The "sociable" at the Werts Hotel last Friday night, was an er joyable affair. A large portion of the beauty and intelligence of the town was present.

Mr. P. N. Lott, in attempting, a few days ago, to shoot a chicken, shat tered five panes in a window belonging to the upper story of a neighbor-ing house. Some of Mr. Lott's friends maintain that the fowl was on the ground when the shot was made, but Mr. Lott claims that it was "on the wing." This reminds us of a fest of marksmanship performed, some time since, by Mr. B. F. Lewis. Mr. Lewis got the chicken that he wished about six feet from the rest of the covey, discharged his gun, and killed three of the chickens in the covey.

In speaking, at the Baptist Church of the character of Mr. J. A. Clark, who died a week or two ago, Mr. Hundley said: "No man is faultless: but Brother Clark's character was as pure and untarnished as human character can be." In conversation, Dr. Timmerman said: "The chief aim of ments express the highest eulogiums that can be pronounced upon a humon being; and we believe that they do not contain a tittle of exaggeration. "In faith and hope the world will disa-

The South Carolina Pottery at Miles' Mill is at present doing a thriv ing business, and it is likely to con tinue to prosper, as orders are received as fast as they can be filled Their principal shipping points are Augusta, Charleston and Savannah. They are manufacturing a very fine line of yellow and rockingham were, which consists of tea and coffee pots, nappies, pie plates, pitchers, spittoons, mugs, &r. Also, a fine line of English bristol stone ware. Mr. Geo. W. Lawton, of Trenton, N. J, and Mr Arthur Craig, of Scotland, are the practical Potters. There are also about twenty-five jother hands employed by the Company. The Pottery was built at a cost of $15,000, and is owned by Messrs Jervey, Drayton & Cahill, of Charleston, and is superintended by Mr. Andrew Craig, of Scotland. The Pottery is situated on Horse Creek, 5 miles above Vauc luse, at Miles' Mill Station, on the C. C. & A. R. R. The clay which is used for manufacturing purposes is system of theology.
