JAMES T. BACON, EDITOR.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 31, 1864.

The "Extract from a Letter," though sent by a lady friend of Hamburg, will appear in our next.

Religious Notice. The next Session of the Edgely Baptist Association will be held with the Mt. Lebanon Church on Wednesday before the Second Lord's day in September next.

Records. We call the special attention of all, but particularly of our farmers and planters, to the eminently wise, temperate and patriotic communication of "RICARDO." So earnest and sincere an exhortation should not be lost upon our people.

Thanks. We are indebted to Geo. M. C. BYRNES for a copy of the Philadelphia Enquirer of August 10th. Gen. B. is now in command of Hampton's Division, and reports both that he has already been made a Major General. So mote it be.

Also to our kind and brave friend, Capt. James M. BRAY, of the 7th, for Richmond papers of August 15th.

"The Soldiers' Heaven." This is the name given by the soldiers themselves to the Ladies' Hospital lately established in our midst. It may seem a little like blasphemy, but after visiting this hospital a few evenings since, seeing all the interior arrangements, wit and cheerfulness, we are fully convinced of the wisdom of the name.

A Committee of four ladies (appointed on the evening previous, from among the members of the association) attend daily, and conjointly conduct the business of the establishment. They repair to the scene of action at 6 A. M. and adjourn at 7 P. M. Each of the ladies carries a servant, and each carries three meals for herself and servant, so that the provisions of the hospital may be devoted solely and entirely to the soldiers.

The bed furniture, table furniture and kitchen furniture, has been contributed by the ladies of the village, and the vicinity for five miles around.

Dr. A. G. TRAUER has volunteered his professional services to care for the patients, and is daily to be seen going the rounds among them. He is ably assisted by Mr. J. B. HOPKINS. This, on the part of these gentlemen, is an act of the purest patriotism. Religious services are held in the hospital each day, by one or other of our resident Clergymen.

The number of patients at present is twenty. Most of these came looking sick, worn out, and ghastly; most of them are now so far recovered as to be almost ready to depart. As soon as they do so, their places will be supplied by new comers. The hospital accommodations will be gradually enlarged, and soon the ladies will be able to entertain from thirty to forty soldiers.

"The Soldiers' Heaven" is fairly under way. God grant it may be as lasting as Heaven itself! And now we end by soliciting contributions for this hospital from all quarters of our District. Contributions of money, fish, fowl, vegetables, fruits, flowers, &c. The ladies in charge beg their sisters, even in the most distant parts of the District, to come to their aid. It is only by such contributions that this noble charity can be kept up. If every district in the State would entertain and support thirty or forty sick and wounded soldiers, how immense the good done! how God-like the charity! In these days, to take care of the soldier is our most bounden duty next to our duty to God; indeed the one embraces the other. We rejoice upon our noble women to remember ever these words of Jesus: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me." We enjoin it upon them to make these words their dear and sacred commission. Let this beautiful and comforting promise linger on their lips and in their thoughts whenever they feed, clothe or comfort a suffering soldier, or lay their hands upon the dying head of one out of those myriads Christ left for us to serve, so serving him.

The Edgely Female College. We congratulate our immediate community and Edgely District at large, upon the present bright and reliable prospect of a permanent female school of high order. As will be seen by the notice in another column, the Edgely Female College will be opened on Monday the 19th September. The Rev. M. W. SAMS is a Baptist Clergyman of the highest character and attainments—a South Carolinian, a gentleman, and a scholar. He is of an old and very honorable Danforth family, and has taught for many years in Greenville of our State, where his reputation, in every possible respect, is deservedly high. For the four or five years immediately past, this gentleman has been teaching with eminent success and popularity in our sister town of Aiken, and now comes to seek a wider sphere of usefulness in old Edgely. We welcome him most cordially, and bespeak for him the most liberal patronage and the kindest attention.

We earnestly hope, and fully expect, to see Sunday-schools crowding from all parts of our District to avail themselves of the advantages now offered. Let parents be fully alive to their duties towards their daughters. These duties do not all lie in the present. We owe much to future generations. A high and binding duty rests on us in which our children are chiefly interested. We refer to the education of the latter. Even the mighty struggle in which we are now engaged will not excuse a neglect of that. It depends altogether upon the moral and intellectual instruction which we give to those growing up about us whether the liberty which we hope to attain shall be of such a character as all lovers of pure religion and right government would rejoice to see established.

