

Glorious News from Kentucky.

THE FIGHT AT PERRYVILLE.

From our city exchanges we gather the most interesting news from our brave Kentucky and victorious battle of Perryville.

KNOXVILLE, (TENN.) Oct. 10th.—The report of the fight in Kentucky has been a firm of the arrival of two columns here who state that the fight centered at Perryville, in Barren County, Ky., on Monday morning, Oct. 8th, Gen. Hardee commanding the Gen. Bragg's army, and Gen. Sherman commanding the Union army.

The result of the first day's fight was the capture of 1,500 prisoners, with a very heavy slaughter to the enemy.

On Tuesday, the fight was renewed with still greater slaughter to the enemy; Hardee capturing 2,000 prisoners, and Sherman capturing 2,000.

The enemy was driven back 12 miles, with tremendous slaughter. Our loss in the whole engagement was very small.

We are not positive as to who were in command of the Yankee forces, but Gen. Thomas, who commanded Gen. Hardee, was captured 40 pieces of cannon.

The following is an extract from Col. Palmer's report to the 7th Regt., received here last night from Cumberland Gap: "A great number of soldiers are here from the battle of Perryville. A Captain of a Tennessee regiment reports that, on Tuesday and Wednesday, he saw of Hardee's army a very large force, and drove them back 12 miles, capturing 2,000 prisoners, and killing and wounding about 1,500 of the enemy; that on Friday, the 7th, the division engaged the enemy and captured 2,000 prisoners; and that on Saturday, the 8th, the division engaged the enemy and captured 2,000 prisoners, and killed and wounded about 1,500 of the enemy."

From the Knoxville (Tenn.) Journal, Oct. 11.

Officers from our army in Kentucky, who remain in this city, describe a battle fought at Perryville, between Hardee's forces and a Federal force under Gen. Sherman. The engagement commenced on the 7th, when the Confederates drove back the Federals, capturing 1,500. On the morning of the 8th, the fight was renewed, when the Federals were routed, and 4,000 prisoners and 100 pieces of cannon captured. When our information left, the prisoners had been brought to Danville. Only the right wing of our army was engaged.

Perryville is in Boyle county, about 11 miles from Danville, on the road between Harpersburg and Lebanon.

The Cincinnati Commercial, of the 11th inst., says that Gen. Bragg has whipped Gen. Sherman here across the Kentucky river, and is in hot pursuit.

The Louisville (Ky.) Journal, of Saturday, Oct. 11th, has been received at Murfreesboro. It says that three Generals (Jackson, Terrell and Webster) were killed in the fight at Perryville, on the Federal side. Gen. P. J. Court, of Lexington, and Major W. P. Campbell, of Louisville, were also killed. Generals Ross and Curran, Popo, of Louisville, were wounded.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

KNOXVILLE, Ky., Oct. 10th.—via Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 10th.—At Frankfort the Federals were routed, and 4,000 prisoners and 100 pieces of cannon captured. When our information left, the prisoners had been brought to Danville. Only the right wing of our army was engaged.

Another battle is at hand. Bragg's army is marching, and at once withdrew his army to protect them. Immediately the enemy sent a flag of truce to our lines, asking permission to bury their dead at daylight next morning.

After the fight, not even a Yankee surgeon was left on the field of battle; but all of our wounded were left on the field. Our wounded were returned.

On the night of the battle Gen. Polk had a narrow escape. As dusk he left the staff, and rode off to stop the fire, as he thought of a Confederate regiment on our troops. He seized the Colonel of the offending regiment by the shoulder, and demanded of him: "Why do you fire on your friends?"

The Colonel replied that he did not know that he was doing so.

"Who are you?" asked Gen. Polk.

"The Colonel of the 23d Indiana," replied the officer.

Gen. Polk again spoke to him roughly, and ordered him to cease firing; and then, he fired the Yankee officer found out who he was, put spurs to his horse and galloped away.

Gen. Bragg says that he has got the best troops in the world.

Two thousand Kentuckians have taken up arms for us, and more are organizing.

Gen. McClellan's army has arrived.

Among the killed on our side were Lieut. C. J. Patterson, of the First Tennessee Regiment; Lieut. Col. Evans, of the Texas Rangers; Major C. Fryer, Commissary; Capt. Cartwright, of Georgia, and Wm. S. May, of Gen. Claiborne's staff.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 17.—The following is a special dispatch to the Mobile Advertiser & Register.

SENATORIAL MESS., Oct. 17.—Despatches of the 12th inst. from Indianapolis to the Cincinnati (Ill.) Times, say that intense excitement prevailed there, caused by despatches from Gen. Boyle at Louisville, Ky., and marching on Louisville. He urges Gov. Morton, of Indiana, to send his regiments, the having but 2,000 men at Louisville.

