

Gov. Tillman has appointed Prof. H. T. Cook of Furman University and Prof. J. I. McCain of Erskine College members of the State board of examiners.

It is making those who oppose the present administration "so tired" to see decision after decision sent down from the Supreme Court of the nation "souping" our State court decisions.

Some of the Edgefield antis are now alleging that Ben Tillman has "bamboozled" the Supreme Court of the United States. The only comment we desire to make on this assumption is, that it takes a mighty big injun to do that kind of work.

If you wish to have a little fun get a farmer who voted against his neighbors last year and for Ring rule to explain why he did so. Of course he can give no substantial reason but the effort to do so will entertain you. We have seen it tried and it is as good as a circus—Medium.

Our State courts invariably decide all cases brought before them, in which the State is a party, against the State. The Supreme Court of the United States on the other hand as invariably decides in favor of the State. So says the Abbeville Medium and we find it so in fact.

It is not necessary to have studied geometry to be able to deduce a corollary from this proposition.

Gov. Tillman has refunded the State debt, the 6 per cent bonds being substituted by 4 1/2 bonds. This on the issue of $6,000,000, the present State debt, is a saving of $90,000 per annum. This seems to us to be pretty fair financing for a plain farmer, and yet the anti will tell you he ought to have refunded the debt at 4 per cent. But you will observe that John Peter Richardson didn't do it. Indeed, Col. John C. Haskell says the State debt could not have been refunded at 4 per cent, and he is the best financier and political economist on that side of the house.

RIGHT KIND OF TALK
The course of the anti should be to get a man who does a good thing give praise whether friend or enemy—McCormick News.

AID FOR CONFEDERATE SOLDIERS.
Governor Tillman, Comptroller General Ellerbe and Chairman Bratton, the special committee in charge of the distribution of the $5,000 appropriated by the General Assembly for the purchase of artificial limbs for Confederate soldiers are ready to receive applications. The money is available to those who received any portion of the fund appropriated in 1881.

The law does not make any provision for anyone who lost a limb or an eye who did not receive a portion of the last fund for a similar purpose. The fund in 1880 was $33,000 and was all consumed in the purchase of limbs. The present fund is to be used in the purchase of duplicates of the old limbs. It is desired that all Confederates be informed of this fund and that they understand its purpose. The money will be prorated among the applicants, as there is no other way of knowing how many of the former beneficiaries are alive in the State. The proof necessary is that the applicant received a portion of the fund when last distributed.

Which Side to Sleep On.
Medical Review: "Which side should I sleep on, doctor?" he inquired. "In winter or summer?" asked the doctor, rubbing his chin thoughtfully. "What's that got to do with it?" exclaimed the patient said angrily. "A great deal," responded the doctor, mysteriously. "I don't see it." "Of course you don't," said the imperturbable; "if you did, you wouldn't be here asking me questions about it." "Go ahead then," said the patient, sitting back resignedly. "Well," continued the doctor, "in winter, when it is cold, you should sleep on the inside, but in such weather as this you should sleep on the outside, in a hammock, with a draught all around it and a piece of ice for a pillow. Two dollars, please."

The Snollygoster.

The celebrated Georgia politician and humorist, Col. Ham, has added a new word to the English language—"snollygoster." This is the way he gives the history of this wonderful word:

"Along in the forties there lived up in the mountains of Rabun County, Ga., a man named John Kelly. He had a limited education and an itch for office. He ran for everything, going up by regular graduation from constable to clerk of the court and was defeated every time, but nothing daunted tried at the next election for the next highest office. In 1848 it came time for him to be a candidate for representative in the legislature. As there was at the time some talk of war with England over the Niagara incident, he announced as his platform that it was the duty of the president to seize all the roads leading to Liverpool so as to prevent a salt famine in case of war. As everybody recognized the necessity for plenty of salt, it was a taking slogan and Kelly was getting on swimmingly.

"Kelly's opponent was a tall, gaunt mountaineer named Jonas Gaines. He was justice of the peace, and to use his own language 'knewed all the law whatn' tore out of the books.' He had a wonderful flow of language, using all the big words he had ever heard and coining many more without any reference to what they might mean, and yet, as such a man naturally would, now and then said a really good thing. Superior court coming on in the very heat and burden of the canvass, a number of the lawyers gathered at the County seat from all over the circuit, and the bright idea struck them of bringing about a joint debate between Kelly and Gaines.

"Kelly had the opening and made a long, and as one of the lawyers described it, 'a very able-bodied speech.' He fumed and foamed and fretted, and worked his salt platform for all it was worth and sat down amid great cheering. Then up rose Gaines, his tall form towering high in air, and working his long arms like the sails of a windmill and in a voice that could be heard half a mile, proceeded, as he expressed it to 'take the hide off Kelly in flakes as big as a bound's ears.' He 'skinned him belly-wise up and backwise down,' dissected his record, enumerated his various sins, and among other things, said of these 'snollygoster' politicians: 'They are a set of fellows that will do anything to get a job, and when they get it, they will do anything to keep it, and when they can't keep it, they will do anything to get another one.'"

"Liverpool, hell! North Carolina salt is a darned sight saltier, and there's a dozen roads to the works. The effect can be better imagined than described. Kelly and his followers fled the scene, and Gaines was triumphantly elected.

"And so to this humble, but picturesque source, was the Georgia orator indebted for the word that has now by common consent come to stand for the Kelly class of demagogic politicians. It is one of the curious specimens of native originality which now and then comes to enrich our language and fill a long felt want of something to do the subject justice.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 21.—A special to the Chronicle from Greenwood, S. C., says: Sheriff Nance of Abbeville County to-day detained the through freight and material train on the Port Royal and Western Carolina Railroad by a tax execution. Both trains were stopped for two hours, and were ordered to side-track to wait the Sheriff's orders, but they pulled out and left the chagrined official to the amusement of a crowd of citizens.

Jefferson Democracy.
"Few die and none resign," is a summary of a phrase which originated with Thomas Jefferson. When he became President in 1801, he announced that all civil offices held at pleasure and filled by Adams after the result of the election was surely known, were to be considered vacant. Acting on this principle, Eizur Goodrich was removed from the collectorship of New Haven to make room for Samuel Bishop. Goodrich had managed the affairs of the office with honesty, ability and dispatch. Bishop's advanced age, feebleness and lack of business training made him an unfortunate choice, and the merchants were highly offended. Eighty of them, headed by Elias Shipman, signed a remonstrance. In his reply Jefferson said: "The will of the nation calls for an administration in harmony with the opinion of those elected. For the fulfillment of that will, displacements are necessary, and with whom can displacements more fittingly begin than with placements appointed in the last moments of a dying government, not for its own aid, but for its successor's discomfiture? If a due participation of office is a right how are vacancies to be obtained? Those by death are few, by resignation none.—Detroit Free Press.)
