

From the Charleston Mercury.
COTTON MANUFACTURES AT THE SOUTH.

The writer is fully aware of the inquiry, put by way of objection, how is the South to supply herself with manufacturing skill, and with operatives competent for the performance of the work, at a rate of expense, and with readiness that would enable the South to compete with the North? With vastly more propriety a similar objection might have been raised in New England half a century since. She imported skill, in the business, across the Atlantic, and has since, from those beginnings, created her own skill and made her own operatives. The South, in these respects, enjoys superior advantages. In the Northern and Eastern manufacturing districts may always be found a sufficient number of persons well skilled in the manufacture of Cotton, whose services might be commanded in any part of the Union for a trifling bonus over their customary earnings, to superintend factories, and give all necessary instructions to qualify others to carry forward the operations. From these the knowledge of the business would extend itself, and thus the South would soon possess the requisite skill in abundance. To doubt the truth of this proposition would be to call in question the capacity of the Southerner to learn, or his disposition to acquire valuable information to make himself useful to himself and the community.

As respects operatives, such as spinners, weavers, &c, these can certainly be no question that, in point of cost, the South has greatly the advantage over the North. At the North, a vast amount of ordinary household labor is performed by white females, which at the South is performed by blacks. Besides this there are a great many species of manufacturing operations, from those for cotton, unknown at the South, in which white females are employed. From such causes, the labor of females is in great demand, and the manufacturers find it difficult to keep up their supply of help. The labor is consequently dear. At the South, a different order of things exists. White females cannot, without comparative degradation and impropriety, become servants and thus earn a livelihood; and if they did, wages would be small. There is little or nothing for them to do in any line of manufacturing; and hence, they must, if poor, either labor in the field, beg, suffer, or do something else worse. It is by no means an exaggeration to say, that no higher act of charity or benevolence could be performed, than to give respectable employment to the thousands of such persons scattered over the South; and how gladly would multitudes of them accept such employment, at a very moderate compensation. Thus would a great deal of labor be appropriated, now worse than wasted, much wealth created by it for employers, and comfort and comparative happiness conferred on many persons, who, now destitute and miserable, must without some such means of employment, so remain. From such sources the South may command any quantity of labor required, at a cheaper rate than that at which it can be procured in New England, and therefore can run cotton-mills at a smaller expense.

But I shall be told that to all these persons the business will be new, and that that head there is a difficulty. It is presumed the business has been new to every body. There is not an operative in any mill in the world who has not had to learn. Well what then? In the present simplified state of cotton machinery, to learn its management is a very short and easy process. A few months success, under competent overseers, to accomplish the work. With some half a dozen well qualified persons, as heads of the various departments, a company of operatives, who never seen a cotton spindle, will learn to perform all the ordinary duties of the mill about as well in six or eight months as in as many years. Besides, when you take a company of persons entirely unacquainted with the business, you have the very desirable advantage of training them up properly to it, and without those habits of carelessness so common with many experienced hands.

While on this subject, permit me to say, there is a duty which devolves on every man in possession of wealth, to use it in such a manner as that, by so doing, he may benefit others, while he injures not himself. This is a duty which the man of philanthropy and public spirit will not hesitate to perform. Certain causes, either providential or otherwise, operate to make a portion of mankind the keepers of wealth, while another portion is left in poverty, with no honest means of support but the labor of their hands. To the wealthy it belongs, as a portion of the great brotherhood, to devise measures, if possible to give employment to the poor, to encourage and promote industry among them, to remunerate them with the means to make life comfortable, and thus to confer respectability on their laborers. By doing this, a vast amount of physical suffering and moral degradation may be prevented, the condition of society much ameliorated, and general intelligence diffused through the community. By such means are cities, towns, and villages built up. By such means is the great mass of wealth increased. By such means is the march of improvement accelerated. No community can become great and wealthy, done can become good and happy, without industry, and he who does most to encourage and promote it, confers the highest benefit on himself and others. B. T. J.

