The Little People. A dreary place would be this earth

Were there no little people in it; The song of life would lose its mirth No little forms like buds to grow,
And make the admiring heart surrender;
No little hands on breast and brow
To keep the thrilling love cords tender.

No babe within our arms to leap, No little feet toward slumber tending; No little knees in prayer to bend, Our lips the sweet words lending.

What would the mothers do for work Were there no pants or jacket tearing? No tiny dresses to embroider? No cradle for their watchful caring?

No rosy boys at wintry morn,
With satchel to the school-house hasting;
No merry shouts at home they rush, No precious morsel for their tasting.

The sterner souls would get more stern, Unfeeling nature more inhuman, And man to stoic coldness turn, And woman would be less than woman

For in that clime towards which we reach, Through Time's mysterious dim unfolding, The little ones with cherub smile Are still our Father's face beholding.

So said His voice, in whom we trust, When, in Judea's realm a preacher, He made a child confront the proud, And be in simple guise their teacher.

Life's song, indeed, would lose its charms,
Were there no babies to begin it;
A doleful place this world would be
Were there no little people in it.
