EDGEFIELD, S. C., MARCH 13, 1851.

VOL. XVI. -- NO. 8.

WRITTEN FOR THE ADVERTISER. MY PENT-UP MUSE. " There's no Poetry in Matrimony." And would you wish me wake again, My long neglected-slumbering muse? To cant in measured verse a strain That may not e'en a child amuse? My friend must cease, Nor dare intrude, Upon my peace-My selitude ; For love's domestic pleasures sweet,

With potent wand (I know not why) Have magnetized my muse complete, And tied her wings-she can not fly.

Her harp is "on the willows hung" No more she "strikes the enchanted shell," She sings no more as once she sung, No more her notes harmonious dwell, Upon the ear;

For lo! a change, (As changes here Are nothing strange) Has shaddow'd o'er her spirits dream, With clouds of life's reality-Has check'd wild fancy's bounding stream, The fountain-head of Poetry.

Then ask me not, nay ! let me rest Unheard, unread and seldom seen; No vain ambition fires my breast, My honest heart-my humble mien, Much better suit An humbler sphere; Where no dispute Or words severe. Can blast my name-my peace devour, Or rudely wound my "moral sense :" Where hatred's tongue can never pour, Its slanders vile, on innocence.

THE YOUNG DRAGOON. A STORY OF THE COWPENS. BY CHARLES J. PETERSON. CHAPTER I.

There is a thing-there is a thing, I fain would have from thee, I fain would have that gay, gold ring. THE SPECTRE LADY.

The period of our revolutionary history immediately succeeding the defeat at Camden, is still remembered in the Carolinas with horror. The British, elated me in anger." with their success, and regarding the South as now conquered, proceeded in the work of confiscation and massacre crisis many a family was deprived of its head, either by exile or by execution. Yet larger numbers were shorn of their property and reduced to comparative indigence. In a word, terror reigned para-

But the common events of life still went on. The transactions of business. the struggle for wealth, the toils of the husbandman, births, deaths, marriages, cares, hopes, fears-all followed each other down the deep current of existence. almost wholly unaffected by the stem of war which agitated the surface. It is an error to suppose that great onvulsions disturb the whole order of weiety. Men will still hate, though the entire nation be turned into a camp; will still strive for the dross of earth; ill still, if young and generous, risk their heart's happiness in

It was twards the close of a winter evening, and a youth of noble mein and Gates, Congress hastened to supercede hands are face stood at the foot of one of that general, and appointed Greene to the mansions of the wealthy proprietors. Commander-in-Chief had arrived in the For nearly half an hour he had been there as if awaiting the approach of some one from the house : now looking anxiously up the long avenue, now restlessly walking to tary affairs, was second only to that of and fro. During that interval but one the "father of his country." person had passed along the highway, and the notice of this one the youth had skilfully avoided by concealing himself confidence of its people, he determined to behind some dwarf trees within the plantation-fence. This act, as well as his whole demeanor, proved that he was he despatched Morgan, with the remainawaiting some secret interview.

deepen into night, the flutter of a white eighteen summers appeared on the scene. ous member.

Albert," said the new comer, as the vouth, seizing her hand, passionately kiss- of an active foe, would have been a capied it. "I have not a second to stay. It tal error, but for the political advantages was with difficulty I could leave the house it offered, and which overbalanced the unseen, and my absence has doubtless military ones. Cornwallis, then in combeen noticed before this; what we have mand of the royal army, determined to to say, therefore, must be said at once; frustrate the success of Greene's plan, by stant wheeled round the corner of the why have you sought this interview?"

unteered in Captain Washington's cavalry pursuit. corps, and to-morrow we set forth. Pering you once more, and bidding you an learned the danger in which he stood .there was no method of giving you my ed the Cowpens, and having drawn up in the dust.

you have been less kind, and I fear that I with the bayonet, when the route of the I fired." have lost your heart-that you, too, have infantry became complete. ceased to care for me, now that I am beg-cut short his words.

thinking you at all changed."

Another look, equally eloquent, answerwhat bliss it would be to know that you sometimes think of me; and that if I should fall you would shed a tear for me."

His listener, at these words wept freely, and when her agitation had somewhat passed, spoke.

