Death of Samuel Quarles Hammond.

This young gentleman, the son of Maj. Andrew Hammond, of New Richmond, on Savannah River, and Elizabeth Butler, his wife, died on the 27th of July, after an illness of only six days, and in the 20th year of his age. He came of a noble and historical race on both sides, and his traits of character were worthy of his blood. This is the second son that Major Hammond has lost within the past year—both victims of malarial fever. And now our honored and beloved old friend, feeling that to remain at New Richmond would be very unwise, has made up his mind to abandon his cherished home and seek a safer one. In all and through all, God grant that his lines of future may fall to him in pleasant places. And we beg him derest sympathy.

O. M. Stone to the Front Again.

Glad to welcome him, as will be all who wish cotton gins or machinery of any sort. O. M. Stone is the great Agent for the old Stand-By—the Gullett Gin. See Mr. Stones card in another column, and note what he says about the Ames Iron Works

How Reidsville, N. C., has Prospered.

We announced last week that two of our young townsmen, Messrs. E. E. Richardson and Joseph Lyles, were the successful competitors in the Louisiana State Lottery; the amount, $15,000, in actual cash, has been received, and deposited in the Reidsville Bank. This is one of the most successful speculations that was ever known in our enterprising town, and we congratulate our young friends who take their good fortune in so easy and matter of fact manner. Mr. Richardson informs us that it was a plain open handed business transaction, he invested $20 in tickets, and at the regular drawing it was announced that his number was the "lucky one" in a few days he was informed of the fact, and without trouble he sent the tickets to New Orleans, had it presented at the office of the Company—it was cashed, and in due time a package came to their address by Express containing the money in currency.—Reidsville, N. C., Webster's Dollar Weekly, July 25.

Wouldn't Give the Voters Tally.

Coriolanus, noble Roman,
Wouldn't give the voters tally,
Wouldn't tell 'em they were brilliant
Wouldn't tell 'em they were valiant
Wouldn't kiss the Roman babies
Said he'd see their dads in Hades
Ere he'd buss the dirty youngsters
Of a horde of swilling hangsters.
Said no office he would fawn for
No! his toga he'd first pawn for
What he needed; no, he wouldn't
Give 'em taffy; no, he shouldn't.
Thus it was the noble Roman,
Fearless, peerless Coriolanus,
Just as might have been expected,
Never came to be elected.

Horrible Death from Being Bitten by a Mad Dog.

We do not mean to relate an actual death from such a cause, but simply to warn the world to always go armed with a sure preventive—Penn's Bitters. Of course we do not claim that Penn's Bitters is an antidote against hydrophobia, except in so far as they keep the blood pure and not liable to contamination. The human blood, purified and enriched by Penn's Bitters is not apt to yield even to the strongest poisonous influences. Take Penn's Bitters for the liver, and live always!

Wm. Garrett, Esq.

Wm. Garrett, Esq., of the popular firm of Garrett & Latimer, of Augusta, with his family, is now spending a week or so at Johnston, at the Calhoun Hotel, now kept by Mr. Manson.

A Shocking Casualty.

On Friday afternoon last, as the youngest child of our friend Mr. E. A. Mims, of Johnston—a little boy of three years—was [illegible] was kicked in the forehead by a mule, and with such terrible force as to fearfully crush the skull. The doctors have raised the fractured pieces of skull to their natural place, and, very strange to say, the little sufferer, thus far, seems to be doing well. This is a very sad affliction and universal and intense sympathy is felt for the family.

A Fifty-One Pound Melon.

Our gallant young friend, Mr. Bud C. Etheredge, of Trenton, sends us a royal watermelon, weighing 51½ lbs. A royal melon in every possible respect—the royalest one we have ever seen or tasted. And all the languages of all the continents cannot express our gratitude!

Old Uncle Dan Holley's Reunion.

Old Uncle Dan Holley's annual reunion—away up on big Saluda—children, grand-children, great-grand-children, and a few chosen friends—was to have taken place on Friday last. Our friends, Capt. and Mrs. Clinton Ward, whom we met en route to this reunion, promised to send us an account of it, but up to this time they have failed us.

The Roads From Saluda Downwards.

Throughout the Saluda regions we have lately traversed—Commissioner Watson's Division—down by Richland Spring Church—and throughout Johnston Township—the public roads have been worked lately—and well worked. In fact they are in superb order. The overseer in Johnston Township is our friend, Mr. Wm. Lott. Three cheers—very loud and long—for Commissioner James Watson and Mr. Wm. Lott!

