Then came cold February, sitting In an old waggon, for he could not ride; Drawn of two fishes for the season fitting, Which through the flood before did softly slid And swim away......SPENSER.

The storm is sweeping through the sky, The clouds are rolling deeply by; Light upon the hill is pale, Darkness sits upon the vale; Now the landscape's mantle white Vanishes before the sight. From his icy chains unbound, Sweeps the stream with sullen sound, As a lion on his way ; But if rocks his course delay, Rises billowy, broad, and grand, As a lion, when the band Of the hunters around him pour. Winter, 'tis thy wildest hour ! All is deluged, earth and sky ! Shows no star its splendid eye, Shows the moon no rosy flush, Shows the eve no golden gush : In the east the shrinking sun Scarcely tells the day begun, And, ere half his course is o'er, Plunges to th' Atlantic shore!

Agricultural.

Importance of Agriculture.

Agriculture has been aptly styled 'the nursing mother of all the arts.' It is the basis, the soul of our national prosperity. Commerce and manufactures conduct, in a great measure to wealth; but the cultivation of the soil ever has been, and ever will continue to be, the fountain head of the streams of a country's resources.

There can be no strength in state, and no moral health among the people, when the tillage of the land is neglected. We can date the decay of power and virtue of many nations, from the decline of their agricultural industry. In Rome, for instance, when the wise policy of fostering agriculture was pursued, a healthful spirit pervaded the whole state. Then the laws were impartially administered, and justice done to all. Then labor was accounted honorable, and statesmen and generals, and philosophers cultivated their farms with their own hands. It was then that from among the tillers of the soil arose a Regulus, a Cincinnatus, and an invincible soldiery. It was then that the 'seven hilled city' breathed defiance to her enemies, and caused nation after nation to yield to the resistless power of her legions, until the Roman eagle waved over the known world. But when the largesses of corn were bestowed upon an idle populace when agriculture was neglected, and war laid waste the fertile fields of Italy, then Roman virtue and Roman vigor fled. Soon intrigue, vice and venality took firm hold in the state, until finally the 'pale mother of empires' was abandoned to her enemies, and the palaces of the Cæsars echoed the tread of the victorious barbarian. History abounds in examples illustrative of the important fact, that the enduring greatness of a nation is mainly founded upon its agriculture, and rulers will do well to increase the prosperity of those who swing the scythe and hold the

That country which does not possess within itself the means of affording subsistance to its own inhabitants, is, if we may trust the voice of experience, destined to sink to early ruin. National power, based upon commerce alone, unsupported by a flourishing industry, that ministers to human wants and gratifications, must fall to the ground. Merely commercial states, dependent upon contingencies for their very life-blood, and imbued with that spirit of speculation which tends to enervate the body and corrupt the mind, contain within their own bosoms the seeds of dissolution. Phœnicia, Carthage, Genoa, Venice and Holland, of the 16th and 17th centuries, all bear witness to this fact. There is much truth in these verses of Goldsmith:

"Trade's proud empire haste to swift decay, As ocean sweeps the labored mole away; While self-dependent power can time defy, As rocks resist the billows and the sky."

To her unsurpassed agriculture, England is most indebted for her support in which so often have threatened to crush to excel the world in every article of fabric; to maintain an unrivalled navy and plant their power in every quarter of the ations is made for a large portion of the globe. Firm are the foundations of the summer. strength of that nation, which in time of peace is nourished from the resources of its own industry, and in war can rely upon the strong arms and undaunted hearts month. of its yeomanry, to sustain its rights in the din of strife or in the roar of battle! Upon agriculture, in addition to the necessaries and common comforts of life. depends the success of every other employment. It is agriculture that builds up our crowded cities, covers our fields industry of any description, progressive, when agriculture has declined." Para. worthless. lyze it, and you weaken the pulse of enterprize, stiffen the fingers of machinery, and clip the wings of commerce. Destroy it and you bury in one common grave, national power and individual prosperity.-Martin's Address, Yale College.