" Albert," she said, you have conquered. Know then that I do love you." At these words the impetuous young man clasped sides, almost compelling them to break her in his arms, but she disengaged her- their ranks, or see the fugitives perish self, saying, "but while my father opposes under the hoofs of their horses. your suit, I can never be yours. The now Washington seemed to rouse from consciousness, of his disapproval has made his inaction. Ordering his men first to me affect a coldness to you which my allow the flying militia to gain their rear, heart belied, in the hope that you would he then directed them, his sharp, quick think of some one more worthy of youbut-but," she hesitated, then quickly tion had come, to close up and prepare to added, in a word, if it will comfort you, charge. when away, to know that I think of you, and pray for you, go forth happy-the misery is for us who stray behind, and who are hourly anxious for the fate of concluding, she suffered her head to be drawn to her lover's shoulder, while a tween them, and then said. deep and holy silence succeeded, as these two young and already unhappy beings held each other in a first embrace.

It was only for a moment, however, that Ellen yielded to weakness. Raising her head, and brushing the tears from her eyes, she said, while crimson blushes overspread her face.

"And now farewell-perhaps all this burst upon the ranks of is wrong-but I could not see you leave disordered by his pursuit

"God bless you for those kind words" a record the said Albert. "But Ellen, before you go, of the Americans, who one more request. That miniature that rode down their foes. tiless severity. In that terrible hangs around your neck—is it too much soon proved too weak

She hesitated; then, as steps were heard in the road, she suddenly gave it to him. He drew a heavy gold ring from his fin-"Take this, and let us be true to each other-so help us God! And with this parting adjuration, he sprang over the fence to conceal himself behind the bushwood, while Ellen hastened up the avenue, who was soon lost in the obscurity of the hour.

The wind sighed mournfully through the pine woods as this betrothal was consummated, and the dark, starless sky overhead looked down with his wearied and melancholy face.

> CHAPTER II. Heard ve the din of battle brav,

Gates, Congress hastened to supercede long avanues, of trees, which in succeed him. At the period of the incibuth Carolina, lead up from the road to dents narrated in the last chapter, the South, and was organizing his forces.

His very first proceedings showed the resources of an intellect, which, in mili-

Aware that the initiatory steps towards redeeming the South, was to arouse the divide his forces. While, therefore, he moved with one portion down the Pedee, der, west of the Catawba, in order to At last, just when the dusk began to encourage the inhabitants in that quarter. Morgan's corps was accompanied by Capt. dress was seen coming down the avenue. Washington's light dragoons, of which A minute more, and a beautiful girl of our hero had already become a conspicu-

This division of his army, in the face cutting off Morgan's detachment, and ac-"I have sought it, Ellen," he replied, cordingly ordered Colonel Tarleton, with still holding her hand, "because, despair- his renowned dragoons, accompanied by could come up Washington would be ing of gaining your consent, I have vol- a competent force of infantry, to give slain unless the fire arms were employed.

It was on the 14th of January, 1781, a haps you will never see me more. I could day ever to be remembered in the annals ing a pistol from his holster, he aimed full not leave the neighborhood without see- of our country, that the heroic Morgan eternal farewell; and as your father's He determined immediately to give battle ton's head. The man tumbled headlong orders had banished me from the house, For this purpose he halted at a place calladieu, except by soliciting an interview." his troops, awaited, though not without The tears had started to the eyes of his anxiety, the appearance of the foe.

listener, but she turned away her head to The attack of Tarleton, as usual, was conceal them; and for some time neither impetuous, and for a while the American malitia were driven helplessly before it; "Ellen, dear Ellen," said the young but soon they rallied, under cover of a few you!" soldier, earnestly, "will you not now, in continentals belonging to Morgan's comthis solemn moment, say you love me? | mand, and in turn forced the British to the young hero, and he pointed to the Washington, with his cavalry, had been waiting impatiently for a chance to parti-His hearer suddenly her face fell upon | cipate in the fight; but having been stahim, with a look of tearful reproach that | tioned as a partial reserve, the order for him to engage did not for some time ar-"Bless you, Ellen, for that look," he rive. His troops shared his enthusiasm. said. "Though my father's estate is con- Composed chiefly of young men of famifiscated, and he and I both indigent, it is | ly, and mounted on thorough-bred aninot on that account that you have seemed | mals, they presented a formidable appearso cold to me lately. Say then, dearest, ance, as they stood awaiting the order to only say that I have been mistaken in engage, the horses champing at the bit, and the riders nervously fingering their swords; they saw the onset of the British, ed him : but still his hearer did not speak. the flight of the first line, and the partial "Oh! Ellen," he continued, "when I panic that extended through the foot sol- the heart. am far away fighting my country's battles, diers with horror; but still their leader remained unmoved. Many had never been in battle before, and such believed the day lost; among these was Albert.