Obedient Orders.—A certain general of the United States army, supposing his favorite horse was dead, ordered an Irishman to go and skin him.
"What is Silver Tail dead?" asked Pat.
"What's that to you?" replied the officer. "Do as I bid you, and ask no questions."
Pat went about his business, and in an hour or two returned.
"Well, Pat, where have you been all this time?" asked the general.
"Skinning the horse, yer honor."
"Does it take nearly two hours to perform such an operation?"
"No yer honor; but then you see, it tuk 'bove half an hour to catch him."
"Catch him! Fire and furies! was he alive?"
"Yes, yer honor; and you know I couldn't skin him alive."
"Skin him alive!—did you kill him?"
"To be sure I did; you know I must obey orders without asking questions."

Young folks should be a little careful how they conduct themselves before children, if they don't want to be told on.
A young gentleman residing in the neighborhood of Richmond, had occasion, a short time since, to drive his pretty cousin Fanny, down to Windsor, in a gig. Little Charley, a brother of Fanny's, accompanied and sat between them in the gig; but, as he was only five or six years of age, he was considered nobody. Unfortunately, however the urchin had got a new hat that very day, at which he was exceedingly proud. Finding on his arrival at Windsor, that he had sustained some injury during the journey, he rushed to his mamma to complain.
"I declare, mamma," he cried, "I'll never ride in a gig between sister Fanny and cousin George again."
"Why so, my dear?" inquired the mamma.
"Because they've bruised my new hat all to pieces with leaning over me to kiss each other, all the way from Richmond."

Cheat and grow rich.
THIS has been the secret principle of too many of the Wholesale Dealers in Tea up to this time, and they have practiced the most shameful imposition on the country merchant, without any fear of detection. But a new era in the trade has come, and the Pekin Tea Company claims the honor of its introduction. They were the first to raise the Banner of Reform, on which it has inscribed the simple words,
"PURE TEAS AT HONEST PRICES."
A complete revolution has been the consequence. Let consumers of Tea everywhere look at what we have done.
1. We were the first to send them Teas that used to be called too good for them before.
2. We have driven out of the market a vast amount of trash, and introduced a better class of Teas than has yet ever been sold. Importers of Tea often come to us to get for their own use, and for their friends, the fine qualities they can find no where else.
3. We have reduced prices more than 25 per cent. both in Black and Green Teas. The whole sale grocers say we are ruining the trade, and call us humbugs. This we have done already, and now see what we have done to do.

1. We will sell Teas by the single chest, half chest, or 14 lbs. box, at the same price that wholesale grocers pay to the importers when they buy by the hundred packages.
2. The wholesale grocers always allows 13 or 14 lbs. tare to the half chest. This is a cheat we will allow, in most instances, 15 or 16 lbs. tare on the same.
3. We hereby undertake to sell every kind of Tea from six to twelve cents per pound cheaper than the wholesale grocers do.
"How can you do this?" asks the country merchant. This is our answer. We are content with 7 per cent. profit, instead of 25 and 50 per cent. a la wholesale grocers.
An English Importer lately boasted to us that he could make more money by sending bad Teas to the New York market than good Teas. We are resolved to overthrow this fraud, and now call upon agents in every town in the United States to come forward and buy the Teas imported by the Pekin Tea Company; and we pledge ourselves that if in six months they do not sell more Tea than the oldest and largest dealers in the town, we will give them our Tea without charge. This is plain English, and cannot be misunderstood. We appeal for testimony to the immense success of our Agents in every part of the United States. Agents wanted in every part of the United States, for the sale of those Teas by which they can make money, and confer a benefit on the public by supplying the pure article.
CATALOGUE OF TEAS.
On sale at the Ware Houses of the Pekin Comp. 75 & 76 FULTON STREET, N. Y.

Country dealers may select as small a quantity of each kind as they like, and have them packed in one chest. These teas also come in five pound packages, called "quotations," a very convenient, fanciful and portable shape.

