2. Pay your minister because you owe him and the precept is, "owe no man" Having had the time and service of your minister, you can no more deprive him of his wages, without sin, than you could "the reaper of your fields." The money you subscribed is not a charity, but

3. Pay your minister, that he may be worth paying; How can he give instruction, if poverty drive him out of his study to dabble in worldly business. How can he buy books and periodicals without means? How can he think and reason closely, if you allow his mind to be tortured with fears of debts and insolvency, and keep him running from neighbor to neighbor borrowing money? How can he go before the Church as a pioneer in Godliness, if you compel him to be continually struggling with pecuniary embarrassments?

4. Pay your ministers so that he can pay his debts. The world expects ministers to pay their debts punctually. Not to do this is to bring reproach upon religion. Can the minister be punctual, if his people withhold the means? The shoemaker, tailor, merchant &c., want their money, and will you compel your minister to defraud them ?

5. Pay your minister, if you would keep him, or ever get another as good. It is a bad thing for a Church to get the name of "starving their ministers." We know some Churches who do this! The curse of God seems to be upon them worse and worse. They will soon become "like the mountains of Gibeon, without dew or

6. Pay your minister, because you promised to pay him. Not to do this is to forfeit your word. It is a debt of honor as well as of law. Your pastor has trusted to your word, thrown himself and his family into your keeping. Will you prove unworthy of this confidence?

7. Pay your minister, because you are able to pay him. How small is the pittance which falls to your share! With a little extra labor or unusual economy, how easily could you pay your pastor promptly! Will you think of these things?

THE DRUNKARD'S DEATH.

What a spectacle is this! What a lesson does it teach! The destruction of man's corporcal frame is not pleasant under any circumstances. The taking down his "clay tabernacle," even when the hopes to enter a "building not made with hands," in the upper skies, has something melancholy in it. But when we see a mortal stretched upon his dying couch whose life has been spent in debauchery and revelry, what is there connected with him or his, either past or present, or future, that does not present the most horrible and forbidding aspect? Life is gone-property wasted-character blastedwife and children beggared—there he lies upon his bed of straw, with parched lips, bloated are poured out, the glasses raised and touched countenance, and blood shot eyes, the very personification of run. Tossing upon his hard and swallows his portion with the same impassive comfortless couch, panting for breath, and calling for help, but all in vain. Death marks him for his victim; and now, if for a while he is that partially redeemed or excused, are wanting relieved from frightful ghosts and demons which hitherto haunted his disordered imagination, conscience, the sleepless monitor, with redoubled vigor assails his still conscious soul, and brings to it ever since they were boys, and that has up before him every act of his worthless life, to blast all hope, to plunge him in deeper agony, and to hurry his affrighted spirit into the presence of his God. How loudly and bitterly does he complain of himself, of life, of friends, of a doomed spirit, demanding of his Maker a speedier discharge. The wild glare of his scorched eyes, his restless tossing, his retching hiccough, and his deep hollow groans, tell us how hard it is for a drunkard to die. The very "No, no; I know nothing, think presence of once loved wife and children, kindle in his bosom, in advance, the very fires of hell. The soothing voice of mercy and the plaintive prayer of the man of God kneeling by his bedside, add fuel to the already raging flame. He calls for water! water! water! now, ere he takes up his habitation where "one drop" will not be allowed him; but, ah! the cool draught only adds force to the devouring fire. Friends | cried. gather around to take a last farewell, and his tremulous hand is extended to bid them adieu; -thoughts of the past and of the future send their withering arrows, barbed with the poison of death, to his bursting heart; and with one strong, agonizing struggle, his ruined soul stag-gers into the spirit land, to receive its sentence. Pity, compassion, humanity, would let the veil drop here, and cover up till the great assize the doom of the deluded, misguided wretch; but Divine truth has said, "All drunkards shall have their portion in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone."-Spirit of the Age.

