

From the Columbia Telegraph.
MR. LEGARE'S VIEWS ON PROGRESS.

We extract from the Charleston Mercury, the letter which follows. It bears the stamp of that masculine and cultivated genius, so early lost, and deeply regretted by the country, as well as by his native State. The unsuccessful petitioner for "Sum Pro" practice in Charleston, (in the commencement of his career,) lived long enough at least to shame his fellow citizens into the tardy recognition of his great talents and acquirements.

BREMSLES, Dec. 6. 1848.

After expressing his gratification at hearing of the favorable prospects of the South Carolina College, and how deplorable an event would have been its ruin, Mr. Legare says:

"These are no times for any people, or any part of a people, with marked social interests and institutions, to neglect with impunity its own intellectual development, or to give up any of the organs which may enable it to act, either directly or indirectly, on the opinions of mankind. The age is impatient of all that is—every thing is attacked, and every thing that is not vigorously defended seems likely to be swept away with the rubbish of the past. The least peculiarity in the Constitution of any people the very thing, it may be, to which it owes all that has made it remarkable, are regarded by the bold speculative philosophy now in vogue as so many badges of prejudice, and a slavish and bigoted attachment to what is obsolete. In short one hears of nothing but progress, (as all change is complacently assumed to be) in the midst, it must be owned of some rather melancholy specimens of it; and whatever posterity, after the experience of a century may have to pronounce upon the soundness of such notions, it will most certainly admire the unflinching confidence and the prodigious activity with which they are propagated.

"But if this is true of all institutions, (good and bad) of society, which fall within the range of this spirit, I need not remind you how peculiarly exposed to its attacks is the whole of that vast tract of country stretching from the Susquehanna and the Chesapeake to the Ohio, and far beyond the Mississippi. People who risk nothing by the changes they recommend, and care not a rush about the fate of the immense region that would be the theatre of them, argue as if nothing either in the history of the past or the chances of the future, were entitled to the least consideration; and as if to ask them even to temper their zeal-to do what they think good, by a fear of doing what they cannot deny to be immeasurable and almost inevitable evil, and what is certainly not their business, were a glaring violation of their undoubted rights! All Europe, (I will not stop here) was for two centuries, from the time the wars of religion ceased, with the treaty of Westphalia in 1648, until the beginning of this century—witness Utrecht and the Assiento—all Europe was busy, during this long period in covering our continent, without the least regard to the interest or opinions of its inhabitants, with a population, of which the future destinies considered as a mere matter of theory, present as perplexing a problem as was ever proposed to a philosophical mind; and in regard to which, only one thing seems at all certain, and that is, that there is no possibility of their inhabiting, in great numbers, the same region that with the Anglo Saxon race, in any other relation than one of complete subjection (call it what you please) without supposing that race to abandon entirely its present mode of existence, and all characteristics of its peculiar civilization, I say the question forced upon us by the present opinion of Europe, is a consequence of the population forced upon us by its past opinions and a matter at issue, and which we must at our peril be prepared to debate; when it shall please and how it shall please others, and not ourselves, is nothing less important than the destiny of civilized life, as it has always existed in our very advanced form of society, the English form, over an immense tract of the Earth's surface.

"I, of course, have no idea of troubling you in this letter with any remarks on a subject of such magnitude, but I cannot refrain from hazarding a single one that happens to have a bearing upon the topics touched on in the papers you sent me. Whatever may be the evil effects of domestic servitude upon society, they are not without their compensation, which it would be a suicidal folly in the Southern people to neglect to profit by. It secures to a larger portion of the community than elsewhere leisure and ought, one should think, to inspire the feelings and tastes for the pursuits described, in reference to precisely such a state of things as liberal. The very highest development, on the whole, of merely intellectual civilization in all its branches which the world has yet seen or seems likely to ever see—but of Republican Greece—was so far owing to this institution, that it unquestionably could not have existed without it. This is no assertion lightly hazarded for the purpose of maintaining a side in a controversy. It is not only a deliberate opinion, founded on whatever knowledge I have of the remains of that unrivalled literature, but that of men infinitely more competent in such matters than a mere amateur like myself can pretend to be. Hereon, for instance, after advancing the same proposition as one that admits of no doubt at all, proceeds to infer that, therefore, the existence of slavery in Greece—the necessary price of her most refined cultivation—was for the benefit of the whole human species. The opinion of the justly celebrated German is entirely disinterested, or at least as much so, as that of a scholar can be on such a subject. But to us the matter is one of the deepest practical concernment. If the little community, of which we are members, is to have hereafter, any weight in the affairs of a great nation, it must owe it exclusively to the use it shall make of the same advantage in maintaining the reputation for those liberal tastes and studies, which I am proud to think it has done something to acquire. And all generous aspirations out of the question, we must in the present state of public opinion, as I have said just now, be armed at all points for a conflict, which, adopt what policy we may short of the total subversion of society, we shall, I fear, scarcely be so fortunate as to escape."