At last the confusion became so great around them, that troops so undisciplined, if less brave, would have taken to ignominious flight; for the defeated militia were pouring down upon them from all tones showing that the moment for ac-

As he spoke, he pointed with his sword ahead, and our hero beheld the renowned regiment of Tarleton coming down upon them at full gallop, and amid a cloud of the absent."

The tears fell fast as she spoke, and, fugitives. The keen eye of Washington measured, for an instant, the distance be-

"I want no fire-arms used to-day, my lads. Stick to the cold steel. And now for God and your-charge !"

Away went the troops; like a thunder bolt suddenly loosed from a cloud, with every scabbard jingling, ev ing with excitement, and shaking under them. Ir a feeble resistance. patriotism and courage cavalry; and the troops, turning their bridles, took to ignominious flight. "On, on," cried Washington, waving his sword for his men to follow, " remember the cruelties of these myrmidons -Revenge for your slaughtered countrymen!" At the word, his men, thus reminded of the butchery of the Waxhaws and of the other atrocities perpetrated under the eve of Tarleton, spured their horses afresh, and dashed on in pursuit. A complete panic had now taken possession of the royal cavalry, who hurried on at full gallop, each man thinking only of himself. Close on their heels followed the indignant Americans, cutting down mercilessly every red-coat they overtook, until the road was strewed with the dead. Foremost in this pursuit rode Washington, a precedence he owed not only to his su perior steed, but to his engerness to overtake an officer just ahead, whom he took to be Tarleton himself from his efforts to rally the fugitives. The tremendous pace at which Washington rode, at last carried him so far ahead of his men, that, at a bend in the highway he found himself totally alone. At this moment, the British, looking back perceived his situation, and immediately turned on him, his principal assailants being Tarleton and two powerful dragoons.

Knowing, however, that assistance must be close at hand, Washington resolutely advanced to meet the enemy, determined to seize Tarleton for his prison-But, before he could reach the Colonel, the two dragoons dashed at him, the one on the right, the other on the left. He saw only the first of them, however, and accordingly turned on him, clove him down with a single blow of his sabre, then rushed at Tarleton himself.

But, meantime, the other dragoon was advancing, totally disregarded, upon him, and with upraised blade would have cut him down, had not our hero, who had pressed close after his leader, at this inwood .- At a single glance he took in the whole scene. Albert saw that before he In this emergency he did not hesitate to disobey the orders of his leader. Jerkat the dragoon, just as the sabre of the latter was sweeping down on Washingfrom his saddle, his sword burying itself

"Ha! who is that?" said Washington, sternly, so astonished to find his orders disobeyed, that he turned; a movement which Tarleton took advantage of to neck, when I west into battle, but have less, apparently succumbed—all at least make good his escape. "You, Albert,- not seen it since."

"It could not be helped, then, I suppose," answered Washington, who now comprehended the event, and saw that he

As he spoke, he saw blood issuing from the sleeves of Albert, and immediately af- had done wrong, knowing that my par- not enforce this law. We see now this terward the young soldier reeled and fell ents would not approve of the act; but singular state of things: While the South senseless to the ground.

Two pistol shots had been discharged from the enemy, immediately after Albert found in the arm of Albert. The other had perforated the coat, immediately over

"He is dead," cried the leader, "that second shot has touched a vital part."

He tore away the garments as he spoke but uttered a cry of joy when he exposed the chest, for there, right over the heart, lay a miniature which had stopped the ball.

Washington looked at the picture, and muttered, "Ha! I have heard of thisand now I will see if I cannot serve my young friend a good turn."

CHAPTER III. Marry never for houses, nor marry for lands, Nor marry for nothing but only love.

When our hero, after a long interval of unconsciousness, opened his eyes, he found himself to his surprise, in a large and elegantly furnished apartment, entirely strange to him. He pulled aside the curtains of his bed with his uninjured arm, and looked out. An aged female servant sat watching him.