A Genial and Popular Lady.

A lady who seems to be beloved of all Coleman, Huiett and Rinehart Townships, and who is not only genial and popular, but fair and gifted. We allude to Mrs. Ben Perry, of Augusta, the wife of one of the sons of old Major James Perry, of Perry's N. Roads. This lady, with her two little girls, is spending the summer among the many relatives of her husband in the Saluda country; and wherever she is known, she is loved. Belonging to the low country of Georgia, raised in cities, educated at the North, a communicant of the Episcopal Church, she yet has the rare and beautiful faculty of identifying herself with whatever country, whatever people, whatever church, whatever circumstances may befall her. The truth is, her lovely kindness of heart makes all humanity her near kin.

A Candidate's Shirt.

At old uncle Bud Matthews' we sleep with a young candidate, who, just before lying down, hangs his shirt, wet with perspiration, in the window—high upper window—to dry. He disposes it carefully, letting the whole garment dangle in the wind, and placing the soap stand and several books upon the collar band to keep it from flying out. At midnight there comes a terrible beating, battering ram, but the young candidate waketh not. And we, although wakeful, forget the shirt. And now when the young candidate rises and hauls in the shirt, it weighs ten pounds, and the water streams from it in countless rivulets. And he has no other! And the situation is at once ludicrous and alarming. A very skimpy undershirt of crossbarred muslin will never do to appear at Richland Spring in. And uncle Bud's are not of an available pattern. So what is to be done? The young candidate almost weeps, and we solve the trying problem by taking our own clean shirt off of a chair and putting it over the young candidate's head. And then we cover up our crossbarred front with a large flat satin cravat; and nobody at Richland Spring dreams that we are so thinly clad. And we rejoice in the consciousness of a supreme self-sacrifice. For what more can a decent man do than to give up his shirt?

Charades and Tableaux at Ridge Spring

This entertainment—in behalf of the Baptist Sunday School—came off on Friday evening last. It was held in Mr. Capers Barr's furniture store, which was transformed by feminine taste and tact into a very pretty little theatre, and was one of the most complete successes in the way of amateur acting we have ever seen. As regards one of the actors, Mr. Albert Merritt, a young gentleman of 18 or 19 years of age, we have literally seldom seen his superior on the professional comic stage. And this young gentleman also plays on the violin with a tone and expression that are quite rare. But right here we would say that the exceeding grace and gentility of the entertainment were much marred by the unbridled and outrageous clatter that prevailed during the performance of the instrumental music. The singing hushed all mouths and commanded all respect, but the instrumental performances, though equally good, were treated with rude and noisy contempt. The performers in the charades, although very young persons, were inimitably easy and graceful. The parts were most admirably dressed; and from not one of the performers did we hear bad pronunciation or bad accent. The schoolmaster has evidently been abroad among the young people of Ridge Spring; and the said young people have evidently been abroad among the schoolmasters. There were young Watsons, and Nicholsons, and Merrits, and Boatwrights, and DuBoses, and Quattlebaums, and Holsons, and Swygerts, and Bateses, and Timmermans. And one and all gave evidence of culture of mind and grace of manner. On a beautiful stage and in a beautiful hall—such as Ridge Spring will have in the Female College building—we would go far to see a repetition of this most admirable amateur entertainment.

An Edgefield Padgett in Augusta.

An Edgefield Padgett in Augusta selling Furniture, Mattresses, Clocks, etc., The cheapest house of this sort in the city. Of course Edgefield will rally to L. F Padgett. See his card in another column.

Picnic at Dr. Self's.

The social picnic at Dr. Self's, in the Pleasant Lane section, on Saturday last, was a very pleasant and hospitable affair. Many of the candidates were present, and most of them addressed the assembly. The Hon. James Strom acted as chairman.

Major B. F. Lovelace.

Major B. F. Lovelace, of Johnston, has been appointed by Col. H. S. Thompson, chairman of the board for Edgefield County to examine applicants for beneficiary cadetships in the Citadel Academy. The examination will be held on the 29th instant. The applicants are Harry Leard, G. D. Waters, E. B. Cannon, Hugh Villard, B. J. Crooker and J. W. Gantt.

An Ass.

Tillman's successor made an ass of himself in the closing of Congress. The Radicals let Smalls in but they do not love him.—Augusta Chronicle.

