

Death of Louis Napoleon. LONDON, January 9.—Napoleon slept soundly last night—better than he has been for some days. This morning the physicians had consultation and decided to perform another operation at noon today. At the time of the consultation his pulse was strong and regular—84 beats to the minute. At 12.30 o'clock signs of sinking appeared, and he died at 10.45 o'clock. Louis Napoleon, whose death is reported in the above dispatch, was the young son of Louis Bonaparte, King of Holland, and Hortense, Bechmet, daughter of the Empress Josephine. He was born in Paris, April 20, 1816, and was therefore nearly 65 years old at the time of his death. The Emperor Napoleon early in life devoted himself to the study of his mother, who was completely estranged from her husband, and after the death of Waterloo, retired with her to the island of St. Helena, where she died in 1836. Louis Napoleon was educated by his mother, who was completely estranged from her husband, and after the death of Waterloo, retired with her to the island of St. Helena, where she died in 1836. Grant and the Louisiana Muddle. WASHINGTON, January 13.—The President sent to the House of Representatives today a resolution, which is a part of the 16th of December last, a mass of papers upon the subject of Louisiana. The following telegram from General Edgerfield, New Orleans, 11th, the day the General's Office, closes the correspondence: "As Mr. Kellogg has been declared by Governor Nichol and the Legislature which he recognizes as the Governor of Louisiana, I presume it is desired by my instructions that I shall also recognize him, and shall accordingly do so, unless otherwise instructed. I addressed a letter to the General commanding the army on the 8th inst., but that may reach him in time for action. The situation is becoming more complicated, and in my opinion the use of troops simply to keep the peace cannot lead to a satisfactory permanent solution of the difficulties here."

THE ADVERTISER. Edgerfield, S. C., Jan. 16, 1873. A New England Editor Among Us. One of the oldest and most respectable family newspapers in Massachusetts, is the New England Farmer, of Boston one of whose editors, Mr. S. Fletcher is now in our midst. Mr. Fletcher, who is somewhat of an invalid, comes to the South in search of sunnier skies and balmy breezes. We find Mr. F. a courteous and pleasant man, and he is much pleased to extend to him the hospitality of the Advertiser office. His letters from the South to the New England Farmer are interesting in matter and kindly in spirit. We are glad to welcome to our table, each week the Anderson Conservator, a new and promising paper, just started in Anderson by Messrs. Brown & Well. We wish the Conservator well. Its subscription price is $1.50 a year.

Looking into Edgerfield's Indebtedness. People who have had a way in South Carolina for some years past, have not been particularly public-spirited, except in so much as it is possible to their own pockets. And now Edgerfield County laborers under a debt, we are told, of from Thirty-five to Forty thousand Dollars. But before this money is paid, there is a probability—owing to the public spirit of Senator Cain—that the claims and accounts of all creditors will be narrowed to a mere shadow of what they are. The Chronicle & Sentinel, commenting on the above, says: "We feel gratified at being able to contribute our mite towards immortalizing this noble act of a noble man. It is what we term, in the South, 'chivalry'; no matter how much our Northern brethren may sneer at the term and the attribute. The niggardly and inhuman policy of the Government and its officials would have confined these poor prisoners to the dungeons and left them exposed to the merciless severity of the weather, regardless whether the victims lived or died. With true chivalry, without caring what the crime or who the criminals, but only seeing fellow men in distress, the gallant Captain Lockwood ministered to their wants and provided for their comfort all honor to the noble sailor."
