NEVER GIVE UP.

Never give up! It is wiser and better always to hope than once to despair...

Temperance in South Carolina.

From the Temperance Worker. Mr. F. M. Bradley, Washington D. C. - Dear Sir: In reply to your request for information as to the status of the temperance sentiment in South Carolina...

This latter statement may appear at first sight to be made without sufficient foundation, but it is deliberately made in full view of the facts of the case.

The organizations for the promotion of temperance which originated in the State many years prior to the war had, at the period of its commencement, extended their influence to every portion of the State and embraced every element of society...

After the war South Carolina was among the first of the Southern States to revive her disorganized temperance forces and unite with the grand army which under a common ensign, was battling against the universal foe...

The history of the legislation of this State within the past few years shows the remarkable growth of the public sentiment on the subject.

Three years since without any special legislation of the question, the Legislature passed an Act absolutely prohibiting the sale of intoxicants outside of incorporate cities, towns and villages...

Besides this, by special Acts, in every instance where the respectable element in any city, town or village applied for the prohibition of the traffic, it was granted, and the charters of very many of the larger municipalities have in the past three or four years been amended so as to perpetually forbid the traffic within their corporations.

At the recent session of the Legislature a further step was taken on this legislation, and the provisions of total prohibition were extended over two entire counties, one in the lower (malaria) section of the State, where it was claimed that whiskey was necessary to keep the laborer alive...

In the few instances where the dealers have attempted to resist or evade the law, the courts have promptly imposed the strict penalty, and these examples have had the salutary effect of deterring all open attempts at violation.

salutary effect of deterring all open attempts at violation. To summarize the condition of the work in South Carolina at this time, I may say that there is, perhaps, no one subject upon which the sentiment of the people is so well harmonized and their policy so determined, as that the traffic in intoxicants is an evil which must be abolished.

Better Than a Lawsuit.

Not many months ago a man felt aggrieved at something that appeared in the Sun, and after blowing around for a day or two he came to the office to interview the editor. He explained his grievance, and would it up saying that his lawyer told him that the article was libelous, and that he could recover damages. The editor never had a lawsuit, and never wanted one, and he said to the man, "Partner, a lawsuit is a foolish way to enjoy religion. Now, I'll tell you what to do. You go to the president of the Merchants' Association, of which you are a member and I am not. Have the president appoint a committee of five men from the association to hear your statement. You take the paper containing the obnoxious article to them, and state your case, just as strong as you can. I will not make any defense. Whatever amount they say you have been damaged I will give you a check for, and we will shake hands and be friends, and go to the same minister preach the gospel. If I have damaged you, you must have your money, but we don't want to spend the balance of our lives in a lawsuit. The man stopped and thought a minute, and said: 'That is the fairest proposition I ever heard, and you don't owe me a cent and the matter shall drop from this moment.' If people would never go into a lawsuit until they couldn't go into anything else, there would be fewer men with enemies all around, and while lawyers might get their sitting around, it would do them good in the end.

We Shall Know Each Other There.

The minister of a fashionable church once preached a beautiful sermon on this subject. He drew the picture of a very beautiful heaven. We would walk in the sun-lit groves, by the music of the water falls, and gaze out upon Amaranthine fields. And there, too, we shall know each other there," said the minister, and then added, "there'll be no strangers in the New Jerusalem; we'll all be friends."

"A lovely sermon!" said Miss Simpkins, as she put her bonny hand into the minister's. She was stopped by a poor mechanic, who came up and addressed the preacher.

"Mr. — I am glad we shall recognize each other up there." "Yes," said the minister, "it is one of the greatest consolations of our religion."

"Well, I'm right glad we shall know each other. It will be the great change, though; for I have attended your church for over four years, and none of the members of this society have recognized me yet. But—we shall know each other there."

When an undertaker was putting the body of Catherine Mahone, who died during a spree, into a coffin at Kingston, Canada, on Wednesday, he asked the daughter of the deceased, Mrs. Gray, if she desired to have the corpse re-dressed. Mrs. Gray said: "No, chuck her in the way she is." When the lid was screwed on she leaped upon the coffin and danced like a maniac, and only ceased her antics when compelled by the constable. The whole family were intoxicated.

The Philadelphia Times appears to be coming to its senses. It waved the bloody shirt frantically when Mr. Carlisle was elected Speaker, but now it says: "Unless all the signs of the times shall prove false, the Republicans will find that if there is any one issue of which the people of the West are weary, it is that whose symbol is the bloody shirt. There was a war feeling here twenty years ago, but it does not exist to-day. An attempt on the part of the Republicans to make another campaign on the 'paternal' war with the idea prominently advanced that the West is still for war, will quite likely result in some surprises."

Better Dwellings for the Poor.