"What massa want?" she said. "How did I get here?" he asked. "Captain Washington left you here, massa, after de great battle. De surgeon staid to dress your arm, and den follow arter de troops, who had lick de red-coats, dey say, all to pieces." "Yes!-then the army has pursued its march to the Catawba.'

so like the mark of a ball?" Tears gushed to Ellen's eyes, as she

"Captain Washington, who gave it to owed his life to the quickness of thought me said that it lay your over heart, and that appropriation of California, and the subof his young friend; "but stay you are but for it, Tarleton's pistol shot would yourself hurt." but stay you are have killed you. Oh! Albert, I some-arrogance of predominating power, how-horse. Miss STREET AND three described times thought after I gave it to you that I ever, they have risen up and said, you shall when I heard that it had saved your life,

I saw in it the hand of Providence." had fired. On examination, one-half was from death, but was the means of interest- with its accustomed potency, you shall ing Washington in our favor, and thus not enforce this law, until at length we

Albert after a pause. We have no more to tell. On recovering from his wound, our hero, rejoined his corps, with which he continued until the expulsion of the British from the Caro-

After that happy event he was married to Ellen, and with her spent a long life

Their descendants still preserve the battered miniature as an heir-loom.

Extract from the Speech of Mr. Rhett,

DELIVERED IN THE SENATE, 24th Feb. and in others leave it unconsolidated.

ther has forbidden me to enter his house, line, led by their Colonel, now charged | satire was within six inches of you when | hand, he added, "what means this dent, | boon the South acquired for the recapture of fugitive slaves. If the Constitution was violated by this law, they should not have complained, for they had more than an equivalent in the unconstitutional

-the wronged, the insulted party-is sinking lower and lower, the spirit of the "Yes! for it not only preserved me North is rising every day, and saying, bringing about this happy reunion," said are now deliberately debating whether Albert after a pause. tension of its powers to put down that dissatisfaction and resistance.

There is not a mathematical problem in Euclid more clear than this: Just in proportion as you limit the sphere of the operations of the General Government according to the simple purport of the Constitution, in that proportion you will strengthen the Union; and just in proportion as you enlarge the sphere of the operations of the General Government by construction, in that proportion you endanger the stability of the Union .-"When you show the people of the Those who adopt the policy of enlarging ing stirrup, a gentleman-usher unshead North that this Constitution is nothing the powers of the General Government but what a majority of Congress thinks by construction have only to go on, and King in regal fashion. The proper to make it, what is the natural in- they will consummate that prediction sword was enclosed in a scabbar ference from such teachings? Why, that made by a distinguished statesman on whenever a majority of Congress think pro | this floor, that we would soon become, per to abolish slavery it ought to be abol- not one people, but a divided people, a ished, and that if they are responsible for people frowning at and hating each other. the institution they ought to abolish it. You have, by this course of consolidation, Consolidation is abolitionism; and those destroyed the bond of peace and brotherly that have given abolitionism its success in love that has so long united us together. this country, are the statesmen who have I do not know what other gentlemen may been driving the car of consolidation over say, but I, for one, can speak for my conthe limitations of the Constitution and stituency as to the effect of your legisla- as he rode by her side. the rights of the South. Sir, you cannot | tion upon them. They look upon this consolidate this Union in one particular, Union, in the manner in which the North of the King's gentlemen brough carry out its operations, as a curse, rather fair courser trapped in cloth of £ "If you break down the limitations of than a blessing. They deem the course the taxing power; if you declare that of policy which you have pursued, in your red: the King went to the horse, stay that power shall exist not merely as the measures of compromise and spoliation,

OF WHEN JAMES IV., (that captivating king of Scotland, whose portrait Sir WALTER SCOTT drew in such vivid colors,) entered Edinburgh with his affianced bride, MARGARET of Tudor, she rode bcthe royal progress and the grand onc horse entree.—(ED.) "Half way to Edinburgh, James IV.

was seen advancing with his company. He was this time attired in grand costume. 'His steed was trapped with gold, and round its neck was a deep gold fringe; the saddle and harness were of gold, but the bridle and hear-gear of barnished silver. The King wore a packet of cloth of gold, lined and bordered violet velvet and fine black bouge or b fur; his waistcoat was of violet set hoses of scarlet, his shirt confined bands of pearl and rich stones; his were long and gilt. He rode toward the Queen in full course, at the pace as which the hare is hunted. On seeing her. made very humble obeisance, and ing down from his horse, he came of kissed her in her litter. Then now in his usual gallant fashion, without soci the sword of state, and bore it before ple velvet, whereon was written. ters of pearl, God my defende. words are on the pommel, the care the chap also. The Earl of B bore this sword when the royal reached Edinburgh town."