The impression prevails at Louisville that Paull has been badly wounded. The excitement in the city is intense.

The Cincinnati Commercial, of the 12th, claims a victory, but its despatches are very conflicting.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT OF THE BATTLE.

NEAR CANNON BRECKINRIDGE, NINE MILES FROM PERRYVILLE, Oct. 10, via Knoxville, October 17.—Fifteen thousand of our troops fought forty-five thousand at Perryville, on the 8th inst. Our loss between 1,000 and three thousand, the enemy's loss between 2,000 and five thousand. We captured eleven guns and about five hundred prisoners.

THE NORTHERN ORGANIZATION SCHEME SUBVERTED.—A Washington letter says that Senator Powers' scheme of organizing an enterprise in the Territory of Colorado, and its success, has been frustrated by the Secretary of War, who has refused to issue a passport to the Secretary of War, and has refused to issue a passport to the Secretary of War.

Some ten or twelve of the Tennessee bridges made their escape from Perryville, and are now in the hands of the Federals. It is reported that they were captured. They had their castles, and would have been used long ago.

Election Returns for the State Legislature for Edgefield District.

Table with columns for Senate and House of Representatives, listing candidates and their respective votes.

Gen. Bragg's Address to the People of the Northwest.

Gen. Bragg has issued from his headquarters at Harpersburg, Ky., one of the strongest addresses which has been issued by any military man during this war. It is addressed to "The people of the Northwest." He assures them that the Confederate Government is waging this war with no design of conquest, but of a more peace and the abandonment of the United States of the pretensions to govern a people who never have been their subjects, and who prefer self-government to a union with them.

Gen. Bragg's address is a masterpiece of military and political strategy. He argues that the Confederacy is not a mere political union, but a people with a right to self-determination. He calls for a cessation of hostilities and a return to peace, but only on terms that recognize the independence of the Confederate States.

Gen. Bragg's address is a masterpiece of military and political strategy. He argues that the Confederacy is not a mere political union, but a people with a right to self-determination. He calls for a cessation of hostilities and a return to peace, but only on terms that recognize the independence of the Confederate States.

Gen. Bragg's address is a masterpiece of military and political strategy. He argues that the Confederacy is not a mere political union, but a people with a right to self-determination. He calls for a cessation of hostilities and a return to peace, but only on terms that recognize the independence of the Confederate States.

Gen. Bragg's address is a masterpiece of military and political strategy. He argues that the Confederacy is not a mere political union, but a people with a right to self-determination. He calls for a cessation of hostilities and a return to peace, but only on terms that recognize the independence of the Confederate States.

Gen. Bragg's address is a masterpiece of military and political strategy. He argues that the Confederacy is not a mere political union, but a people with a right to self-determination. He calls for a cessation of hostilities and a return to peace, but only on terms that recognize the independence of the Confederate States.

Gen. Bragg's address is a masterpiece of military and political strategy. He argues that the Confederacy is not a mere political union, but a people with a right to self-determination. He calls for a cessation of hostilities and a return to peace, but only on terms that recognize the independence of the Confederate States.

THE ADVERTISER.

ARTHUR SIMKINS, EDITOR. WEDNESDAY, OCT. 23, 1862.

Death of Dr. Wm. H. Johnson.

In our news column last week the death of this aged and distinguished minister of the Gospel was briefly stated. It is not for us to pass by this event without further comment.

The District of Edgefield is called upon to mourn the loss of one of her noblest sons, and the State of South Carolina sorrow to-day for the loss of her fallen hero. He who so lately stood upon the very parapet of our altar work and reposed by the might of his own strong will, and the noble and heroic courage of his noble soul, in the face of the lowly law in death from exposure to the risk of all hazards.

During the recent canvass for the Legislature in this district, Col. LAMAR was announced by his friends for a seat in the House, which position he had occupied for one term. It is not perhaps out of place to publish his brief and characteristic note to the office, declining that honor. It may be that this was the last time our laureated friend put pen to paper. The note should have been received in time for our last issue, but for some irregularity in the mails. It is as follows:

Col. Thomas G. Lamar. I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your kind and complimentary note, which will be forwarded to the proper authorities. I am, Sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant, T. G. LAMAR, Col. 1st Regt. A. S. C. V.

THAT always, promptly, honestly, and to the point, spoke this I mention gentlemen and soldier. His signature to this note shows the post of duty in which he died.

How he dignified this honorable command at the battle of Sevensville, already fills one of the brightest pages in the record of the War. Within the past few days we have learned that several of his noblest sons, on brief furloughs, and their every eye turned to him, when his name was mentioned, gave token of the still abiding affection and confidence with which they clung to their father's command.

His body was taken to the South Carolina General Hospital, at Columbia, and there he was laid to rest. His noble soul has been taken to its eternal home, and his noble body has been laid to rest in the earth.

