THE KING'S RING. BY THEODORE TILTON.

Once in Persia reigned a king, Who upon his signet-ring Graved a maxim true and wise, Which, if held before his eyes, Gara him counsel at a glance, Fit for every change and chance: Solemn words, and these are they: " Even this shall pass away!"

Trains of camels through the sand Brought him gems from Samarcand; Fleets of galleys through the seas Brought him pearls to match with the But he counted not as gain Treasures of the mine or main, "What is wealth?" the king would say; "Even this shall pass away."

In the revels of his court, At the zenith of the sport, When the palms of all his guests, Burned with clapping at his jests, He, amid his figs and wine, Cried, "O loving friends of mine! Pleasure comes, but not to stay: 'Even this shall pass away.'"

Lady fairest ever seen Chose he for his bride and queen Couched upon the marriage bed, Whispering to his Soul, he said: "Though a bridegroom never pressed Dearer bosom this breast, Mortal flesh must come to clay: Even this shall pass away.

Fighting on a fuzious field, Once a javelin pierced his shield. Soldiers with a loud lament, Bore him bleeding to his tent. Groaning from his tortured side, "Pain is hard to bear," he cried; "But with patience day by day, Even this shall pass away."

Towering in the public square, Twenty cubits in the air, Rose his statue carved in stone. Then the king, disguised, unknown, Stood before his sculptured name, Musing meekly, "What is fame? Fame is but a slow decay:

Even this shall pass away."

Waiting at the gates of Gold, Spake he with his dying breath, "Life is done: but what is death?" Then in answer to the king Fell a sunbeam on his ring, Showing by a heavenly ray-Even this shall pass away.
