Late Immigrant From Edgefield Delighted With Arkansas. CABOT, ARKANSAS, Nov. 27, '84. Dear Advertiser: As a great many of my friends in Edgefield requested me to write them concerning Arkansas, send you a short article, which please publish. First, I will tell you about my trip. We left Batesburg on Monday, November 17, and arrived at Atlanta, Ga., 6 o'clock on ternoon. The Rev. J. M. Rushton will preach at Gassaway. The Rev. J. C. Absame day. Atlanta is a beautiful ney will preach at Bethany. The Rev. city, a city that the South ought to G. F. We left Atlanta 11 40 er the service hereof, exclusive of the clock, and arrived at Chattanooga Tenn., 6 o'clock A. M. It is a very pretty city, and has some magnificent buildings. We left Chattanooga 7 o'clock, for Nashville. The country along the line of Railroad is perfectly beautiful, saw many mountains rising hundreds of feet above the general Message of Gov. Thompson, or, rather, a level. Lands in Tennessee valley are good beyond a shadow of a doutt. Saw corn that has made at the least, this year, forty or fifty bushels per acre. Grain is up, and is looking well. To see Tennessee farms, is enough to convince us that it will not do to plant cotton for a living. We saw as many as a dozen mule colts do to plant cotton for a living. We on one little farm, and corn still ungathered to feed three times that number one year. The little towns Notice of Final Settlement along the line seem to be flourishing. While our spirits were highly buoyed up by the land gradually getting better the farther west we traveled, we arrived at Murfreesboro, the old battlefield of the Western army. Our hearts felt sad as we gazed at the old breast-works, and we thought of our gallant soldiers, how they lought and struggled for our rights. We saw the graves of our Confederate dead, with scarcely signs enough to mark their graves-while on the other side the Federals have a beautiful cemetery, with green grass, lovely flowers and tomb stones to honor their dead. The Confederates are sleeping under the sod of Tennessee with no mark tive Folk spent last Sunday and Monday of respect. We know that there is love at home.