DEATH OF COL. T. G. LAMAR.—We have sad news to communicate to our readers to-day. Col. T. G. Lamar, the noble and heroic soldier, has fallen in the midst of the war. He was killed at the battle of Sevensville, on the 10th of October, 1862.

From the 7th S. C. We are permitted to publish the following extract from a letter, direct from Col. Bragg, of the Seventh Regiment S. C. V. It is brief, and asks nothing, but if our people do not respond to his bare facts, we are mistaken in the stuff they are made of.

Returned. We notice the return of Hon. M. L. BROWN from his congressional duties at Richmond, and are glad to find him in the enjoyment of his usual good health.

COOL. On Monday morning the wind blew up a change indicating of approaching frost.

Election in Edgefield. In conformity with the usual custom, we present our readers a table showing the vote in this district for senator and representatives in the State Legislature.

The following gentlemen were the successful candidates for the office of Senator in the district of Edgefield: JAMES BARKER, SIMONS, CHERRY, M. FRANKLIN, JAMES GONZALES, B. M. TAYLOR.

EGG PLANTS: How to Cook Them.—Our friends, who send us those five or six small egg plants, we tender our thanks, and also offer this good plan, and the ladies in general, the following recipe for cooking this vegetable, which we have long experienced, and which we have been very successful in preparing.

EGG PLANTS: How to Cook Them.—Our friends, who send us those five or six small egg plants, we tender our thanks, and also offer this good plan, and the ladies in general, the following recipe for cooking this vegetable, which we have long experienced, and which we have been very successful in preparing.

EGG PLANTS: How to Cook Them.—Our friends, who send us those five or six small egg plants, we tender our thanks, and also offer this good plan, and the ladies in general, the following recipe for cooking this vegetable, which we have long experienced, and which we have been very successful in preparing.

EGG PLANTS: How to Cook Them.—Our friends, who send us those five or six small egg plants, we tender our thanks, and also offer this good plan, and the ladies in general, the following recipe for cooking this vegetable, which we have long experienced, and which we have been very successful in preparing.

EGG PLANTS: How to Cook Them.—Our friends, who send us those five or six small egg plants, we tender our thanks, and also offer this good plan, and the ladies in general, the following recipe for cooking this vegetable, which we have long experienced, and which we have been very successful in preparing.

EGG PLANTS: How to Cook Them.—Our friends, who send us those five or six small egg plants, we tender our thanks, and also offer this good plan, and the ladies in general, the following recipe for cooking this vegetable, which we have long experienced, and which we have been very successful in preparing.

EGG PLANTS: How to Cook Them.—Our friends, who send us those five or six small egg plants, we tender our thanks, and also offer this good plan, and the ladies in general, the following recipe for cooking this vegetable, which we have long experienced, and which we have been very successful in preparing.

EGG PLANTS: How to Cook Them.—Our friends, who send us those five or six small egg plants, we tender our thanks, and also offer this good plan, and the ladies in general, the following recipe for cooking this vegetable, which we have long experienced, and which we have been very successful in preparing.

EGG PLANTS: How to Cook Them.—Our friends, who send us those five or six small egg plants, we tender our thanks, and also offer this good plan, and the ladies in general, the following recipe for cooking this vegetable, which we have long experienced, and which we have been very successful in preparing.

EGG PLANTS: How to Cook Them.—Our friends, who send us those five or six small egg plants, we tender our thanks, and also offer this good plan, and the ladies in general, the following recipe for cooking this vegetable, which we have long experienced, and which we have been very successful in preparing.

EGG PLANTS: How to Cook Them.—Our friends, who send us those five or six small egg plants, we tender our thanks, and also offer this good plan, and the ladies in general, the following recipe for cooking this vegetable, which we have long experienced, and which we have been very successful in preparing.

The News from Kentucky.

The news from BRAGO's army is all a "mad-dance." We see the Augusta Chronicle's peculiar phrase. Still, even the last account (Wide News Column) does not conflict with the belief, that our army has been victorious in its several conflicts and that it is on safe ground. The retreat of BRAGO, if true, may be the prelude to better news than we have yet heard. Let us await the result with hopefulness.

It will be seen also that the Yankees are beginning their third grand move upon Richmond. Let us trust that all things are ready to give them a better reception than ever.

We have given the victorious news from Perryville elsewhere, which is now modified by the latest intelligence. The truth may be half-way between the two stories.

BRAXTON BRAGG as a Statesman. The address of General BRAGO to the people of the North West is the best political document of the year. See it elsewhere. BRAXTON BRAGO and JEFFERSON DAVIS have, since the old Mexican battle of Buena Vista, cooperated for success so powerfully as they are doing to-day. They show themselves to be warrior statesmen, bold for the times, men endowed with the ability, civil and military, to pluck safety for their cause and country from the very darkest dangers of the day, regardless alike of the railings and the applause of men; and at this moment to be done.