Grand Campaign Rally at Clintonward

From the officers of the Clintonward Rangers comes to us a request that we shall announce a grand campaign rally at [illegible] beautiful little town on Saturday next. Distinguished speakers have been invited to attend—among them the State nominees. As regards our own county, all ladies, citizens and candidates are cordially bidden to be present. In addition to many other delightful features of this brilliant occasion, the Clintonward Rangers will give a social hop in Satcher's Hall. "To Clintonward on Saturday next!" is now the cry of all Edgefield.

Old Uncle Bud Matthews.

Perhaps the pleasantest feature of our late incursion into Rinehart Township, was the meeting once again with an old and very honored friend of ante-bellum days, Mr. Bud Matthews, whose home and splendid plantation lie on Cloud's Creek and Saluda River. Mr. Matthews, now in his 85th year, is too old to go to barbecues and public meetings; but after the meeting at Etheredge's we made it our duty to seek his home and spend the night beneath his roof. Before the war, the old gentleman was one of the most stirring, practical and prominent men in our county. He was always a magistrate and always a commissioner of roads, and always equally efficient in both offices. Since the war, however, Uncle Bud has kept almost exclusively at home, and knows but little of new men and new things. We found him sitting on his piazza at nightfall with a newspaper upon his lap. His eyesight is poor, but his hearing and general health are very good for a man of his age. His house was full of company that night, and his hospitality was warm and unbounded. Of his thirteen children and 125 grand and great grand children, only his two youngest sons and youngest daughter live with him. His wife, a very gentle and exemplary woman, is still living; and during our visit fully exemplified her long experience as a fine housekeeper. To have seen this old-time Edgefield gentleman again, and to find him in health, wealth and happiness, was a source of very rare enjoyment to us.

Richland Spring Church.

On Thursday last, for the first time, we visited this prominent Baptist Church, one of the Rev. N. N. Burton's. Richland Spring is in the northern part of Mobley Township, five or six miles below Mt. Willing, at the source of Richland Creek. The church edifice, a comparatively new one, is large, strong, well built and smoothly ceiled. It is now being reshingled. The situation and grove are uncommonly beautiful; and when the building shall be painted, which should not be long, it will have no superior in our county. Its nearest familiies are Edwardses, Mobleys, Forrests, Padgetts, Pous and Gilliams. The Rev. N. N. Burton was holding a protracted meeting at the time of our visit, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Cooner, and from what we saw, we should judge that the meeting did not end without having been richly blessed. A very unexpected summons drew us very unwillingly away from Richland Spring long before we had intended to leave.

Methodist Church at Ridge Spring.

Last week we were delighted to [illegible] conclude the speedy erection at Ridge Spring of a very large Female College building—under the auspices, principally, of the Baptists. This week we are no less delighted to announce that a Methodist Church is very soon to be built there—in fact to be finished and delivered by the middle of December. The movers in this worthy enterprise are "the Creek Watsons"—Messrs. John C., Stanmore & Artemus—Mr. Noah Crouch, and Mr. Joe Watson, of the Sam Watson fam[illegible] This will be the thirteenth Metho[illegible] Church between Trenton and Gilbert [illegible] low erected since the war—in the cou[illegible] extending not more than ten miles [illegible] either side of the railroad.

Our New Intendant.

Capt. C. L. B. Marsh is now Intend[illegible] of the town of Edgefield; and Mr. [illegible] ledge L. Holson has been elected to [illegible] the vacant place among the Wardens.

Senator M. C. Butler.

Senator Butler returned home a w[illegible] back, and left again this (Wednesd[illegible] morning to attend the railroad meetin[illegible] Belton. He will spend a few days [illegible] Glenn Springs before his return.

Mr. Frank Youngblood.

This popular young gentleman, for [illegible] 6 years past the right bower and [illegible] supporter of J. B. White & Co. of A[illegible] gusta, is spending his summer vacat[illegible] among us. In a week or ten days he [illegible] return to that great and marvellous [illegible] goods institution that has startled all [illegible] Southern world.

The Philo. Cactus.

On Thursday night, or Friday nigh[illegible] furthest, there will be a grand bloom[illegible] of the Philo-Cactus at Mrs. Wigfa[illegible] who will be glad to see any of her frie[illegible] and neighbors desiring to witness [illegible] beautiful scene. The Philo-Cactus i[illegible] superb species of the Night-Blooming [illegible] reus, opening between 7 and 8 and [illegible] maining open until midnight, when [illegible] withers. To all who have not seen [illegible] Philo-Cactus in bloom, this would b[illegible] very interesting occasion.