THE MOTHER'S CARES .- "When I consider the anxieties of mothers, I wonder how many of them can be sustained without religion. So many watchful hours, so many periods of suspense, so many days of anguish, when their offspring are to one in such circumstances. How unwise, eternity apart to remain without so great a solace! "It is true that religion brings anxieties all its own to the mother's heart. Having learned to be concerned about her own soul, she becomes concerned for the soul of her child. Many a petition ascends over the couch of infancy. Only in eternity can we learn the value of such nursery devotions. A mother was once heard to say, "never did I take one of my numerous children to my bosom for nourishment, that I did not at the same time, lift up my heart to God in prayer, that he would bestow on it his salvation. case of Monica, the mother of Augustine, is well known. Her son was yet unconverted, profligate, and addicted to the heresy of the Manichees. She went with her cares to a pious minister of Christ, who, after witnessing her anguish and her devotion, dismissed her with these words: "It is impossible that the son of such prayers and tears be lost." "What powerful inducements are here offered for mothers to become true Christians. An unchristian and prayerless mothers! Let the very phrase carry horror to the soul, and drive the convinced sinner to God."

ANGER .- Prayer is the great remedy against anger; for it must suppose it in some degree removed before we pray, and then it is the more likely it will be finished before the prayer is done. We must lay aside the act of anger, as preparatory for prayer; and the curing the habit will be the effect and blessing of prayer, so that if a man to cure his anger resolves to address himself to God by prayer, it is first necessary that by his own observation and diligence, he lay the anger aside, before his prayer can be fit to be presented; and if we do pray, and so endeavor, we have all the blossings of prayer which God hath promised to it to be our security for success. Humility is the most excellent natural cure for anger in the world; for he that by daily considering his own infirmities makes the error of his neighbor to be his own case, and remembers that he daily needs God's pardon and his brother's charity, will not be apt to rage at the faults of another; greater than which he feels that he is frequently and more inexcusably guilty of .-

Jeremy Taylor. THE TWENTY-THIRD PSALM .- What a quiver full of arrows for the Christian's use against all his foes, is that beautiful twenty-third Psalm.

Let us read it: "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want; He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters; He restoreth my soul; He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name sake. Yes, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me; Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of my enemies; thou annointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.' Aug 12

NOTHING BUT AN HONEST HEART. BY HERMINE.

Nothing! and what more would you have, young girl, when that is all, indeed, and the rest ttle less than nothing? Smile on now, in quiet happiness, for with that blest assurance you may look with hope upon the future; there will be no ills, and griefs, and heartaches, but still will throb an honest man's heart to love you.

Nothing! Are the pure devoted love of an honest heart, the generous impulses of a noble soul, the virtues which insure your fature happiness to be counted nothing? Ah! rather let prayer arise on high to Him who has given you so much of happiness. How many as young, as good, as lovely, bend the knee to ask Almighty God the precious boon of an honest heart to love them.

A time must come when youth, and grace, and loveliness will fade away; when hopes and dreams, and yearnings change to quiet, all trust-in Providence—when earth's surface will seem void of dazzling roses, and life's sky unlit by glorious sunbeams-when friends, and relatives, and loveliness will pass before you to the grave; but still will bloom sweet flowers of happiness along life's way, and softened, holier sunlight flood the sky, if on the desert land there throbs an honest heart to love you.

Nothing! There will be an hour in which earth, with all its pomp and showy wealth, with its pleasures and delights and beauty, with its charms and power, will seem to you like nothing; while the memory of a love that blest maidenhood, and cheered you mid the storms of life, that went before you and gave your spirit strength to follow, that crushed the thorns of affliction placed upon your brow, and called each flower that blossomed on life's way, will rise in pleasantness before you; and while your spirit, quiet and serene, awaits death's summons from this world, remem ber that the peace, the crown, the happiness is yours, because of the virtue, truth, and bright example of the honest heart that loved you.

DRINKING AMONG YOUNG MEN.

The Philadelphia Sun says truly, that indiscriminate drinking among our young men must eventually make its mark upon the population of our cities. We can see it already betraying itself in the rising generation. It is impossible for any man to drink even pure liquors six or seven times a day without suffering severely in constitution. And when he transmits this impaired constitution to his son, who in turn impairs it still further by the same course, it requires little foresight to see that we are preparing a population for our cities that will not in physical frame be much better than the wretched Aztees. This love of drink and bar-rooms is every day increasing. Every day sees fresh saloons starting up in our midst. Every day sees our youth becoming more and more the victims of this habit, for really we think it more a habit, than a provision. It is no leve for joviality that tempts them, except in a few cases. It is not the hot exuberance of youth. It is not the evanescent impulse of the gay young fellow who is sowing his wild oats. It is, as has been said. a cold, deliberate, confirmed habit. No atmosphere of recklessness or jollity surrounds the drinking groupes, except on occasions, and no peals of merriment atone for the act, by proving that it is at least unusual. A grim and melanwith a loathsome air of custom, and each man countenance he would wear if he were drinking a glass of plain water. All the concomitants in this sad and formal ceremony. The actors drink, not because they love it, and want to be now become a habit which is more imperious than if it were passion.

