The Squire's Mistake.

Squire Dudley was in his garden, pulling weeds in his patch of strawberries on the morning when he took a fancy for Ruth Lee's pretty face. She came down the road, looking fresh as a new-blown rose, in her plain calico dress and straw hat. Her brown hair, cut quite short, blew all about her face in little rings, and her blue eyes and bright cheeks made her as pretty a picture as one often sees. Squire Dudley saw her just as she came opposite the strawberry-patch and called out "Good morning!" in his bristly, cheery way.

"O good morning," she answered. "You almost scared me, Squire Dudley. I didn't see you until you spoke."

"Pleasant morning, isn't it?" said the squire, coming up to the fence. Ruth had bent in the road.

"It is beautiful weather," answered Ruth. "I told mother it was too pleasant to stay in doors, and started out."

"Are your strawberries ripe yet?" asked the squire, wondering that he should be noticed with a fresh, cheering face by the widow Lee's daughter.

"O, some of them," answered Ruth. "We haven't got one. Our old rooster got in one day, about a week ago, and pecked all he could eat, and then he pecked the hens, and between them they ruined our strawberry crop."

"To that!" exclaimed the sympathizing squire. "Have some of these, Ruth. They are just ripe enough to eat."

"He pecked some great clusters of berries and handed them over the fence to her."

"Thank you, said Ruth, smiling. "How nice they are. Mother was making great calculations on her strawberry jam. She was terribly vexed when she found out what the hen had done."

"I've got lots to spare," said the squire. "I'll send some over to your mother. If you have more than you want."

"Plenty of them," answered the squire. "Plenty of them. Can have them just as well as not."

"I must be going," said Ruth. "Good morning."

"Good morning," returned the squire, looking after her as she went down the road. "I declare, there ain't a prettier girl in town than Ruth Lee. I wonder some of the young fellows haven't got her away from the widow. If I was young, I'd marry her."

"Squire Dudley stopped suddenly. An idea had just flashed across his brain.

"I'm fifty," he said at last, after thinking quite busily for some minutes. "I'm fifty, but I don't look it. I don't see why I shouldn't try my luck after all. Girls as young as Ruth marry men older than I am. I'm sure she'd make any man a good wife. Her mother is one of the finest women in the State, and she has brought her daughter up to know how to work, and be saving and prudent. I'm sure she needs a home, and a husband, and a steady income, and a good, kind, steady man. Mrs. Brown, she's old and frayed and crooked, and this way of living isn't half living. I do believe I'll marry her, if she'll have me. Maybe Charley'll say it's foolish, but I can't help that."

"The squire felt to wedding out his strawberries again, and kept thinking about Ruth all the while. Long before dinner was ready he had fully made up his mind to propose marriage to Ruth, and bring home a new housekeeper and mistress to the great house where mistress had been dead for ten years or more. He decided, of course, that Ruth didn't say no, and the squire thought there wasn't much danger of that; though why she should be so sure, I can't say.

"Don't you think we need a housekeeper?" he said to his son Charley that afternoon. "They sat on the veranda. The squire evidently saw some new feature in the landscape, for he kept his face turned away from Charley's as he spoke.

"A housekeeper?" asked Charley. "We've got one. What do we want of more, I should like to know?"

"Yes, I know," assented the squire, turning red in the face, and beginning to get a little uneasy. "But Mrs. Brown isn't such a woman as we need. She doesn't take an interest in the work—as a woman would who—who had more interest in it."

"At which extremely logical argument the squire got more fidgety than ever.

"I understand that," answered Charley. "If she had a personal interest in the place, and in being prudent and keeping things up, she'd be a better than the one now. Now, she's a her pap for the work, and she's all the care for. It's all we can expect of her."

"Just so," said the squire, glad to know that Charley agreed with him. "I've been thinking this morning that the best thing I could do would be to get some one who would take a personal interest in matters. I don't see as if you intend to get married, and if you won't, I don't know but I'd better."

"The squire breathed easier. The worst part was over with.

"You get married," exclaimed Charley in intense anger. "Why, I don't know that you ever thought of such a thing."