DR. JOEL BRANHAM'S LIVER & BILIOUS MEDICINE

IN offering this valuable Medicine to the people of S. Carolina for the relief and cure of many diseases incident to a Southern climate, I do not claim for it infallibility; neither do I say it will cure all diseases. But in CHRONIC LIVER AFFECTIONS AND DYSPESIA.
I can confidently advise and recommend its use, from my personal observation and use of the article in my own practice. This article is favorably received wherever it has been used. I am allowed to refer to Mr. George Heard of Trump, Mr. John Warren of Columbus, Mr. McAlfee of Cobb, Mr. Asbury Hall of Athens, Mr. William D. Terrell of Putnam, Rev. John E. Dawson of Lagrange, to which a great number of names might be added, who bear their testimony to its value.
Habitual costiveness is found very frequently connected with feeble constitutions, and persons of sedentary habits, which often exert a very unfavorable influence upon the general health of the subject; and is particularly manifested by a restless and desponding state of the mind, irregular if not a loss of appetite. For this condition of the system, this article is confidently recommended with the positive assurance that if the dose is properly adjusted, so as not to move the bowels too actively, relief may be relied on, without any, even the least of the unpleasant consequences, resulting from the use of the common purging medicines usually resorted to. This article will be found to act as a pleasant and tonic, restoring the appetite, and at the same time fulfilling every indication that the common purging medicines are designed to effect.
There are some constitutions liable to regular attacks of Bilious fever almost every fall, to such, I recommend the use of this Medicine, beginning at least by the middle of May, or first of June.
Many persons whose Digestive organs are feeble, often experience a sense of fullness, weight, and oppression, about the stomach after eating—in such cases a dose of this medicine will often afford immediate relief.
Pregnant women often suffer from heart burn and costiveness, they may use this medicine without the least danger and with great benefit. In sick or nervous head-ache, it is a most valuable medicine.
I could append a long list of certificates, but for brevity, preferring to rely on the virtues of the medicine to sustain itself. The medicine is a gentle and certain cathartic, tonic and sudorific.

DR. JOEL BRANHAM'S LIVER & BILIOUS MEDICINE

IN offering this valuable Medicine to the people of S. Carolina for the relief and cure of many diseases incident to a Southern climate, I do not claim for it infallibility; neither do I say it will cure all diseases. But in CHRONIC LIVER AFFECTIONS AND DYSPESIA.
I can confidently advise and recommend its use, from my personal observation and use of the article in my own practice. This article is favorably received wherever it has been used. I am allowed to refer to Mr. George Heard of Trump, Mr. John Warren of Columbus, Mr. McAlfee of Cobb, Mr. Asbury Hall of Athens, Mr. William D. Terrell of Putnam, Rev. John E. Dawson of Lagrange, to which a great number of names might be added, who bear their testimony to its value.
Habitual costiveness is found very frequently connected with feeble constitutions, and persons of sedentary habits, which often exert a very unfavorable influence upon the general health of the subject; and is particularly manifested by a restless and desponding state of the mind, irregular if not a loss of appetite. For this condition of the system, this article is confidently recommended with the positive assurance that if the dose is properly adjusted, so as not to move the bowels too actively, relief may be relied on, without any, even the least of the unpleasant consequences, resulting from the use of the common purging medicines usually resorted to. This article will be found to act as a pleasant and tonic, restoring the appetite, and at the same time fulfilling every indication that the common purging medicines are designed to effect.
There are some constitutions liable to regular attacks of Bilious fever almost every fall, to such, I recommend the use of this Medicine, beginning at least by the middle of May, or first of June.
Many persons whose Digestive organs are feeble, often experience a sense of fullness, weight, and oppression, about the stomach after eating—in such cases a dose of this medicine will often afford immediate relief.
Pregnant women often suffer from heart burn and costiveness, they may use this medicine without the least danger and with great benefit. In sick or nervous head-ache, it is a most valuable medicine.
I could append a long list of certificates, but for brevity, preferring to rely on the virtues of the medicine to sustain itself. The medicine is a gentle and certain cathartic, tonic and sudorific.