"The King placed himself Queen's litter, and passed all conversing with her and enterta.

"Before they entered Edinbu crimson velvet, interlaced with v him without touching the stirre.

like's house."

the noble youth.

"I was passing along the corridor," he said, seating himself on the bed-side familiarily, and taking the hand of his wounded guest, " and hearing your voice, learned for the first time that you were awake. Accordingly I made bold to enter, in order to assure you of a welcome. When we last parted, Mr. Scott." he said noticing our hero's look of astonishment, "it was with ill-feeling on both sides. Let all that be forgotten. Whatever I may have said then I now recall. In saving the life of Capt. Washington, who is my dearest friend, you have laid me under infinite obligations, and at his request, I have consented to overlook the past, and to give you my daughter. I only make a single stipulation, which is that you will not ask her long, now that things have began to go on so auspiciously." Our hero well understood the character of Mr. Thordlike, who was noted for his prudent adherence to which ever side was uppermost, and he attributed this sudden change not only to Capt. Washington's intercession, but also in part to the prospect there was of the triumph of the colonial cause, in which case the confiscated estates of the elder Mr. Scott would be restored. He kept this to himself, however, and expressed his thanks for Mr. Thordlike's hospitality. "But, I shall owe you even more." he ndded, "for the happiness with which your promiss nas filled me, and I cheerfully accept your terms. Meantime, let me rise, and pay my respects to the ladies in person-I am sure I am well enough.

Our hero, however, was compelled to peared to him an age.

We shall not attempt to describe his meeting with Ellen. Let us pass over the first few minutes of the interview.

said at last in a low whisper, for Mr. and she would resist at every hazard, and to Mrs. Thordlike, were at the other end of the last extremity, if you perpetrated over the apartment, 'and that is the loss of her this enormous spoliation of her ejecyour miniature. I had it around my tion from California. She has, nevertheher bosom.

mer, scarcery beneving ins senses, and thon a nothing; its limitations mere scrutinizing her features, "can it be? You breath. And now, when abolition rears ers consistent with truth and honesty, and riments, he dec. ed that it was are indeed she. And this is Mr. Thord- its head, and stares consolidation in the that was to confine the action of this to trust the safety of his bricface, you wish to from it down. It will Government to the plain, simple specified He had started up in bed, and was laugh you to scorn. It is only carrying limitation in the Constitution. Sir, I have cd from him, and condescende now confronted by the figure of the ow- out the principles you taught it—the life been an humble follower of that party for the Queen's gentle palfrey. I ner of the mansion himself, who entered you gave it. It is only ridding themselves more than twenty years. For thirteen and the Queen was placed o at an opposite door; but who instead of of that responsibility you imposed upon years I have been standing up here in behind him." wearing the angry air which Albert had them, and carrying out your principles to Congress, endeavoring to bring it back to last seen upon him, smiled kindly upon their legitimate results. If, in past days, the original principles upon which it was all statesmen had stood upon the limitations of the Constitution; if they had said the Constitution gave us no power was based, not only on principles of polibeyond its plain and simple grants, these cy, but on the fixed and immutable princiers, who are erecting a set of people would have respected these limita- ples of truth and justice. But at the last mills between Gordon and M tions: their minds would never have session of Congress they surrendered to It is of twenty-five horse power turned to the great question of Southern their enemies; they went over in the free all the modern improvement slavery, and they would have enforced States to the consolidationists, in order these obligations of the Constitution, because it was their bond, their faith, their duty. The greatest friends of abolition in this country are the consolidationists. twenty years has been the leader of the They are the fathers of it-they have great Federal or Whig party, and an abler made it. From their corrupt construction of the Constitution this hideous mon- Every step they took under such a leader ster has arisen, now shaking this Union towards consummating these measures of to its centre, and, in my opinion, destined compromise, they strengthened the Fedto overthrow it.