But surely our people need no elaborate arguments to show them the necessity of carefully educating their daughters. We conclude by exhorting the public to earnestly encourage and support the Edgely Female College.

Sergeant Major Stallworth. This brave soldier, young in years, but a veteran in service, has made our town a short visit during the past week. The 7th can bear unanimous testimony to his entire fidelity and efficiency all through the three years and a half of this war. No soldier has worn brighter laurels, and none wears them more modestly. We wish him continued safety on his return to the battle-fields of Virginia—and many a happy farewell in future.

Exchange of Prisoners. A report reaches us from a reliable source that all preliminaries are arranged, and that the exchange of prisoners will be resumed at a very early day.

We hear it rumored too, that LONGSTREET'S CORPS, which left Richmond some three weeks ago for the Valley, has returned to Petersburg.

Death of R. Jasper Deigh.

We drop a tear of sorrow and regret over the loss of R. Jasper Deigh, late Sergeant Major of a Georgia Regiment, the name and number of which has escaped our memory. Mr. DEIGH has lived for many years in the town of Hamburg, and was widely known throughout our District as an honest and high-minded gentleman, a merchant of the strictest probity, and a lover of his country before whom none could take precedence. His name belongs now to freedom and to fame! The subject of this notice will tell the time, place and circumstances of this good man's death.

"To the list is to be added another noble spirit who has given up his life in the cause, from wounds received in the memorable battle of the 22d July. Sergt. Maj. R. JASPER DEIGH, from wounds received in the memorable battle of the 22d July. In his death the community has lost one of its best citizens, and the South one of its most zealous and devoted men."

De Bow's Review. We have received from Columbia, where it is now published, De Bow's Review for July and August 1864. The publication of this sterling periodical, for fifteen years past the most flourishing in the South, has been suspended since August 1862—in consequence of the pressure of the war. Its gifted and indomitable Editor starts it again in the capital of our own State, and his guarantee of a large printing house there that it shall continue to appear. In these days, when good and useful reading is so scarce, all our planters and practical men should take Dr. De Bow. We all know what this Review has been in the past, it will be the same in the future. J. D. B. De Bow is still the Editor and Proprietor. Subscription price, $15 per annum, $10 for six months.

Port Morgan in the Hands of the Yankees. Fort Morgan, at the entrance of Mobile Bay, capitulated to the Yankees on Tuesday the 23d inst. The enemy's bombardment of the work for several days previous had been very heavy. Gen. PATER, commanding the fort, destroyed everything in it and spiked his guns. He and the garrison, numbering 531 men, have been sent to New Orleans. Our loss seventeen killed. Not being acquainted with the circumstances of particulars of this surrender, we forbear to make any comments. This much we know however, that it does not in the faintest degree necessitate or hasten the fall of Mobile. The latest despatches say the enemy has thrown a force of four thousand on the main land, at Grant's Pass, opposite Fort Powell.

Casualties in 1st S. C. Reg't. DR. S. G. MORLEY, Assistant Surgeon, 1st S. C. V., has sent us a list of casualties in that Regiment in the battle of the 16th inst., on the Darby by Town Road, Maj. A. P. BUTLER commanding, from which we extract as follows:

Field and Staff.—Wounded: Maj. A. P. Butler, severe contusion, right thigh; Lieut. A. F. Miller, Acting Adjutant, severe contusion, left hand. Co. G.—Lieut. W. J. DELPER, commanding.—Wounded: Private G. W. Hancock, leg severe.

Casualties in Co. I, 24th S. C. V. TAYLORS, near ATLANTA, July 30th. MR. ENRON.—By publishing the following casualties in this Company, you will no doubt greatly relieve the painful suspense of many relatives and friends. The gallant dead sleep beneath the mantle of military glory. Each fell as became a Southern patriot.

July 20th.—Wounded: Sergt. W. W. Precourt, mortally, since dead; H. C. Cox, slightly, head; Corp'l W. A. Yeldell, slightly, side; J. A. Rochelle, slightly, shoulder; James Wells, slightly, shoulder. Missing, wounded, supposed dead, J. B. Moore.