Errors in Composing Farm Manures.

The farmer's manure heap is usually the receptacle for every substance that has served its original purpose; but it is a mistaken idea that everything thrown in there per of an old lady who had received will serve a useful purpose. We may, letter from her son, a sailor on board a however, just say here, that this error has merchantman, which ran thus: considerably influenced farm practice .chemistry of the farm-yard, has led some It blowed great guns, and we carried to the very field from which it was taken; the captain lost his quadrant, and couldn't of the manuring. The natural tendency of animal substances to enter into putrefactive fermentation is well known to be greater than that of vegetable substances. By placing them in the manure heap, we, in a further degree, facilitate the quality in which they naturally excel, and the tendency of which is to rob them of their most valuable element. nitrogen. Judicious practice should avoid this error, by adopting, if possible, a system having an opposite effect.

Lime is one of the substances which it s also an error to use with composts in which we have farm-yard manure. It is compound rich in ammonia. The tendency of lime, in all composts, is to promote decomposition and to waste nitrogen. which escapes, by union with hydrogen most other manuring substances .- Matron's Prac. Agriculture.

Employment in the Flower-Garden. WORK FOR FEBRUARY.

In this mouth the Flower-garden may be said to be created. Where the garden is of old standing, a new face of richness, beauty, and variety may be given to it, by taste in the selection of those flowers which can bear the season. But the improvements which have been made in Horticulture within these few years, and which are continually proceeding, would almost justify a total change in the system both of selecting the plants and of laying out the parterre.

Perhaps the true principle of laying out the garden is that of the picturesque. Nature, to be seen in its beauty, should be seen with a painter's eye. The phenomena of clouds, sunshine, and showerseven the bursts of morning light upon the sides and summits of mountains, and the splendours of the summer-evening skyare to the peasant as valueless as they are common. It would be idle to describe the new and deeper beauty in which they are clothed to the eye accustomed to study the lovely and the sublime of Nature: the delight to be felt in the innumerable changes of light and colors over the landscape; the sudden charm that may be ing mountain stream. A thousand features, in themselves indifferent or repulsive, are suddenly invested with beauty by the power of the picturesque; and even the Bangor Mercury, tell us of an instance the wildest and most fearful objects of of sharp shooting. He states that one of the nature—the cataract, the ocean in storm, "rank and file" under his command once disthe inundation, the thunder-cloud, and the volcano—become lovely, splendid, and teeming with glorious imaginations, before Unon the barrel reaching the bottom of the the painter's eye.

The application of this principle may be made through even the humbler efforts of man. The chief beauty of the flowergarden must be to the eye. The happy arrangement of tints, the position of the predominant plants in spots where they will reinforce the feebler hues, and relieve the monotony of the less peculiar forms. the advantage taken of a shade that keeps down the more glaring colors, or of an exposure that lights up the fainter into the midst of those tremendous pressures vividness and brilliancy by sunshine; the variety of effect to be found in the slopes her. A DROLL DEFINITION OF A YANKEE -As the Yankees are creating no little excitement in the commercial, political and military world, we hope our definition of a genuine male yankee may not be considered a miss.

A real genuine Yankee is full of animation, cheeked by moderation, guided by determination, and supported by education.

He has veneration corrected by toleration, with a love of self-approbation and emulation; and when reduced to a state of aggravation, can assume the most profound dissimulation for the purpose of retaliation, always combined, if possible, with speculation.

A real live Yankee, just caught, will be found not deficient in the following qualities:

He is a lover of piety, propriety, and the temperance society.

He is a dragging, gagging, striving, thriving, swopping, jostling, bustling, musical, quizzical, astronnomicol, poetical, philosophical, and comical sort of characfound even in the shape of a distant rock, ter, whose manifest destiny is to spread a solitary and withered tree, a fragment civilization to the remotest corner of the of a ruined place of strength, or a glanc- earth, with an eve always on the look out for the main chance.