Jerry Ryan.

This is the name of a negro fellow [illegible] was lodged in our jail on Tuesday last [illegible] Messrs. Forrest and Rodgers of the M[illegible] Creek section. In October or Noven[illegible] last this man Ryan, then living on [illegible] plantation of Dr. John Mobley, cut [illegible] some rare shines and then escaped. [illegible] beat his wife unmercifully, stole cot[illegible] from Dr. Mobley, threatened to kill [illegible] and burn up his premises. He was [illegible] rested in Aiken County a few days ba[illegible] and delivered to Capt. Elzy Forrest [illegible] Mine Creek.

The Grand Round for this Week.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday [illegible] to be divided up between the protrac[illegible] meetings at Mountain Creek, Stev[illegible] Creek and Butler. Bethlehem Baptist Church.

A new Baptist Society was organ[illegible] in September last about one and a [illegible] miles Southeast of Batesburg, w[illegible] membership numbering about twenty-[illegible] The Society was christened "Bethleh[illegible] and Rev. A. P. Norris was called to [illegible] pastorate until January, at which t[illegible] he was recalled for the present year. [illegible] Society hold their meetings in a sc[illegible] house, but we believe efforts are to [illegible] made this fall to erect a Church build[illegible] more comfortable and commodious.—[illegible] Ed.

Maj. W. T. Gary.

The Gainesville (Ga.) Eagle says: [illegible] jor W. T. Gary has been solicited by [illegible] Young Men's Democratic Club of R[illegible] mond county to become a candidate [illegible] the legislature and accepts in a brief [illegible] graceful letter. We hope to see M[illegible] elected. The old time chivalr[illegible] the South has no nobler representat[illegible] and he would be a valuable acquisitio[illegible] Georgia's legislative department.

No Longer a Member.

The Hon. J. C. Sheppard, who for [illegible] years past has been a member of the S[illegible] Executive Committee, no longer belo[illegible] to that body. The members from [illegible] 2nd Congressional District are G[illegible] Croft, D. P. Sojourner and C. J. C. P[illegible] son.

Sardis and Pine Pleasant.

In marking out a grand round for [illegible] candidates, we omitted to mention [illegible] protracted meetings going on this w[illegible] at Sardis and Pine Pleasant. Sardis [illegible] the southern part of Rinehart, is on[illegible] the Rev. Mahlon Padgett's churches; [illegible] Pine Pleasant, in the northern part [illegible] Coleman, is one of the Rev. N. N. B[illegible] ton's.

The Dobey and Ready Hotel.

Two of our most popular candid[illegible] Messrs Dobey and Ready, have set u[illegible] way side hotel on the confines of No[illegible] and Rinehart Townships. This hotel c[illegible] sists of a clay roof and small persimo[illegible] tree. It is airy and cheap. And w[illegible] you have spent the night at it, you [illegible] extremely anxious for early dinner [illegible] day.

Rinehart, Norris, Huiett, Mob[illegible] and Coleman in Grand Soria[illegible] Array at Kinard & Riser's.

They are the First in Edgefield[illegible] Endorse the State Ticket.

Overwhelming and tumultuous [illegible] the throng of human beings at [illegible] nard & Riser's Store, in Rineh[illegible] Township, on Wednesday of [illegible] week. Rinehart poured out her d[illegible] tizens en masse. So did Norris; [illegible] did Huiett; so did Mobley; so [illegible] Coleman; and so did the Lexing[illegible] and Newberry borders. Men, [illegible] men and children—young and [illegible] high and low, rich and poor! A[illegible] all the candidates were there[illegible] the sixty five. And the gene[illegible] smell of barbecued meat filled [illegible] air for miles around. And "[illegible] blood of bulls and goats and [illegible] ashes of an heifer" made up [illegible] lordly sacrifice! And the Kina[illegible] and the Risers, and the Caughm[illegible] and the Crouches, and the Mathe[illegible] es, and the Rineharts, and the L[illegible] lers, and the Wests, and the Et[illegible] edges, and the Hares, and the Sh[illegible] lys, and the Folks, and the Wy[illegible] and the Bouknights, and the T[illegible] ters, and the Smiths, and the Lo[illegible] and the Derricks, and the Per[illegible] and the Mitchells, were full of g[illegible] will, and good courage, and glor[illegible] hospitality. And all the cou[illegible] was alive; and all the roads throb[illegible] with busy life; and all humanity [illegible] full of love and fellow feeling.