July 22.—Wounded: Sergt. Wm. McDaniel, severely, side; Corp'l G. L. Lamb, severely, right leg; A. Hodge, severely, leg; G. Barden, severely, hand; Jesse Prince, slightly, leg; William Augustus, slightly, hip; S. Prince, slightly, hand; John E. Bush, slightly, arm. Missing, supposed killed or wounded, and in the hands of the enemy, S. S. Crawford.

July 27.—Killed: Corp'l W. A. Yeldell. July 29.—Wounded: Sergt. Thomas H. Curry, slight, arm. J. A. TILLMAN, 1st Lt. Com'd'g Co. I.

For the Advertiser. A Card. MR. ENRON.—I see in your issue of the 9th inst., that I have been nominated by Companies I and K, 24th S. C. V., as a suitable man to serve as a Representative in the State Legislature. After gratefully acknowledging the confidence and respect reposed in me by my friends, I beg leave to respectfully decline, knowing that this place can be more wisely filled.

Respectfully, JOHN F. BURRESS. Longmire, Aug. 23d, 1864.

Terrible Explosion. Yesterday at a few minutes to two o'clock P. M. an explosion occurred at the Powder Works a short distance above the city, resulting in the death of eight employees and the destruction of the Granulating House, which was the immediate scene of the accident.

The quantity of powder exploded was we learn, very close in the neighborhood of 6,000 lbs. and, had it not been that the building was a light and frail construction, the damage would have been immensely greater. As it was, all but one of those employed at the time were blown into fragments, portions of some of the bodies it is stated being hurled to the distance of over a hundred yards. The names of the unfortunate victims are as follows: Tom Ford, Foreman; James Heath, James Shields, Thomas Keese, Benjamin Scarborough, Brantly Kitchens, George Hayes and Alfred Rory hands, and James Aikens, a detailed soldier employed as a guard. This latter was the only one not instantly killed and even he, though living some ten minutes after the explosion was unable to give any information as to the cause of the sad disaster. From the fact that a match-box was found in the debris, it is supposed that some matches, contrary to express orders, had been conveyed into the building.

It is not supposed that there will be any but a temporary delay resultant on the accident, no damage whatever having been done to the main works. Most of the victims were regret to learn were married men and leave families. The shattered remains of three of the unfortunate men, are to be buried this morning—Augusta Constitutional, 28th.

What are Christians Doing? To the thoughtful mind, our country is in a state of great peril, but by no means enough so to create despair. Our government and military are doing all they can to stem the tide, and our people are gallantly flocking by thousands to the front, to aid in repelling the invaders: all this will, in time, effect its object and relieve us from the curse of a hostile foe's presence. But what are Christians doing? Are they praying fervently to the Lord of Hosts—to the King of Kings and Lord of Lords—to Him who ruleth in the armies of Heaven and among the inhabitants of earth? This is their duty. Let them cry aloud and spare not. Let them unceasingly invoke the favor of Almighty God, and rest not day nor night, until he gives us a perfect deliverance from our dangers and calamities. Say, I will call upon me in the day of trouble, and I will hear and deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me.—Christian Index.

For the Advertiser.

Commissioners of Appraisement, Farmers of Virginia—Mr. Frohman's Letter to Gov. Ronham. We believe that it is a principle generally received among Political Economists, that prices begin with the producers of the necessities of life, and consequently, the value of labor, or the product of labor, is elevated or depressed, as the prices of the necessities of life are increased or diminished. Money which is the representative of labor in exchanges, money, by which we measure the actual or legal measure of values, is affected by the same law as the subject which it represents, and requires to be increased, or diminished as the prices of provisions rise or fall. Whenever therefore, the price of the necessities of life are raised, there is a corresponding increase in the wages of labor, and the price of products in every department of business, and of course, only a nominal increase of profit to the producer. Men are deluded, by the idea of large prices, into the belief, that they are accumulating wealth, forgetting that there must necessarily be a corresponding and proportionate increase in the prices of the labor of every class in the community. If the farmer raises the price of his wheat, corn, bacon, &c., all other persons whose labor is in demand, must meet him with elevation of prices, and values necessarily become adjusted, by that law of equilibrium which regulates a healthy state of trade. If the farmer raises the price of any of his products, from one dollar per bushel, to five, ten, or twenty dollars, does he not know that he must necessarily pay an increased price for the labor he requires, and the articles he consumes, and that consequently his prices do not in reality improve his pecuniary condition any more than the prices from which he started, and which were the legitimate and remunerative profits on his capital? In a word, that if he raises one, two, three, or five hundred per cent in his prices, other persons must do so in the same proportion, and the effect is to produce continuous fluctuations in the proper measure of values.

