EDGEFIELD COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES. ESTABLISHED under its present direction in 1851, and has continued uniformly prospe

Its peculiar characteristics are-1. Whatever it proposes to do, it does, and does 2. Its advantages, reputation and patronage are designed to be of a strictly local character, and n appeals are made to the citizens of other parts of the State for their patronage.

3. It affords to the people of Edgefield, what few in other Districts propose, viz: A model School for the education of their daughters under a strictly home influence, and secures to them, at their own doors, advantages which they cannot find surpassed

4. It is, without controversy, the best furnished Academy in the State for educational purposes. 5. Its income, no matter how great it may be, i all disbursed at home so that its patrons are doubly benefitted by its prosperity. 7. And lastly, it relies simply upon its merits for reputation and support, and doing its works under the most favorable circumstances, challenges constant scrutiny and investigation. The Winter Session for 1856 commenced or Monday, the 14th January.