POSTSCRIPT

BY LAST NIGHT'S MAIL.

From the Charleston Mercury
ARRIVAL OF THE NIAGARA.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 11.
The steamer Niagara arrived at Boston this morning, bringing one week's later advices from Liverpool.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 27.—The market freely supplied, Fair Upland quoted at 43 8; 4 3 S. Orleans 4 5 S. The sales of the week closing on the 27th, amount to 15,000 bales; 7,000 of which were taken on speculation.

The accounts from the Manufacturing Districts are encouraging. Much activity is manifested in Manchester and the surrounding districts. Great activity and generally improved tone in Commercial affairs and in public interests.

POLITICAL.—In France all things are quiet, and the Government is gradually settling down into Republicanism. Mr. Bouleau Lamouss has been elected Vice President. Naval preparations are of a very extensive character, in anticipation of a supposed armed intervention in favor of the Pope.

CHARLESTON, Feb. 12, 1849.

The advices per steamer Niagara caused a very active demand, and induced some speculative transactions, resulting in the sale of near 3,000 bales, at an advance of one-eighth cent, and an upward tendency of the market.

Death from a Slight Cold.

By neglecting those salutary precautions which common sense dictates, many, very many, fall victims to their imprudence. We have seen the young bride, blooming as it were, as the bird of paradise and the fair flower of hope, the pride of her father and the joy of her mother—her cheek flushed with anticipation, and her eye beaming with the soft expression of love—the gay dreams of life dancing on her fancy with the rich and variegated tints of the rainbow's promise. We have seen all this changed—aye, the wedding garment for a shroud and the bridal chamber of this sepulchral of the dead; and all this from neglecting a common COLD. Now, before it is too late, use DR. ROGERS' LIVERWORT AND TAR, which gives immediate relief as thousands of our most intelligent families now admit of its most extraordinary cures. The gay, the beautiful, and the young speak forth its praise, and cheer the despairing family bedside.

For Sale by J. D. CHASE.

JEW DAVIDS, OR HEBREW PLASTER.

The Great Remedy for Rheumatism, Gout, Pain in the Side, Hip, Back, Limbs and Joints, Scrupula, King's Evil, White Swellings, Hard Tumors, Stiff Joints, and all Fixed Pains whatever.

Where this Plaster is Applied, PAIN CANNOT EXIST.
A gentleman in the South of Europe and Palos in, in 1830, heard so much said in the later place in favor of JEW DAVIDS' PLASTER, and of the (as he considered) miraculous cures he had performed, that he was induced to try it on his own person, for a Long and Liver Affection; the removal of which had been the chief object of his journey, but which had resisted the gential and delicious climate.

He accordingly applied a plaster on the right of his chest where the pain was seated, another between the shoulders, and one over the region of the liver. In the mean time he drank freely of an herb tea of laxative qualities. He soon found his health improving, and in a few weeks his cough left him; the salowness of his skin disappeared, his pain was removed, and his health became permanently restored.

The following is from Mr. Worstell, editor of the Massillon Gazette, Ohio.
"Gentlemen—During last winter and spring, I was so troubled with a pain in breast as to render me unfit for the duties of my office; and hearing your JEW DAVIDS' or HEBREW PLASTER highly recommended for similar cases, I was induced to give it a trial. I had worn a plaster upon my breast but a short time, when all pain left me, and I was enabled again to engage in the labors of the office. I would also state, that my sister, residing in Steubenville in this State, has received much benefit from its use.

Yours truly, J. P. WORSTELL,
Massillon, Nov. 12, 1843.

It has been very beneficial in cases of Weakness, such as Pain and Weakness in the stomach, Weak Limbs, Lameness, Affection of the Spine, Female Weakness, &c. No female, subject to pain or weakness, around the back or sides, should be without it. Married ladies in delicate situations, find great relief from constantly wearing this plaster.

The application of the Plaster between the shoulders has been found a certain remedy for Colds, Goughs, Phthitic and Lung Affections, in their primary stages. It destroys inflammation by perspiration.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS!
Caution.—The Subscribers are the only General Agents in the Southern States for the sale of this truly valuable Plaster; and in order to prevent purchasers being imposed upon by a counterfeit article, sold in this city and elsewhere, for the genuine, they invite particular attention to the following marks of the Genuine:—

1st.—The genuine is put up in smooth, engraved turned button boxes, not soldered edges.—
2d.—The genuine has the engraved head of Jew David on the directions around the box with accompanying record of Court of E. Taylor, Rochester.

J. P. SCOVILL & MEAD, Charters Street, Wholesale General Agents for the Southern States, to whom all orders must be addressed.

Sold also Wholesale and Retail by JOHN D. CHASE, Apothecaries Hall, Edgefield Court House S. C., also by HAVILAND & RISLEY, and J. BARNETT & CO., Augusta, Georgia.
