over so tenderly, and with such deep solicitude screened our son and pupil from the influences of vice, and trained his tender mind in the path of virtue, now part with him forever? It seems but as yesterday that I met you. Garrery, in the class room, where by the sweetness of your manners and deportment, and your carefully prepared recitations, you gained the love of your teacher and the esteem of your classmates. But,

"Thy life was like the summer rose

Thy life was like the summer rose
That opens to the morning sky,
But are the shades of evening close,
Is scattered on the ground to die!"
I came to this place in January, 1853, at which I came to this place in January, 1893, at which time I took charge of the Academy. Griffeth entered the institution among the first, and continued a member of it until his last severe illness. By his affability and decorum, very remarkable for a tooy of his age, he specific won the affection and confidence of dred acres, more or less. r, and the good wishes of those with whom he was daily associated. The smile which would continually radiate over his finely formed features, him to us. When at the class, he would strive, with all his youthful energies, to outstrip the foremest, and in the play-ground, to outstrip the foremest, and in the play-ground, to outstrip the hardiest. How often, from my seat, have I heard his mellow voice fur above the obers, as he would cheer and welcome one of his own side home; and when re-assembling the school, he was invariably the first at his desk. Following, day after day, with the strictest punctuality, this one single course, he surely gave evidence that at some fature time his position in society would be with some fature time his position in soriety would be with the highest. But "change passeth over all," Winter, with its childing blasts, came and found you, dear Griffin, with ug; it has passed away; then came lovely Spring, with its flowers and bads; it has pass-ed away; then came Summer, with scoreling rays, and purched thy delicate form, and radely snatched thee from the foul embrace of kind jurents, as the time from the ions emission and particle from the banks of some beautiful stream, or clambers up the moss-covered wall, laying it all soiled in the onst. How transient, how fleeting are all our earthly hopes, such a nature as is attended with exercicining pain, yet he bore it with firmness and perfect resignation. hope of the Christian's reward beyond the dark grave, that his parents could scarcely realize the approachflitted away his life amidst the gaicties and frivolities of a f-olish world, but would have devoted it to advancing the cause of Christ. THE Exercises of this Institution were resumed on the first of August, under the control of Mr J. GREGG LEITNER, our last year's Teacher. The experience of a twelvemonth has fully satisfied us that no more competent young gentleman can be found in the State than the one now at the head of our Academy. The best proof of this is the general satisfaction given by him last year, backed by the additional fact that his School, at the termination of its first week for the second year, numbered 43 Puells. has given this place, as a business stand, a reputation of a high order, and as such recommends itself