And at 10! o'clock Mr. A[illegible] Kinard, with stentorian lungs, s[illegible] moned the clans together to hea[illegible] candidates speak. The chairman [illegible] our scholarly young friend, Mr. [illegible] Sheely; and Mr. Adam Kinard [illegible] Capt. Joe Wyse occupied the s[illegible] with him. And as each candi[illegible] was called, he ascended the rost[illegible] and as he finished his say he b[illegible]

England's Dilemma.

England does not appear to prosper just now in securing an ally to complete the subjugation of Egypt. She has plenty of money and men of war, but a plentiful lack of "food for powder" in the way of trained soldiery. In old days, she found no difficulty in matters of this sort. Times have changed apparently since the coalition against Napoleon. The Continental Powers seem determined either to let Great Britain complete her task alone, or else drive a hard bargain out of her necessities. Pushed to the wall in this way, Mr. Gladstone acts like a man at his wit's end. Rather than fail, he will presumably concede to the Powers whatever they demand in reason. No one can blame France for holding aloof. She has a bitter experience of England's perfidy during the German invasion; and that recollection is intensified by the fact that but for her aid in the Crimea England would have never prevailed over Russia. Again, France has eminent hopes of a Russian alliance in any coming struggle with the Teuton empire. Russia cannot be blamed any more than France for declining aid and comfort. The humiliation of their country and the loss of Sebastopol are not forgotten; neither can the Muscovites forgive Great Britain for barring the way to a victorious march upon Constantinople during the Russo-Turkish war. Just as the will of Peter the Great was about to be accomplished, England interposed and blocked the road to Byzantium. The Turk need have no love for England, either, seeing that but for the promises of assistance, war on Russia never would have been consented to. Germany watches the whole game and is ready to complicate it for her own advantage. Italy and Austria dare not move without the consent of Bismarck, who has no more use for the Russian diplomacy than Russia has for the duplicity of the Sultan or the greed of England. What will be the outcome of such tremendous national and race antagonisms it is hard to say. The death of the German Chancellor or the purchase of an ally by British gold, or a Social uprising might change the whole drama instantly and tragically. At present, it would appear that England can make small progress without an ally with a gigantic land force, and no such ally is in sight. In case such a partnership were established, the complication might become more alarming by the roused jealousies of other Powers left out in the cold. The future has an ominous look.

MR. RANDALL'S GOOD ADVICE.—Mr. Randall, writing to his paper, the Augusta Constitutionalist, says: "Our people (the South) will have to bear many exactions for some years to come, but they will emerge rich, powerful and prosperous, if they send practical men to Congress, plant food crops, raise hogs and cattle, as well as cotton, manufacture raw material, and avoid the wildcat speculations as they would the devil himself."

Parksville Boys Bring Clark's Hill and Modoc to Shame.

PARKSVILLE, S. C., Aug. 9.

Messrs. Editors: Allow me to beg space in your valuable paper for a few dots from the West. On Tuesday morning of this week, about 7 o'clock, our little village was somewhat surprised at the sudden approach of the Clark's Hill Base Ball Club, in uniform and blue stockings. They came on horse back, in buggies and a four horse wagon, well equipped for the prize game that was to be played about 12 miles below Parksville. As they approached the village they yelled lustily for quite a time, and claimed that the Parksville boys were afraid to come forward. But in a short while they opened their eyes. After our boys had had time to muster up a little courage, [illegible] the ground for the game, after a hard and try[illegible] fought game, the Clark's Hill Club [illegible] world." It has been un[illegible] that they had a man along [illegible] notes for your paper, but for [illegible] he may not give all the particu[illegible] lars, I give a few myself. The most cowardly thing that occurred was the unseemly behavior of the wasp of this section. In the game a pair of the smallest legs I ever saw ran near some wasps, that seemed not to be pleased with the game, and several of them swarmed on the aforesaid attenuated blue stockings, causing the hapless young man to display more agility than he ever will again. When all was over he had quite a respectable pair of legs in a short while. The virus of the wasp improved his figure!

In respect to their umpire, Mr. Collier Meriwether, I would say he is the most impartial judge I ever met. It reflects great credit on the Clark's Hill Club to have such an officer. The Parksville boys speak in the highest terms of him and his decisions.

The Parksville club gained a victory over the Modoc club a short while ago, at a match game. Parksville never challenges, but is always ready to accept!