Insurance Notice.

The Undersigned having established his office at Edgfield, as General Agent for the Cotton States Life Insurance Company, invites attention to one or two of the advantages offered those who may desire to effect insurance on their lives in a safe Home Company.

The Board of Managers at recent meeting passed unanimously the following Resolution:

Resolved, That in view of the fact that there are unusually large sums paid for Life Insurance, to the Companies of the North and East, which sums, being there invested, contribute to the enrichment of those sections, while our own South is greatly in need of cash capital to prosecute successfully our Agricultural and Mechanical enterprises, it is ordered, that for the purpose of retaining these sums in our State, hereafter a certain proportion of the net cash receipts from premiums, and being to not more than 10 per cent. of the same be invested in such manner as may be in accordance with the regulations of the Company, in those sections from which the said premiums are obtained.

(Signed) WM. B. JOHNSON, Pres't.

George S. O'Beir, Sec'y.

In accordance with the above Resolution a Board of Advisory Trustees has been regularly organized at Edgfield, C. H., S. C., with the following Officers, viz:

Wm. T. Gary, President.
Capt. B. C. Bray, Vice President.
R. O. Sims, Esq., Secretary.

This Board is now prepared to transact business, and invest the funds of the Company agreeable to the prescribed regulations.

The Financial strength of the Company places it in high rank. Its last Annual Statement shows that the Company possess, besides its large Guarantee, $170 for every $100 of its liability.

M. W. ABNEY, General Agent.

INSURE YOUR LIFE.

IN THE

Brooklyn Life Insurance Co.

Of New York.

Cash Capital and Assets, Over $2,000,000.

1. Because it is acknowledged to be perfectly solvent by all Insurance Commissioners.
2. Because it endorses the Surrender Value on its Policies, in Dollars and Cents, for ten consecutive years.
3. According to the statement of the rates of the different Life Insurance Companies of first-class standing in the United States, made by "The Universal," in its advertisement entitled "Facts are Stubborn Things," and published in the Edgfield Advertiser, it appears that the Mutual Rates of the Brooklyn are Cheaper than those of any named Company.
For instance, according to that statement:

At the age of 20,	At the age of 30,	At the age of 40,
$100 Will Insure	$100 Will Insure	$100 Will Insure

The greatestly advantageous feature of the Brooklyn in endorsing the Surrender Value upon its Policies, in Dollars and Cents, for ten consecutive years, has met with unequalled praise from the most celebrated American Actuaries, as also from the Press, East, North and South.

The Hon. Eliza Wright, who is admitted to be the greatest Insurance Mathematician and Actuary in America, congratulating the Brooklyn upon this new and distinctive feature, says, among other things, "I am particularly pleased by your departure in the right direction from the ordinary method of computing the Surrender Value." "One of the greatest disappointments of the popularity of Life Insurance, has been the dissipation of the surrender value paid." "All this would have been prevented by a distinct statement on the Policy, in advance of the sum to be paid."

This statement, it will be seen, The Brooklyn makes in dollars and cents, so that there can be no mistake.

Read What Southern Papers Say of This Feature:

The Sentinel, (Raleigh, North Carolina,) Jan. 27, 1869.—"This great feature of cash surrender values is an improvement that signalizes the era in Life Insurance."

Sun, (Columbus, Georgia.)—"There is no better Company in the land; a comparison with other corporations of a similar character, will convince all of the superior safety in taking risks with The Brooklyn Life."

Dispatch, (St. Louis, Mo.), Jan. 7, 1869.—"A Policy in The Brooklyn Life is thus worth so much in ready money. This is the only Life Company in the country that has carried this excellent feature (of endorsing the cash surrender values in dollars and cents) into its business." "Policy holders being doubly assured, the system cannot fail to become very popular."

It will be seen that we assert nothing in the above advertisement, but a simple statement of the superior advantages of The Brooklyn, as it appears from disinterested parties.

The Hon. M. L. Bonham has been associated with us in the General Agency of The Brooklyn for this State.