Nearly all the English newspapers and periodicals are discussing plans for furnishing better dwellings to the poor. Official inquiry has revealed a revolting sanitary condition of rented tenements, although much money has been spent during the last twenty years, building large blocks of houses for renting purposes. In England (meaning England proper) nearly two-thirds of the people live in cities and towns; and, consequently, the subject of public health is a matter of grave importance, as it should be, in fact, in this country, comparatively new as it is.

In London, which seems to be the unbroken population of the United Kingdom, blocks of wretched buildings are found where four families are huddled together in one room. People have been discovered so degraded that they prefer to live thus and decline to go into the new model tenements which a lower rent is charged. The tenement buildings erected by the Peabody trustees paid a net gain from the rents and interests last year of $125,000. The enormous surplus wealth in England could be profitably employed ameliorating the condition of the poor. In our own large cities there is a growing demand for similar investments and for the largest employment of sanitary engineering.

A Prehistoric Reservoir.

"I've seen a good many wonderful things in my travels," said John Gregg, commercial traveller, "but the Walled Lake of Iowa rather lays over everything I ever saw. Just imagine a body of water, covering nearly three thousand acres, with a wall built up all around it, not a stone in which can be less than one hundred pounds in weight, and some as heavy as three tons, and yet there is not a stone to be found within ten miles of the lake. The wall is ten feet high, about fifteen feet wide at the bottom and may be five on top. The country is prairie land for miles around, except a belt of heavy timber that encircles the lake. This timber is oak, and it is plain that the trees were planted there. They are very large. The belt is probably half a mile wide. The water in the lake is twenty five feet deep, as cold as ice, and as clear as a crystal."

"What I would like to know is, who built that wall? And how did they hold the water back while they were building it? And how did they cart those immense stones for ten miles? If ever you go to Iowa, don't fail to visit the Walled Lake. You'll find it in Wright county, 160 miles from Dubuque. The cars will take you almost to it."

A Little Heretic.

"That reminds me," said a firm steppar, who came in from Ann street, "that there is a little story about a minister's daughter that ought to get into print. She is a bright little miss, for 8 years old, and has a sister two or three years younger. The younger girl was enlarging upon the, to her, newly discovered fact that God created all things, when the older sister broke in with, 'Do you believe that? Well, I suppose I did when I was little like you, but I know better now. He couldn't do it. No one person could make so many mosquitoes and worms and lions and elephants and people. I have found that out.' Imagine the horror of the learned doctor over this little heretic at his own hearthstone."

A Late But Pertinent Question.

Subscriber asks: "Is it proper to eat corn from the cob, and if so, should it be eaten from the left to the right, or vice versa?" You are late in the season for such information. Yes, it is proper to eat corn from the cob, and at a boarding house table it is not considered bad form by the landlady—if you eat the cob as well. Touching the proper direction to take, it is purely a matter of individual choice. If there are but few ears on the plate, the wisest way is to eat from left to right, and then from right to left. By these means the time required jumping from one end of the ear to the other is saved.—Exchange.

Miss Rebecca Gray, an infant 15 months old and weighing eight pounds, was a litigant in Philadelphia for the recovery of a diamond ring, valued at $200, from the agent of a show in that city, where a midget named Hop o' My Thumb was on exhibition. It was advertised that the ring worn by the midget would be given to any other baby that could get it on the third finger of the right hand. Baby Gray succeeded, and the agent refusing to give up the ring, the suit was instituted. The agent, having to appear in Baltimore, surrendered, and the baby won her first suit.

Foreign papers of the 11th report that Vesuvius has opened a new crater on the northeast side, and that eruptions continue. An American has proposed to tunnel Vesuvius, and make a canal for the lava to run into the sea. It would render Naples too uninteresting.

Congressman L'Fevre of Ohio, is of the opinion that Senator elect Payne of Ohio, will be the Democratic candidate for the Presidency and that Democracy was never in a better condition nor more determined to make a winning fight next November.

Another County Heard From.

Mr. W. D. Garrison, a prominent plasterer of Anderson county, S. C., says he has used Norman's Neutralizing Cordial in his family and it has proved efficacious in every instance he had occasion to try it. This is the verdict from many and a trial will convince you that it is a good remedy.

The Danger of Judging by Appearances.

Do not chide the young man who uses profanity in the presence of ladies. He is undoubtedly ashamed of himself. Be charitable to the man of whom everybody speaks ill. He may be married to a woman with a mind of her own, or perhaps his neighbor keeps him in.

BUCKINGHAM WHISKEY!

This Whiskey is controlled entirely by VENABLE & HEYMAN, N. Y. It is distilled in Maryland, in the slate water regions of that State, from the small grain grown there. The distillation is superintended by a gentleman who understands his business thoroughly. Nothing deleterious is permitted to enter into its composition and none of it is allowed to be sold until fully 3 years old, in order to be entirely free, by evaporation, from fusel oil. VENABLE & HEYMAN offer these goods as perfectly pure, to fill a long felt want for medicinal purposes. It is their own brand, and they stake their reputation on the truth of this assertion.