"THY WILL BE DONE."

pale lips; "earth and sky are alike dark to me He prays, but, it is the angry imprecration of since they laid my only one in the dust." "Does religion, then, afford you no consolation?" asked the white-haired pastor solemnly. "Does not the thought that you shall go to

"No, no; I know nothing, think of nothing, but that I have lost him—lost him. All is a dead blank; my heart is like a stone. O, I would give worlds to lose this weight! worlds worlds!"

"And if I should say that this terrible weight may be cast off; this cold heart he made warm

"O tell me how, for I am in despair!" she "In one year, dear madam," said the white haired man, "my only son, grown to manhood, was drowned; my wife laid in the grave; my daughter taken from me by death, and my own health so prostrated that I could no longer minister in holy things to my people."

"How sad!" cried the young widow, clasping her hands, while her eyes filled. "How did you, how could you bear it?"
"By looking up to my Father, and saying, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.'

Is the prayer new to you?" "O, no," murmured the disconsolate one, her pale face bowed upon her hands; "I say it every day, but I never felt it."

The Sabbath day came round, and the young widow, for the first time since her husband's death, went to the house of God. On her way she met the white-haired man, and with a genill, or in danger. Surely grace is doubly sweet | the but submissive smile, she said: "I can bear it now." A light as from heaven beamed on his aged face. "Then you find His strength sufficient?" "Yes," she answered. "It was a struggle but as soon as I felt it was right, the load fell

And the white-haired pastor, as he stood up to talk to the people, took for his text the words: "Thy will be done."

MATRIMONY AND RELIGION-It is better that man and wife should be of one religious faith, but when they do unfortunately differ, one should not attempt to annoy the other, for that would ad to discord and misery : let each respect the opinion of the other. Time, that great healer of wounds, quietly adjust these kind of differences, if there by no strife to mar his efforts.

THE RICHMOND FACTORY,

RICHMOND COUNTY, GA. CONTINUES to manufacture WOOLEN CLOTH at 121 cents per yard; finding every material except the Wool. The extensive and constantly increasing patronage the Factory has enjoyed for years past, assure the Proprietors that the article of Winter Clothing for Negroes,

Made by them, has not been surpassed by any Cloth made North or South. Recent extensive improvements and additions not only enable us to keep up the standard of the Goods, but to secure an early delivery of the same.

Planters or others who may desire to avail themselves of this opportunity, and secure a first rate article at a moderate cost, have only to send us the Wool, washed clean in cold water. If sent dirty one half cent per yard extra is charged for washing. Burry Wool is not objectionable; the Burrs are removed by machinery.

The name of the owner should be marked on all Packages sent us. Wool sent by any of the Rail Reads in Georgia, Alabama or South Carolina, to the Augusta Depot, marked Richmond Factory, (and owner's name also) will be regularly and promptly received, and the cloth, when made, returned to the points directed. Each parcel is made up in the turn received, hence an early delivery is always desirable. All instructions to

The Numbers from 1 to 50,300, corresponding with those Numbers on the Tickets printed on separate slips of paper, are encircled with small tin tubes, and placed in one wheel. The first 467 prizes, similarly printed and encircled, are piaced in another wheel.

The wheels are then revolved, and a number is drawn from the wheel of numbers, and at the same time a prize is drawn from the other wheel. The number and prize drawn out are opened and exhibited to the audience, and registered by the Commissioners; the prize being placed against the number drawn. This operation is repeated until all the prizes are drawn out.

Approximation Prizes.—The two preceding and the two succeeding Numbers to those drawing the first I Prizes will be entitled to the 28 Approximation Prizes. For example: If Ticket No. 11,250 draws the $60,600 Prize, those Tickets numbered 11,248, 11,249, 11,251, 11,251, will each be entitled to $400, and so on according to the above scheme.

The 5,000 Prizes of $20 will be determined by the last figure of the No. which draws the $60,000. For example, if the No. drawing the 60,000 prize ends with No. 1, then all the Tickets where the number ends in 1 will be entitled to $20. If the Number ends with Number 2, then all the Tickets where the Number ends in 2 will be entitled to $20, and so on to 0. on to 0.
