

THE ADVERTISER.

EDGEFIELD, S. C., MARCH 21, 1871.

Our To-Day's Supplement.

We call the attention of our readers to our Supplement accompanying this issue in reference to the "Carolina Fertilizer," and other fertilizers on sale by the thoroughly reliable House of Geo. W. Williams & Co. of Charleston. They are undoubtedly offering inducements to planters, and inducements such as our planting friends will hazard but little in taking advantage of. Read the Supplement.

Arrest of Suspected Parties.

On Saturday last, three negroes, two men and one woman, were brought to this place, by Capt. CHAS. V. HAMILTON, of the Baskinville Ferry section, and lodged in jail. Their names are Houston Abney, Ellen J. Ayer, his wife, and Thomas Perry. They are suspected of the murder of the Rev. Mr. HARRISON, which took place on Saturday three or four weeks back. It is reported, in fact that Capt. HAMILTON, by adroit management and questioning, has drawn from them a confession of their guilt.

Personal.

Many friends of Maj. T. W. Woodward, of Winthrop, S. C. were pleased to meet him in our village last week.

Maj. Woodward, one of the Vice-Presidents of our State Agricultural Society, was returning from Mason, where he had been as a Delegate from our State to the Agricultural Congress of Georgia.

Maj. Woodward has given much of his time to develop the resources of our State and to advance agriculture.

It gives us great pleasure to have him amongst us. He was the guest of Gen. GARY.

A Charming Programme.

We have before us a Programme of the "Horticultural Exhibition of the Cotton States Mechanics and Agricultural Fair Association," to be held under the auspices of the Association, on their beautiful grounds in the city of Augusta, on Wednesday and Thursday, May 10th and 11th, 1871.

This exhibition will be a paradise of Fruits, Flowers and Vegetables. And there will be none of the hazy-burly and jim-jam of the crowded fall exhibitions. We earnestly hope to be able to attend. As we have often said before, "The Ingenuity of the South is in its Fruits." In our Catalogue for 1871, that he has named a new and splendid double Petunia, "Mrs. Pickens," in compliment to our beautiful and distinguished townsman.

An Important Enterprise.

The Charleston News says General M. C. Butler and General M. W. Gary, at Edgefield, and Mr. JOHN GRADY, of Charleston, have associated themselves together in a general land and immigration business, the object of which is to have agents in Europe, who will furnish by circular all the necessary information required by emigrants, as regards climate, soil, changes of land, &c., in South Carolina. The plan also contemplates advances for passage to this State to emigrants who cannot help themselves, and their maintenance for the first year in their new homes. By this plan it is believed that thousands of small farmers, with their families, will before long be arriving to occupy lands now lying idle in immense tracts, and eating up the wealth of the present.

Items of Interest.

The famous T. M. Hurler, head of the Charleston delegation in the House of Representatives, is engaged in an enterprise of considerable importance to Columbia. He has purchased a large tract of land, known as the Preston lot, and has in process of erection upon it thirty-two cottage houses, each containing four rooms below and two above. This section of the city is to be called "Hurlerville." And it is further said that this same Hurler and Gen. Dennis has purchased the "Kinsler" lot on Arsenal Hill, where they propose to erect a like number of tenement houses.

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

And we might as well add that the scheme for building the Blue Ridge Road is dead; killed by the very legislative hands that should have fostered and protected it. A writer from Columbia to the Charleston Courier, speaking of the Blue Ridge scheme, says:

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Multum in Parvo!

Our village merchants illuminate the Advertiser with their names, their doings, and their wares.

Mr. PENN appears as a Rat-Poisoner and Crow-exterminator, to say nothing of Morphine, Lime, &c., &c.

Mr. DUNN appears with a heavy Grocery aspect, and literally casts the public mouth to him. He is also a Lubricator of Sewing Machines.

W. H. BRUNSON flings out a banner upon which all manners of New Goods are inscribed. They are literally seen, for we saw them unpacked, only 2 days ago. They are to be given away, with utter contempt of money and price.

The CHARLTONS, like Abraham and Lohan, or such of his own way, Oscar goes to the left, and Tony to the right, while CHARLES disappears entirely from mercantile vision. See what they say for themselves. They will leave for New York in a few days to bring back all the treasures of utility and all the charms and graces of fashion.

Mr. SAMS' no list embraces what a well known old citizen of these parts, now departed, used to call "a morality"—and a tempting "morality" at that. Everything we believe that is usually eaten by man, beast, fowl or creeping thing. And besides all this, Mr. SAMS is a just man made perfect.

And last but not least, MARKET & CLISBY. Note them in another column. They swell like the waves of the sea, and will not be restrained in their onward course. Remember that "Excelsior" is their motto. Physicians, listen to their counsel! They will lead you to the fountain of life. They will give you the secret of health, and live with them permanently! Ladies, especially the young and beautiful, go and do likewise. But no! we didn't mean that of course. We meant, go and feast your eyes upon their blazing miracle of a Show Case.

One to Honor--Six to Infamy.

In another part of this week's Advertiser, we have spoken of the famous Greenville Railroad Bill now before the General Assembly. This bill came up for consideration on Saturday last, and was passed by a vote of 77 to 23. Of the Edgefield delegation, six voted for this measure which so uncharacteristically carries on its face the broad seal of the thief. Their names are Harris, Cain, Rivers, Lee, Green, and Kennedy. Their constituents should not allow such dishonest acts to go unpunished. The price of a vote for the Greenville Railroad swindle was at one time $200.

