Better to hope, though the clouds hang low, And to keep the cyes s ill hited?

For the sweet blue sky will soon peep through,
When the ominous clouds are rifted! There was never a night without a day,
Or an evening without a morning;
And the darkest hour, as the proverb goes, Is the hour before the dewning.

There is many a gem in the path of life. Which we pass in our idle pleasure, That is richer far than the jewelled crown, Or the miser's hoarde treasure; It may be the love of a little child, Or a mother's prayer to heaven, Or a beggar's grateful thanks For a cup of water given.

Better to weave in the web of life A bright and golden filling,
And to do God's will with a ready heart,
And hands that are swift and willing,
Than to suap the minute delicate threads Of our curious lives asunder, And then blame heaven for the tangled ends, And sit an I grieve and wonder.

A Wedding Night Shirt.

It wasn't hardly the fair thing that the boys did to Joe Thomson the night he was married, but the temptation was irresistible. They could not have helped it to save their lives. I'll tell you how it

Joe was about the most fancy dressed buck in town-over-nice and particulara perfect Miss Nancy in manners,-always putting on airs, and more dainty and modest than a girl. Well, when his wedding day came he was dressed, trunk tive?—Milwaukee Church Register. empty, and his pants, especially, fitted him as candle-moulds, and his legs can dles run into them. Tight was no name for them. Their set was immense, and he was prouder than a half a dezen pea-

"Aren't they nice, boys?" he asked of the two be ye who were to be groomsmen, and see that he threw himself away after the most approved manner.

"Stunning!" "Gorgoous!" replied Tom Bennett, "Never saw anything equal to them. But, I say, Joe, aren't they the least bit too tight? It strikes me that you will have some difficulty in bending. wont you?" " Pshaw, no; they are as easy as an

Think of the Poor.

How much of true religion is connected with the poor! Christ seems to have taken them under his special charge. His Gospel was preached to the poor; and this was one of the signs which he sent to John the Baptist in prison. With His own blessed hands He fed the poor by a creative act, having compassion on them when they fainted. His miracles, we have reason to think, were, in a ma-jority of instances, wrought upon the poor; and "the common people heard him gladly." The apostles at Jerusalem were anxious that Paul should remember the poor. And when Christ shall sit on his throne of judgment he will make inquisition concerning all we have done, or failed to do, in regard to the hungry, the naked, the stranger, the prisoner, and the sick, and will regard us as having done, or failed to do, all this to Himself.

There are powerful motives to make us think of the poor. When it is well Stock of with us, we should remember them; when we hear the storm beating upon our habitations, and yet are securely shel-tered, warmed, fed, sitting over our books or among our children, we should think of the poor; when God has sent us some large or unexpected gains, we should think of the poor. If at any time, for a short period, we are made to experience cold, or pinching want, or hunger, or repulses from the proud, let us consider it

> LIVELY PROSE. -The following paragraphs have such a jingling sound that some people, who didn't know any better, might think it was poetry:

There is a blithesome maiden that lives next door to me; her eyes are black as midnight, and handsome as can be. Her cheeks are full of dimples, and red as any rose: and then this love of mine, too, has got a Roman nose! I asked her if she'd have me [that was the other night,] and room, but it enabled Job, as he glanced bushfully around, to see the sweetest face my, you are 'tight!'