Sir, what did this Congress do at its last session? Consolidation carried its trihand until this war is over, which," he umphant career unchecked over the rights added, lowering his voice, "cannot be and honor of the South, and the rights also of the North. By the Compromise: as it was called, you stripped the South, having an equal right in the whole of our vast Territories, conquered by us in common with you, of any participation in That was one branch of your mighty measures of consolidation. And what else Slave bill, another measure of consolidation, as I humbly conceive, although not injurious to the North. And after you had done this, you then cried out, "All hail! here is peace; there is to be no more contention; the lamb and the wolf are to lie down together. Satisfaction, keep his bed for two entire days, in consequence of the ferer, a period which ap- the Union; the South is satisfied, the North is satisfied, we are all satisfied."

Sir, the South has succumbed far beyond what she expected, or any body else expected, after the solemn commit-"I have but one thing to regret," he tals she has made. She had resolved that but two States. But the North, for whom Ellen smiled achly and drew it from you plundered us-the North who had under the banner of Lopez, the hero of Car- so much snuff that every time h triumphed by your consolidation, instead denas, who gained the victory of fifty thou- he jerks himself out of his boot-"How did it each your possession?" of being satisfied with what she had sand dollars! In a future number the Eco

.... out one way of administering its powplaced there by mighty men. The genius chine shop of Mr. Chas. P. I of Jefferson and Madison founded it. It city, a steam engine, which that together they might spoil the South. They took the Honorable Senator from Kentucky as their leader-he who for leader they never had or ever will possess. eral or consolidation party, and weakened themselves. Now, where are they !-Where are the principles of the Democratic party? They are gone-they are destroyed. The Whig or Federal party is the only

party that posseses power in this Union, and those of our Democratic friends who thought proper to co-operate with them in the measures of consolidation of the them. You ignominiously ejected us, but last Congress must sink into their embraadmitted freely not only all the people of ces or sink beneath their feet. There the North, but the people of every other may be yet recuperative power in the land and tongue, even to the convicts of country if it could be brought forth; but Botany Bay. They are fit to be your compeers in holding that magnificent and have looked long and long for streaks "Our Legislature is on the ev country, but we-we, your equals in this of day. Shall that bright day ever again, confederacy, are spurned and thrust aside. come, when the Democratic party chasti- the result, as thousands of our sed by its errors, and disciplined by de- from the Southern States, many feat, shall again be clothed in its ancient in the highest offices, and are c did you do? You passed the Fugitive armor and fighting for their principles, urging the introduction of slaves and the noble faith of the Constitution State. All our journals, and we once mount to victory! I fear not. I many, are either silent upon the fear they are gone, gone forever! and or speak openly in favor of the that this Union will soon come to an end | A wrong impression obtained at the under the mighty sweep of the free States, in regard to the adaptation of C with the consolidation principles which to slave labor. In point of fact they have ever advocated and enforced. in the Union is more favoral. The wheel is destined to roll on, crushing where slave labor could be more beneath its weight, interest after interest, bly employed. No State in all faith, brotherhood, and peace until the has so fine and extensive man whole fabric falls a vast pile of ruin and "Tolures," the finest lands in the

Another Cubian Expedition.—The Eco afford an additionally strong motive d'Italia, the Italian paper published at New climate, too, is highly favora York, says it has received information from colored race. We who are New Orleans that a second expedition is be- north in free principles feel care. ing prepared against the Island of Cuba, and and will soon issue a paper of an that it regrets to learn that some soft-headed | ' to astonish the natives. Italians are among those who are enlisting

thle or not vourite charger; so King Jam

MACON MANUFACTURED We examined on Monday last at constructed entire, with the the boilers, in Mr. Levy's es For beauty of proportions and so far as the eye can judge, tial utility, this engine is not a or to the best we have ever ced in the Northern works. py to find that the Southers not only using a great deal m ery than formerly, but that t erally determined to give p home-made articles. us that he has now in hand eight steam engines, and tha all told about forty hands. lishments and their propriet be cherished and sustained by gacious, and prudent people." tribute essentially to the prosperior to only of the city, but of the surremain country.-Macon Messenger.

SLAVERY IN CALIFORNIA - The C fornia correspondent of a leading ing a United States Senator, ar for rice fields, while our valley a the best tobacco, and our exter-

THERE is a man in Boston

Why is an attorney like a min I once hoped you did, but since your fagive ground. These brave soldiers of the dead dragoon, "to save your life. His he said in surprise And, taking it in his gained, was dissatisfied with the poor promises to speak more fully on the subject. Because he studies the law and the property.