs are feeble, often experience a sense of fullness, weight, and oppression, about the stomach after eating—in such cases a dose of this medicine will often afford immediate relief.

Pregnant women often suffer from heart burn and constiveness, they may use the article without the least danger and with great benefit. In sick or nervous headache, it is a most valuable medicine.

I could append a long list of certificates, but forbear, preferring to rely on the virtues of the medicine to sustain itself. The medicine is a gentle and certain cathartic, tonic and sudorific.
 JOEL BRANHAM.

THE particular attention of Country Merchants is requested to the following advertisement.

HOGAN & THOMPSON,
WHOLESALE
Booksellers, Stationers,
AND PUBLISHERS.
No. 30 North Fourth Street, Philadelphia.

ANNOUNCE to their friends, and to merchants generally, that their stock of Books and Stationery for the coming business season of 1848 will be larger and better assorted than at any former period. It will embrace every article in the trade, which is required for the sales of the country merchants.

In consequence of the change in their terms of selling, they are enabled to offer SCHOOL BOOKS, MISCELLANEOUS BOOKS, BLENK BOOKS, PAPERS, &c. at prices so greatly reduced from former rates, as to make it to the interest of all who deal in these articles to purchase from their stock.

Hitherto the system of crediting small amounts has involved an expense in their collection, and as H. & T. now sell only for CASH, or such negotiable notes as are sure to be paid in bank at their maturity, the saving to those who choose to deal in this manner will be a very considerable per centage on their purchases.

Few dealers in the country buy more than $200 worth of stationery in a season, many not over one-half, and a large portion not more than one-fourth of that amount. There is not a dealer, therefore, who visits Philadelphia who would be inconvenienced by paying these small sums in Cash, and as each can save money by doing so, H. & T. believe they are offering an inducement which will gladly be embraced by those who make their purchases in Philadelphia. Those who enter into such an arrangement will be enabled to sell at prices much below their former rates at home, and will consequently reap a larger aggregate profit from the increased amount of their sales.

Having a PRINTING OFFICE for copypaper and type work, and an extensive BINDERY, H. & T. are prepared to fill orders from Banks and Public Offices, when forwarded through merchants, at extremely low prices.

Graefenberg Company's Office
 50 Broadway New York.—This is to certify that Mr. George Brainard of the State of Georgia, is duly appointed the General Agent of this Company in and for the State of South Carolina and Georgia, and is authorized to establish Local Depots therein and to grant the necessary licenses to the Company's Medicines. Every Agent who has a certificate with the seal of the Company thereon, signed by its Secretary and countersigned by the aforesaid General Agent, is one authorized to sell the Company's Medicines without such certificate.
 EDWARD BARTON, Secy.

Graefenberg Medicines.
 The undersigned is fully prepared to establish a GRAEFENBERG DEPOT in all places of proper size in S. Carolina and Georgia. Immediate application should be made, personally or by letter to George Brainard, agent, No. 10, Hayne street, Charleston. As there will probably be but one Depot in a town or village, the agency will be very valuable.

The celebrated Medicines of the GRAEFENBERG COMPANY are rapidly and completely superseding all others. Where once introduced, no one thinks of using any other. Their character is best explained by the fact that THIRTY THOUSAND BOXES OF THEIR PILLS ALONE ARE SOLD EACH AND EVERY WEEK.

Certificates upon certificates from all parts of the country are constantly received, testifying to their wonderful powers. Their efficacy is almost immediately felt, so that a single box will show the invalid, whether they are or are not doing him good. The sick should at once abandon all other medicines and give these Pills a fair trial.

The operations of the Company throughout the world are of unprecedented magnitude, the high and commanding character of which has received the unqualified approbation of distinguished Clergymen, Jurists, philanthropists, and the public generally. The Patent Medicine business is assuming an entirely new position through the Graefenberg Company. Almost every family in the land has occasion to use some kind of patent medicine, and an opportunity like that of this Company is of paramount public importance. By this means, reliable medicines may be had.

The leading article to which public attention is invited is
THE GRAEFENBERG VEGETABLE PILLS.

The following complaints yield with certainty to their power—