These positions are demonstratively true in times of peace, and with a currency recognized by every one to be unobjectionable. But in time of war, when the financial condition of the country is diseased, when the precious metals (which are alone deemed money) are scarcely to be found, and the currency consists alone of paper, resting on no valuable basis in the opinion of capitalists, far graver evils occur than any that we have yet alluded to. High prices of products are absolutely attended with the misfortune, or impoverishment to those who imagine that they are realizing wealth, because they tend to the expansion of the currency, which becomes more worthless in proportion to its increased volume.

High prices at such a time indicate a depreciated and worthless currency, and every accumulation of such paper currency is evidence of extreme folly. Men accumulate money either from the love of it, or from its capacity to gratify their wants and desires. If it is of itself worthless, there can be no advantage in accumulation. If it can gratify their wants and desires, it must do so at a very heavy expense, in the necessarily increased value of the articles which it purchases and for which such depreciated money is paid.

But if our position be true, that increased prices produce corresponding results—in all other departments of labor, then the surplus of even this depreciated currency, does not allow the producer any greater latitude of enjoyment than he possessed with prices at their normal or healthy point.

In a word, as it well said by a distinguished Political Economist, "Prices are as remunerative at one limit as at another," and consequently a farmer makes no more by selling his wheat or corn at ten, fifteen, or twenty dollars per bushel, than at one dollar, if the prices of all articles of consumption are increased at the same rate per cent, which they necessarily must be to enable the consumer to live. The effect then of the high prices of producers is evidently injurious to the prosperity and safety of the country.

These reflections are induced by the conduct of the people of Virginia, and the schedule of prices of the Commissioners of Appraisement, included to in the newspapers and in the letter of Mr. Trenholm, Secretary of the Treasury. By a faculty as unaccountable as it was dangerous, the Commissioners for the State of Virginia had fixed their schedule prices for wheat and corn at $30 and $24 per bushel respectively, for the months of August and September, and this too in the very face of the fact that the currency had been reduced from about $800,000,000 to $200,000,000 in round numbers. The farmers of Virginia, profoundly sensible of the fact that the increase in the prices of necessities inevitably produces increase in prices generally, causing uneasiness, a necessity for a further issue of Confederate Notes, and thereby a further depreciation of the currency, wisely and justly objected to the schedule proposed by the Commissioners at Richmond.

Was there ever manifested by a people such thorough abnegation of selfishness,—such total disregard of gain,—such devoted constancy in the cause of freedom? Virginia, glorious old mother of States, torn, lacerated, hanged, almost in ruin, yet from her desolation, standing forth the chastened liminary of a sublime National patriotism!

But in what light shall we regard the conduct of the Commissioners, in fixing their schedule prices at such exorbitant figures? These parties are Agents of the Government, (whose duty, and whose duty it is, to improve the currency by lowering prices) yet they were deliberately counteracting such purpose, by officially declaring in effect that the currency was worthless. Was there ever a country managed by such imbecility in Officials? The wisdom and patriotism of the people of Virginia however, regulated the action of the Commissioners, and reduced the schedule prices of wheat to $7.50 per bushel for the month of August, and $6 for September. This has been done by the farmers of that State, which is noted and distinguished by the energy, and which has been the grand theatre of a gigantic and ferocious war for four years.

Substitute for Opium.

The Medical and Surgical Journal is opposed to the "External Application of Oil of Turpentine as a Substitute for Opium in Intermittent Fever." Surgeon Kennedy reports the successful trial of this application, without failure, in over thirty cases. Of seven cases reported at the General Hospital, Clayton, Ga., the result was immediately successful in all, but in three of them the chills returned afterwards. "This mode of application recommended is: 'Half an hour before the expected paroxysm, a bandage, wet with the turpentine, is applied around the body at the lower part of the chest, the linen replaced and the outside clothing buttoned. If convenient, the patient should be placed in blankets.'" When there is a probability of the return of the paroxysm on the seventh or fourteenth day, the application should be repeated.