SHARP SHOOTING .- Col. Peebles, says the charged six shots at a barrel rolling down a Upon the barrel reaching the bottom of the hill it was examined, and no mark of a bullet was discovered upon it; whereupon his comrades began to ridicule him. He, however, very coolly desired them to shake the barrel, by doing which they found that the bullets were inside-the whole having entered the bung hole, at which point he had aimed. This is the toughest shooting story we have seen.

A YANKEE EDITOR remarked in a polemical article, that though he would not call his opponent a liar, he must say, that if the gentleman had intended to state what was utterly false, he had been remarkably successful in his attempt.

WHEN a Kentucky judge, some years since, was asked by an attorney, upon some strange ruling, "Is that law, yer honor?" he replied, "if the court understand herself, and she think she do, it are!"

A MAN, who was rescued from drowning, a few nights since, in Boston, abused the man who rescued him because he did not save his hat!

"PA," said a little fellow the other day, "wasn't Job and an editor?" "Why Sammy? "Because the Bible says he had much trouble, and was a man of sorrow all the days of his life."

THERE is a dentist in Russia, who gets his patients to pronounce his name, which instantaneously draws out the tooth that afflicts them, carrying along with it two or others three.

"MA, somebody's going to die?" said knowing little fellow who was looking out of a window into the street.

"Why," asked the anxious mother. "Cause the doctor's just gone by," vas the reply.

A son of Erin, while hunting for rabbits, came across a jackass in the woods, and shot him. "By my sowl and St. Pathrick," he exclaimed, "I've kilt the father of all rabbits!"

Edgefield Female Institute. Edgefield C. H. S. C.

IIIS Institution closed for the Winter Vacation on Friday the 20th inst., and will e-open on Monday the 13th of January 1851. The Principal offers his very sincere thanks to his Patrons for their liberal support and kind en-couragement, which he hopes the result of his la-bors will justify, and that the ensuing year will prove their unabated confidence.

Having become Proprietor as well as Principul of the Institute, an additional guaranty is thus given to the public, that every exertion on his part will be made to deserve and ensure its success. and to make it what it professes to be, a superior School. Every means has been taken in the choice of Assistants and Text Books, to render it more than ever an essentially Edgefield Female Institute.

HE Trustees of this Institution have much pleasure in announcing to the public its perfeet success during the past year, and they feel more than ever justified in recommending it to public patronage.

Believing that private direction of Scholastic Institutions is more condusive to their success and utility than public governance, they have disposed of the property; under proper restrictions, to the present Principal—Professor R. H. Nicuolls, and feel confident, that, under his experienced guidance, the Institution must prosper. Every step has been taken to render it a truly SOUTHERN SCHOLL by divesting it, as far as possible, of Northern influence, either literary or personal, and they feel that they have now a School in their mids ,adapted to their utmost present and future need.

In relinquishing the proprietorship of the Institute, they by no means lose their solicitude for its success—on the contrary, they will always re-main watchful guardians of its vital interests, and existing still as a corporate body, they will ever be ready to protect and foster it.

The Faculties, for intellectual abilities, moral worth and professional acquirements, will compare favorably with the most distinguished in our country. The medical faculty constitutes an anomaly in this or any other country—all of them are able lecturers and the best of teachers.

Those who will contemplate our geographica, position, and the extent of our population, can have no doubt as to the eligibility of our situation for an enterprise of the kind. As to health, including all seasons of the year, we deny that any other city has more.

A common error exists in the minds of many students relative to the place of studying medicine; those who intend practicing among the diseases of the West and South should certainly educate themselves at a school whose Faculty are practically selves at a school whose Faculty are practically acquainted with those diseases.

That the public may be satisfied of the permanency of this school, we feel it our duty to state, that the Trustees and Faculty forms unit in action, which augurs well for its future success; and that the peculiar internal organization which connects them, cannot be interrupted.
