

From the N. O. Picayune.
THE MODEL LOUISIANA BACHELORS.

IBERVILLE, Sept. 15, 1848.

The model bachelors live on their plantations. They are waited upon by several old family servants. They are skilful in lighting lucifer matches, to apply to the end of their cigars. They are good superintendents of the kitchen, and can tell the cook how to have things done to a turn. They hear all misfortunes with equanimity, except the misfortune of meeting a bitter political opponent. They are not astonished if they find their loose silver gone from their pockets, if they were the day previous "at court." They have always lost the keys of their drawers. They cannot tell what becomes of the stores, and that "last old brandy." They are uncertain about the number of their shirts, and those that have buttons on they keep for visitors, as they originally belonged to somebody else. They cannot tell what becomes of the empty bottles and the last novels. They wear easy shoes and keep their fine boots rather for show than use. They play the prelude to a great number tunes on the flute and cant-a-piston, and conclude them viva voce. They are sought after by society, but are not great diners out. They cannot tie their cravats in a variety of knots, particularly the matrimonial tie. They mix a good salad, pride themselves on nutmeg soup, and are amateurs with green minis. They are exceedingly amiable to the fair sex, and the elderly ladies wonder why they don't get married. They are always ready to stand godfather, and shine with great dignity on such occasions. They enjoy the comforts of life, and dine at home to find them. They study their ease, and look with commiseration upon their married friends that visit them. They wonder if babies do not always cry, and if it is not a sore affliction for the young mother to stay home from a party to attend them. They buy all the swords that are presented to our gallant officers returned from Mexico; they never present them. They know the best places in the city to get the best dinners, the best game, the best fish, the best cigars, the very best hat. They are the scape-goats for all the delinquent husbands, and are spoken of accordingly, and yet they are hospitably received at the tables of the offended matrons, and pity that they should waste their time in single blessedness. If one of the model bachelors is sick, the other sits up with him, and abuses the nigger nurse for not taking better care of her master. If both are sick at the same time, they speak of the misery of being alone, and wonder if they won't be perfectly happy in a future state. They drive very fast horses, and have spring cushions to their buggy seats. The neighbors, when they go along the road, designate their appearance by saying "that's them." They are expected to take an active part in barbecues, and at fishing parties are in great requisition to bait hooks. They are never ready to go anywhere, and always leave their carpet bag at the last house. They talk a great deal about going to church, and probably will go some of these days. They are always expecting some friends from the city, and wonder what their Benedict companion wants to go home and see his wife for. They are always anxious about the next crop, as the yield and prices will have some effect upon their expenditures. They have an immense variety of morning gowns and double-barrel gun cases. They take shower baths, and are fond of Congress water. There has not been for years a pretty lady married in the neighborhood that they cannot remember some time when they intended to court her. Altogether, the past lives of the model Louisiana bachelors are worthy of the speculation and profound admiration of the philosopher; their history in time to come is enveloped in the most profound obscurity.

The Wealth of the Candidates.—The New York Day Book gives an estimate of the estates possessed by the several candidates for President and Vice President. It is as follows: Taylor, $60,000; or $80,000; Cass, $1,000,000; Van Buren, $200,000; Fillmore, $15,000; Butler, $20,000; and C. F. Adams, $500,000, besides a fortune of not less than $1,500,000, of which his wife will, in the ordinary course of nature, soon come in possession. Mr. Adams inherited all, or nearly all of his property, and Mr. Cass acquired his while in the service of the Government.

CHERAW, Sept. 26.

Condemned.—We learn that David Hildreth, one of the persons charged with the murder of W. Taylor, in Anson County, N. C., on the 5th inst. had his trial last week at Wadesborough, and was found guilty and sentenced to be hung on Friday the 3d Nov. next. Upon application, an appeal to the Supreme Court was granted. Robert Hildreth, the brother of David, also charged with the murder, upon affidavit, had his trial removed to Richmond county, where it will take place this week.—Gazette.

Venetian or Tanners Sunach.—The Venetian sunach (thus coriaria) so much used in tanneries, is imported in large quantities from Sicily, and from the south of France, and sells at $45 to $50 per ton. It is very distinct from all the American species in its growth and general appearance, with the exception of the Rhus copallinum, and it is superior to them for all manufacturing purposes.

The best mode of forming plantations would be from seeds, which may be imported from Naples, or the South of France. It is of easy culture, and propagates rather freely from suckers. It was fully tested by my father about twenty five years ago, who imported it from Sicily, and cultivated it successfully in his grounds.

The Rhus coriaria, being a native of the South of Europe, it will flourish to the Northward of New York. On the light soils of New Jersey, which are there so prevalent, it would, no doubt, do well; but it would probably produce a greater number of shoots in the lower sections of the Southern States, where the climate is more congenial and mild.

The Georgi Federal Union says:—"An intelligent and judicious friend in the country writes: 'I have travelled over 75 counties in Georgia since the nomination, and you may set down the State safe for Cass and Butler.'"

The Vicksburg Sentinel comes to us in mourning for the death of its late editor, John Jenkins who was killed in a street encounter on the 15th inst. The editor of the Sentinel who in the short period of about five years has martyr like, sent his devotion to his principles with his life.—South Carolinian.

We understand (says the Augusta Constitutional) from passengers arrived on Friday evening, that Judge Cooper had undergone his trial at Decatur. He pled guilty to the charges, and was sentenced to a fine of eight hundred dollars.

Land Warrants.—The Washington News of Saturday evening says:—"Land warrants regular worth $108 a $108 50. Those assigned under power of attorney, or upon a separate piece of paper, $105."

Mr. Fillmore has written a letter to the Native Americans of Boston, declining to enter into any pledges in consequence of his position as a candidate for the Vice Presidency of the Republic.

From St. Domingo Hayti.—The arrival at New York of brig Aldebaran, Leech, from the Clay of St. Domingo, whence she sailed on the 1st Sept., brings the news of the abdication of President Soulouque. Quietness had been restored, and business was reviving.

Printing Presses, Pulpits and Women.—These are the three great levers that govern the movements of the world. Without them, the bottom would fall out—society would become chaos again. The press makes people patriotic, the pulpit religious, but woman answereth all things. There would be no going to church if there were no girls there—neither would there be any going to war were the soldiers to meet with no applause except from the masculines. Without the sunshine shed by woman, the rose buds of affection would never blow, nor the flowers of eloquence germinate. In short, she is the steam engine of delight, and the great motive power of love, valor, and civilization.

The Expected Comet.—Public attention having been recently drawn to the anticipated return of the great comet of 1264 and 1556, after an absence from our system of 292 years. This great comet made its appearance on the Paper Making.—We were informed a few days since, by a large Paper dealer in this city, that it was not at all uncommon for him to have in his warehouses, and sell, at 9 o'clock in the morning, paper which was in rags a hundred and fifty miles from New York at 9 o'clock of the previous morning. A better illustration of the power of steam could not be given, or of the progress of the age. The rags are placed in the duster, thence conveyed to the troughs or vats, where (in some kinds of paper) the sizing is mixed with the pulp, and from these vats the paper passes over heated rollers, and finally between two immensely heavy iron rollers which give it the gloss and surface, and it is then cut, folded, packed, and sent to the Rail road; all in the course of a few hours. The telegraph enables New York merchants to order paper in Massachusetts at any moment, and receive the returns manufactured, and even ruled, by almost the next steamer.