The man from Edgefield who voted against this bill was Dr. JOHN BANKER. He is minus the lucre, but he deserves honor.

This bill will very probably be killed in the Senate. And if passed in the Senate, it will encounter an Executive veto. And in the last extremity, an appeal to the Courts.

Prechers and Burns.

Every man (says the West A. B. Presbyterian) has his standard of excellence—a standard by which he weighs the words of men and things. Some men are a little peculiar in their notions. Gov. Scott, of South Carolina, seems to be a little different from some other men in several respects. Here is an instance of it: A few weeks ago a Methodist minister of good repute was severely murdered in Edgefield, while sitting at his own fire, in his own home, and Gov. Scott, in Three Hundred Dollars for the apprehension of the guilty party. About the same time a certain gentleman had his gin house burned in Newberry, and the Governor, in the exercise of his gubernatorial functions, offers a reward of Five Hundred Dollars for the apprehension of the perpetrators! A poor Methodist preacher is worth $300, but a gin house is worth $500! Well, it is probable that the Governor thinks that preachers are dear at any price. Cotton is king.

Liberal Views.

The Quilman (Gaz. Banner) takes a liberal view of the late Ku Klux proceedings in Union. Noting that affair, the Banner says: "In the main, we are opposed to mob violence; but the deplorable condition of affairs in South Carolina is such, that for the preservation of the lives and property of good citizens, an incorporation of the Ku Klux Klan is necessary. Consequently, the greatest sticklers for the enforcement of and acquiescence in law, must applaud the conduct of the citizens of South Carolina.

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Legislative Proceedings.

On Tuesday, the 21st inst, another election was held for Judge of the 7th Judicial Circuit, and Col. Montgomery Moses, of Sumter, was again elected. The Senate voted almost unanimously for Genl. McGowan, of Abbeville. Col. Montgomery Moses is a brother of Chief Justice Moses, and an uncle of the Speaker of the House. The reason of Radicalism in South Carolina has, therefore, fitted the unfortunate family in high places, and put money in their purses.

The Judiciary Committee of the House have reported favorably upon the bill to vest in the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House, power to call extra sessions of the General Assembly. What's the wisdom of this?

Mr. KIMPTON, the Financial Agent of the State, has handed to the Clerk of the Senate his reply to the interrogatories propounded him by the Senate in reference to the land scrip and Land Commission bonds. He says that the bonds issued by the Land Commissioner, for the purchase of lands, still remain unsold, and have been used as collateral security for advances made on account of State Treasurer's drafts. Also, that the Agricultural Land Scrip was sold to Mr. J. Thompson, of the First National Bank of New York, on the 25th of October last, at 72c cents per acre cash, and the proceeds invested in State bonds, which are now in his hands.

The Railroad Committee has submitted a Report granting to the Greenville Railroad a guarantee by the State of One Million Six Hundred Dollars for repairs, and Ten Thousand Dollars for every mile of new road built. This is the grand scheme of the session for further plundering the people of their money and impairing their credit. New York speculators are at the bottom of it, and to further their plans, they keep an open bar in the Judiciary committee room, where the members of the House are invited to drink and smoke free of charge.

Gov. Scott, it is said, is resolute in his stand against this scheme. He declares he will stick at nothing to defeat all bills which, for any purpose, increase the State debt.

The luxurious and extravagant fitting up of the House of Representatives has been the theme of much comment and reproach. The latest upon this subject is that the House has adopted the resolution that every member of the House should be furnished with a carriage, and that the State should pay for a coach and driver for each member.

Forty Everlasting stealings! Senator Armin, however, has introduced a resolution, which has been adopted by the Senate, protesting against the payment of this sixty thousand dollars.

The attempt to re-establish the Urury law met its death on Friday last in the Senate. The enacting clause was stricken out by an almost unanimous vote.

The iniquitous Greenville Railroad bill was passed to a third reading in the House, on Friday last.

The bill for establishing the new County of Aiken, which passed the House some ten days ago, has also been passed to its third reading in the Senate. There is but little doubt that the new County will be established. In this case, we love, if we are not mistaken, Hamburg, Graniteville, and the line of the S. C. Railroad. And here we will be left, stuck off on one side of a still huge District.

European News.

London, February 24.

The Standard's special from Versailles announces that the Treaty of Peace has been signed by Thiers and Bismarck.

Some details unarranged will be adjusted tomorrow.

France pays to Germany three hundred and twenty million francs.

Alsace and Lorraine, including Metz and Nancy, are ceded. The German Army will not enter Paris.

Emperor William leaves on Monday for Berlin.

The Journal de Paris says Bismarck, at the request of Thiers, has ordered a cessation of all requisitions in all countries, and declared that contributions levied since the 28th of January shall be deducted from the French indemnity.

The Telegraph has a special from Paris on the 23d, which states that all the conditions of peace are settled, except indemnity in money.

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to get up a committee to investigate it, you suppose he wouldn't be credited again if he didn't pay something to prevent it?"

Creeping Their Lord for Money!

In Governor Scott's testimony to the Committee to investigate the affairs of the Charleston Blue Ridge Railroad Company, his Excellency charged the late Legislature with very villainous practices. And since one of his charges is equally applicable to the present Legislature, we reproduce it here. He says:

"I know of the fact, or have been told so by a hundred different persons, that money had been paid to get a certain report through at the last session. I want to say, by you suppose that if our Saviour would come here with a bill ever so good, and want to get it through, or if it would be to