BRAXTON BRAGO stands at there is work to be done, the embodiment of the righteous and wise policy of Jefferson Davis, with the sword of victory in one hand and the olive-branch of peace in the other. We believe the two-fold argument must prevail, and can imagine the cry that may soon be heard from across the Ohio: "Up with your banners, Democracy of the North-West, and crush the monster of Fanaticism that leads you to ruin."

Our Gun-boats--An Inquiry.

The Chicago (the State gun-boat) and the Palmetto State (LAWSON'S) gun-boat by reason of their patriotic contributions towards its construction are now afloat in the waters of Charleston. It is to be supposed, from the accounts given by the city papers, that they are completed, or sufficiently so to release a number of work-men from employment upon them. Now what we desire to ask is this: Is there any better place than Charleston, or any better time than the present, to begin, with the united forces, work-shops, and other facilities, called into exercise by these two boats, the immediate construction of still another gun-boat that shall be able to compete with the most formidable of the enemy's fleet? It is all-important that one port be saved to the Confederacy beyond peradventure, that port is surely Charleston. And to this end, can the government be too energetic in its operations, or too lavish in its expenditures? Is it not then well to keep striking while the iron is hot, and to employ the whole strength of the operative labor engaged upon the smaller boats to put together either a new boat of larger dimensions, or a powerful floating battery to assist the other defenses of the city. We can but think that such will be the direction given by the government to the present availability of skill and labor concentrated at Charleston.

The Johnson Rifles. This is a company in which Edgefield claims a special interest. By the return of the vote in the late elections, we ascertain that there are at least thirty-four Edgefield men in the ranks. The Captain is an Edgefield man also, and will do honor to the name he bears and the State he represents whenever duty points the way.

The Columbia Guardian compliments The Edgefield Rifles. This fine rifle company, commanded by Capt. Hadden Brooks, for some time through in the vicinity of Columbia, passed through yesterday afternoon on the way to their post of duty, raising the Guardian office as they passed. They are a good looking body of men, and their marching and evolutions were admirably performed. Capt. Brooks justly values the drill, and the efficiency and skill of his corps in the most difficult maneuvers, and evolutions, and he is proud to have the highest credit upon his rank and ability. Our best wishes attend the gallant Captain and his command; they will do honor to the high associations which they have inherited, and nobly maintain the noble cause to which they have pledged themselves.

The Extortioners. The Richmond Dispatch extorts and extorts the extortioners, as exemplars of humanity beyond the reach of execution, much less of expiation. Hear him express his execrations to the world, and hit 'em again, most excellent brother!

We have heard that one of our most exemplary citizens in this city has really committed but it is his heart to pray for the extorsioners, who are availing themselves of the necessities and privations of their fellow creatures to swell their ill-gotten gains. For common justice and since he has been so long in the world, he should be more merciful to others than he is to himself. We are, however, that motives of this kind will not reach the extortioners. It is no more use preaching to them than praying for them. They are too hard-hearted to be reached, and will not let the people go. If M. would let the people go, he would let the people go. If M. would let the people go, he would let the people go.

TO THE FAMILIES OF DECEASED SOLDIERS. The State Convention, at its recent session, adopted the following resolution: "Resolved, unanimously, that this Convention beget, most sincerely, to mingle its sympathies with the relatives and friends of those who have fallen in the service of their country, whether in battle, or from disease, or from accident; and that the Executive authority of this State be requested to collect the names of all such, and have the same memorialized in a suitable Record Book, designating the corps to which they belonged, their rank in the service, and the cause of death, as preserved against the archives of the State, as a token of respect to their memory, and a legacy of interminable value to their friends."

In accordance with the above resolution, I have been appointed by the Executive authority of the State to collect and enroll the names of our brave soldiers who have fallen from the commencement of the present war, that they may be precluded among the archives of the State.

As it is important, in order to carry out this laudable purpose, that the list should be as near perfect and complete as possible, I am, directed by the Governor, in addition to the information to be obtained from official sources, to request the families of our soldiers who have died from sickness or other causes, at home or in hospital, to forward to me their names, their rank, the date and cause of their death, and the regiment or corps to which they were attached.

Please address me at Columbia as soon as possible. WILLIAM B. JOHNSTON, Recording Agent for the State.

How old your baby was on the 10th of the month? As the Day goes back to you. While the candles were burning before the Lord, I got and purple dress. 'Tis Lane, like a fair young bride, Gazed in that mirror clear, While dimpling waters laughed for joy, And held her trembling there.

The Rebel steamer "280" has destroyed our American wharves off the Western Islands.

The stock of American Cotton in Liverpool was 17,000 bales.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.

Gen. M. J. Jackson passed through Columbia last week en route for his command. He had 700 covered by his wound.