OBITUARY.

DIED, on the 6th of Nov. 1866, at Edgewood, residence of her father, Mrs. JENNIE P. WHALEY, beloved wife of E. MITCHEL WHALEY, in the 21st year of her ago.

The Angel of Death comes with silent footsteps, crushing in his icy arms, the forms of earthly idols, closing the loving eye and hushing forever the seaher was the measure of a comthe voice whose echo was the messenger of a coming joy. Young, loving, and ah! so tenderly loved, she was them from her earthly home, to sleep in the bosom of a Hely and Most Merciful

Redeemer.

Words are poor, but memory, that best artist, keeps loving record of her warm and noble heart, her generous impulses, and that sweet unselfish her generous impulses, and that sweet unselfish kindness which endeared her to all who knew her. She was confirmed eight months before her death by the late lamented Bishop PLLIOTT, and died a devoted and consistent member of the Episcopa

"There is no death, what seems so is transition This life of mortal breath,

Is but a suburb of the life elysian

Whose portal we call Death.

Up in Heaven's sweet stillness and seclusion, By sister angels led,
Safe from all sorrow, safe from desolation,
She lives whom see et il dead.

Fair and lovely in her Father's Mansion, Clothed with celestial grace, All beauteous in Heaven's expansion May we behold her face."

May we behold her face."

Ored at Mt. Enon, Edgefield District, on the 24th of January 1886, WASHINGTON MAYNARD, M. D., in the 49th year of his age.

In the death of this estimable man, the community has been deprived of a skillful physician, and society of one of its brightest ornaments.

Dr. Maynard was peculiarly qualified for the duties of the profession of his choice. He studied to make himself useful-rather than eminent; and in the chamber of the sick, he appeared not only as the man of science exerting his skill to stay the terrible progress of disease, but also as the warm sympathizing friend, striving to excite hope and encouragement, and to pour consolation into the sad, desponding, stricken hearts of friends gathered around the restless bed of the sufferer. He possessed not only an intelligent and cultivato possessed not only an intelligent and cultiva-d, but likewise a serious mind, the native soil of every virtue, the single character that does true honor to mankind. His death was the result of honor to mankind. His death was the result of exposure endured day and night during the very inclement weather of December preceding his deat, in attending upon a sick friend. He left a widow and five children, with a large circle of relatives and friends, to mourn their irreparable loss; but we fondly indulge the hope that in loavier, the case of his profulness on each had a ing the scenes of his usefulness on earth, he has not, in the land of the beatified, the reward of a
