A Living Headless Child. The D posit (N. Y.) Courier is responsi ble for the following marvelous story:

In the vicinity of Spoon river in Illinois, 's a child that was born and has lived five years without a head. Mrs. ---, the mother, is the widow of a soldier, formerly living in Marshall county, who enlisted in the sixty fifth or Scotch regiment, and was killed at the battle of Lexington, Missouri. She was standing beside her husband during an engagement, when a cannon ball carried his head completely away, his body falling into her arms and covering her with blood.

there being no neck, the power of turning its an Agriculturalist; and we hearly congratulate head is wanting, except as the whole body is singular faculty it possesses of turning its eyes in their sockets, enabling it to see quite as well on either side as those more perfectly framed. The upper portion of its body is white as the purest Caucisian; from the waist downward is blood red. This strange creature, now an active boy of five years old as if to compensate for his deformity, possesses the most clear and bird like tones ever listened to, singing with singular correctness everything it may hear, and its voice at this early age accomplishes two octaves easily.

AN EPISODE .- A few evenings since the isual quiet which prevails near the junction of St. Anne and Peters streets, was fearfully disturbed by the frantic wailings of a woman evidently in distress. The cries proceeded from a second story room, fronting on a gal-lery. Several citizens and an officer immediately rushed to the place. Ascending hastily a flight of steps, they knocked loudly for admittance at the first door. It was secure ly locked, however, and no attempt was made by the inmates to undo the fastenings. The cries continuing, the door was burst open and the men sprang into the room. Here a sight me, their eyes which even their hearts were unable to contemplate with indifference. The room was inhabited by an organ grinder a low chair, hugging frantically to her bosom a sick monkey; and her husband, on his knees, was besieging every saint in the calendar to spare the expiring animal's life. The fiat had gone forth, however, and even as they importuned, the unhappy monkey became debowed heads and muffled tread .- N. O. Pic-

Metaire ridge, known as The Oaks, was the scene yesterday morning of a sanguinary duel between two young men of this city, which has rarely had its parallel in the annals of the code either in this country or in Europe. The antagonists pre the one a native Creole of New Orleans, the other a Frenchman by birth; the provocation a blow in the face, at the hand of the Creole; the weapons were broad-swords; the hour daybreak. Arrived on the field, accompanied by their seconds, the combatants stripped to the waist, and sword in hand, in the freezing air of the morning, sprung at each other like tigers. There was no hesitation or playing to try each other's skill. A few unges and cuts were successfully parried; when suddenly an up cut from the Frenchman's sword wounded his opponent in the right arm. The riposte from the Creole laid open the Frenchman's left cheek, laying the inside open and exposing his teeth. Nothing daunted, the wounded man stepped back, had a handkerchief bound round his face and again put himself in attitude of offence. His first lunge penetrated the breast of his antagonist, between the rib and the skin, but it was made with such relentless force that it passed also through the off arm. An attempt was made at this moment by the seconds to stop the matter at that point, but the man with the handkerchief around his jaws rushed at the second who was most anxious to settle the matter, sword in hand, asseverating that naught should quiet his animosity except a cut across his throat. The battle was renewed and lasted until the Creole received eight wounds and the other six-all sewere and painful, but none, it is hoped, damerous. Both men displayed extraordinary courage, animosity and endurance; and during the course of the bloody encounter neither was willing to give up the contest until both had to let their hands fall helpless to their sides from loss of, blood and the pain of their wounds. The parties were carried home, after having their wounds dressed; and though the Creole had two more wounds, his situation was more comfortable and less critical than that of his antagonist."

The champion eater of the United States named Joshua Plumb. A few days ago he entered a restaurant in Hudson, New York, and offered to eat all that any one would pay for. The challenge having been accepted, he disposed of the following articles: Ten pieces of apple pie, and a handsome and well-prepared collation set six corn cakes, a quarter of a pound of crackers, six cups of peanuts, thirty pickled clams, four lemons, an ounce of candy, and two bowls of clam soup. He then drank six tumblors of water and offered to eat a hundred raw oysters. No one doubted his ability to accomplish the feat, but no one was willing to pay for the oysters, and s, he went off grumbling that he wasn't half full.

Agricultural Tools.

The improvement in Agricultural Tools within the last few years, almost passes belief. We have just got up from reading a descriptive catalogue of Messrs, John & Thos. A. Bones, the widelyknown Hardware Dealers of Augusta; and, really, we cannot help wondering that our farmers are still so behind hand in availing themselves of the many admirable improvements described in said catalogue. Among many implements highly recommended, we would mertion Collins' Solid Cast Steel Plows, and a certain kind of new Harrow which revolves and goes ahead at the same time. Our farmers and planters would do well to consult our new advertisement from the Messrs. BONES.
