

Farmer's Column.

From the Cotton Planter and Soil.
THE FARMER'S FIRMSIDE.

How happy was the evening.
In the good old days now past and gone,
As round the farmer's fireside,
We gathered when the day was done;
The fire-light flickering on the wall,
Sweet voices sounded in the hall.
Then songs and mirth and tales went round,
And many a shout of laughter clear,
Rang out with joyous pealing sound,
Which loving hearts grew warm to hear;
Gay shadows danced upon the wall,
Like city bells at the city hall.
The ruddy blaze of the great pine fire,
Glanced on the good dame, happy and mild;
Darned the locks of the gray-haired wife,
Painted the cheeks of the frolicking child;
Frightened with lustre the long black hall;
Cast many shadows on the wall.
And when the merry Christmas came,
Stockings were hung on the Christmas tree;
Made the simple gift, and the good game,
Made the old feet young, and the young full of glee!
The shadows lingered long on the wall
And light feet lingered long on the hall.
Many Christmas came and went;
The old folks stood on the brink of the grave;
Their forms were withered and feeble and bent,
And the youth grew up to manhood and brave;
Then the shadows tremble on the wall,
Like leaves of Autumn, ere they fall.
Those days are gone—time swiftly fled—
And green mounds where the willows weep,
Among the nations of the dead,
Show where those old folks calmly sleep!
Then silence reigned within the hall,
And darkness shadowed all the wall!
The little ones that sported there,
Saw their father's earth far and wide;
Assailed by worldly grief and care,
Weep as they think of the old days;
In dreams they sport again in the hall,
And dance to the shadows on the wall.

WHEAT SOWING.

We hear many complaints of the total or partial failure of the wheat crop, in various sections of the country. In some places it has been winter killed, in others smitten by rust, and in many others cut off by the insects. The truth probably is that, excepting destruction by insects, there is about the same amount of injury received from these sources as occurs every year. The business of collecting information from the wheat-growing districts is now so systematized that we hear much more of failures, than we were accustomed to ten years ago. Whole columns of reports are published in the daily newspapers, and the story of failure in fifty counties of the union makes a great impression. Wheat has never been so certain a crop as Indian corn. It is a more cautious plant in its wants, and must have more careful attention. It demands a porous soil, rich in vegetable matter, such as is found in the newly cleared lands of the West. In old lands the mechanical preparation of the soil is a matter of prime importance. The more nearly you can make it like the virgin soil the better. If it be not already dry it should be made so. The soil should be deeply stirred with a subsoil plow to let the rains pass down quickly, and to give air to the roots of the plants. More wheat is winter-killed by stagnant water freezing around the plants than by any other cause. The deep stirring of the soil is also a help in summer, guarding the crop against drought. If the land is not underdrained it should be plowed in narrow lands, with deep dead furrows to give the water a chance to pass into them.
Sow EARLY.—The experience of wheat growers is very uniformly in favor of early sowing. The sooner it is put in after the first of this month the better. The roots have time to get a strong hold of the soil and are not easily thrown out by the frost.
SELECT YOUR SEED.—This may be done by threshing the bundles only partially. A few strokes of the flail will knock out the plumpest kernels. Some of the fanning mills have riddles for the purpose, running the smallest kernels through, and saving the larger ones.
Attention to this matter of great importance if you wish to keep up the reputation of any given variety. The early red varieties, such as the pure Red Mediterranean, are most reliable against insect ravages.
Use a drill if you cultivate wheat in any considerable quantity. It will soon pay for itself in the saving it makes in the seed, and in the larger yield per acre. If without a drill, plow in the seed with a shallow furrow.
MANURES.—Do not be afraid of making the land too rich. Wheat will not grow where buckwheat and some other grains might yield a tolerable crop. Barn yard manures are always good and safe. Ashes, lime, plaster and clover turned in green will each and all pay, in certain conditions of the soil. As good wheat can be grown now as ever, in the oldest parts of the country, if cultivators will heed these suggestions—except where the insects happen to abound for the time being—in the Northern Exchange.

ECONOMICAL HINTS.—1.

Have a workbench and a few tools in your woodshed, or in a little room at one end of your barn. There are many small jobs in the course of a year, which any man of common ingenuity can do as well as a professional carpenter. And there are many rainy days and "odd spells" when these jobs can be done. And how much runnings to the village and how much waiting and patience this would save!
2. Have a place for everything and everything in its place. Those tools—why should they be lying around the manger here, and the jack-plane there, and the saw yonder, and the adze and screw driver nowhere? Don't put away a shovel, hoe, spade or any implement without cleaning it. This may seem needless care, but in the long run it is saving of time and money. Rust corrodes and weakens the tools. There are men who lay their tools away in the furrow, or laying by the side of the fence from one year to another. And the "bran-new" scythe is often left dangling from the croch of an apple tree month after month. Hear what a sensible farmer says: "Drive in stout wooden pins to hang your yokes upon; nail strips of board from joist to joist to hang chains upon; make a rack overhead for pitchforks, rakes, turning sticks" &c. To all of which we respond, So let it be!

GATHER THE LEAVES.—No

manure is so well worth saving in October and November as the now falling leaves of the season. According to Payne, they contain nearly three times as much nitrogen as ordinary barn-yard manure; and every gardener who has sown and covered them in his trenches late in the fall or in December, must have noticed the next season how black and moist the soil is that adheres to the thrifty young beets he pulls. No vegetable substance yields its woody fibre and becomes soluble quicker than leaves, and from this very cause they are soon dried up, scattered to the winds, and wasted, if not gathered and trenched in, or composted, before the winter shall set in with severity.
A NEW WAY TO BRING UP THE COWS.—Traveling a few days in Missouri, in sections where the cows have a wide range, we heard a new enticement to bring the cows home regular at eve. That was feeding them with sugar the same as you would salt, a little handful at eve, at the same time of day, would bring them back to the gate with a regularity as walking as the sun. After they are trained in separating, it may be omitted every other night. A half dozen notable housewives assured me that the fact was well worth knowing.—Ohio Farmer.

AIKEN

Military & Classical Academy.
THIS ACADEMY is designed for those who desire that their sons be carefully prepared for admission into the South Carolina College or other similar Institutions, into the State Military Academy, or for the active business of life.
The course of studies is specially adapted to these ends, embracing so much of the English, Greek, Latin and French languages and the Mathematics as are requisite; in all of which it is the aim of the instructors that their Cadets become thorough masters of fundamental principles, and acquire habits of thought and self-dependence. Composition and Declamation receive their due share of attention.
The Cadets are drilled in the Infantry Tactics; and the discipline of the Academy is of the Military order—strict, inflexible and impartial.
The second scholastic year will commence on the first Monday in January 1859, to continue for ten months exclusive of two weeks vacation in June. Candidates for admission must be able to read and write with facility, and not be less than thirteen years old.
Tuition, Board, Lodgings, Books, Lights and Fuel, furnished for One Hundred Dollars per Session of five months, payable in advance.
Parents will be required to furnish the uniform and other articles of clothing.
