From General Lee's Army.

ARMY OF NORTHERN VIRGINIA.

August 24, 1863.

The enemy have, as you know, a foothold on this side of the Rappahannock, near Brandy Station, in Culpeper county, and here, I fear, they intend to make a stand, not for a fight, but to keep out of one. The pickets are in sight of each other, conversing and exchanging newspapers, but seldom, if ever, firing one upon the other. Indeed, everything is so much like the situation at Fredericksburg last winter that the men are induced to think that hostilities have ceased. This is not the case, however, as the capture of some fifteen prisoners and a three bushel mail bag, near Stevensburg, yesterday evening, will readily assure us. This was done by a part of Hampton's South Carolina boys.

The main body of the Yankee army is in the entrenchments near Centerville, and not likely to move unless Gen. Lee should assume the offensive. There is, I am credibly informed, a few negro regiments in Meade's army, and these are causing a lively time among the white troops. If Lincoln's mind, he will find the negroes a worse element of strength to his cause, than the elephants were to Pyrrhus.

Moody, the gallant cavalryman, was certainly wounded in a skirmish, in Fauquier, last week, and has gone home for awhile; he will, however, be ready in a short while for duty again, and on a larger scale, let us hope; inasmuch as he has been promoted to a Colonelcy.

A big "picnic" was given in Edward Johnston's Division on Saturday last. A large company of ladies were in attendance, and festivities lasted from noon until sunset. Dancing was the principal source of amusement. Refreshments were abundant. Those who have a taste for such occasions were highly gratified with the entertainment. The invitations were issued by Brigadier General Stuart, Iverson, Walker, (of Stonewall Brigade) and Col. B. T. Johnson, as a committee. Many of the loveliest of women were in attendance to lend the graces of their presence and conversation to this occasion.

Colonel Battle, of the 3d Florida regiment, has been promoted to the position of a Brigadier Generalship and assigned to the command of Rodde's old brigade. He will doubtless make a most excellent officer.

The trial of Brigadier-General Jones, (of cavalry) will close to-day. Gen. J. has managed his defence with considerable ability. There is one other matter before the court—the case of Col. May, of the 47th Virginia.

The time for cool weather is not only approaching, but "now is." In this situation, it is desirable that our brave defenders in the field should be made as comfortable as possible. To this end let me suggest that arrangements be set on foot by your home folks for supplying the troops with blankets. I am told they are a much needed article just now and of course the need will be stronger as the weather grows colder.

Reviews and inspections are still going on, much to the benefit of the troops and the gratification of the fair ladies who attend them. Hith had one on Tuesday evening last, and Ramester on Wednesday evening. The perfection of Ramester's idea in drill is truly astonishing, and reflects the highest credit upon the proficiency and skill of that officer.

An order has been issued by Gen Lee forbidding or suspending heretofore the election of Junior 2d Lieutenants except in companies which have their full complement of men. The object of this is to do away with non-commissioned officers. Commissions are being received quite frequently from the camp of instruction at Richmond. They come in squads of about one hundred each, and are always allowed to select the arm of service to which they attach themselves, as well as the company and regiment.

A great many of the officers, taking advantage of the quiet that reigns supreme, have brought their wives here, and are finding quarters for them at private residences, and, in some instances, in camp. The unmarried boys are vying with each other as to who shall get furloughs, and thus be able to get married.—Cor. Richmond Enquirer.

Progress of the Siege of Charleston. CHARLESTON, Sept. 5.—To-day has witnessed another furious bombardment of batteries Wagner and Gregg, by the enemies fleet and land batteries. The firing was begun by daylight and maintained steadily till dark. A monitor is now firing at Fort Moutrie.

Another assault upon battery Wagner is deemed not improbable to-night. Since Tuesday night no further attack has been made upon Sumter. Brick-batter Sumter has been held twenty days against all efforts of the enemy's great guns by land and sea. Seven thousand five hundred and fifty-one shots have been fired at it, three thousand five hundred and ninety-five of which have struck out side, and two thousand one hundred and thirty-nine have struck inside. The flag has been shot away fourteen times. Orders against exposure having been rigidly enforced, the casualties are few.

WITHOUT HURK.—The Chicago (Ill.) Times says: There has never been but one ground of hope of success in this war, and that was in adherence to the original policies which would have preserved a united North and developed a divided South. When the confiscation and emancipation and negro soldier policies were adopted—and when, thereby, the North was radically divided, and the South united, as only a people can be united who defend their rights of property, the integrity of their hearthstones, and the purity of their women—when this came to pass, the defeat of the North was ordained; and so long as these policies shall stand, so long will the North fall. They are wicked policies, and God will never prosper the armies that uphold them.

Intelligence from Mexico of July 24, via San Francisco, report that the intention of the triumvirate to recognize the Confederacy is essentially foreshadowed by the imperial press. Recognition will take place as soon as the news reaches Mexico that Maximilian accepts the crown.
