CURES RISING BREAST

"MOTHER'S FRIEND" is the greatest blessing ever offered to child-bearing women. I have been a mid-wife for many years, and in each case where "Mother's Friend" had been used it has accomplished wonders and relieved much suffering. It is the best remedy for rising of the breast known, and worth the price for that alone.

LYNCHED. A Negro Murderer Met His Doom Last Night.

NAMED CALVIN STEWART.

Full Details of the Capture and Killing of the Black Scoundrel—Vengeance Promptly Meted Out Over in Carolina.

Augusta Evening News.
AIKEN, S. C., Sept. 27.—Calvin Stewart, the negro who waylaid, robbed and murdered Mr. Charles Carter over at Bath last Saturday night a week ago, was caught and lynched last night. He was captured two and a half miles from Langley, over on Rig Horse creek, opposite Bath, about 8:45 o'clock last night. The negro's hiding place was given away by some of his race, who sent word to both Langley and Bath that Stewart was secreted in a negro hut.

As soon as the information was received a crowd of about 20 men was formed, and they at once started on a march to the house where Stewart was said to be stopping.

Stewart heard the mob approaching and he ran out of the house and made for the woods.

The crowd saw him fleeing and made haste to capture him, and after a long chase for a half hour foot and on horseback they overtook the murderer.

It was as exciting a race as a fox chase, the posse fearing they would lose the trail, but they kept close behind and never let the negro get out of their sight.

Calvin trembled with fear when Aiken. The committee started from Langley about 2:30 o'clock this morning with Stewart walking along the dirt road coming to Aiken.

When the committee had gotten about a half-mile between Langley and Murray Town the committee with their prisoner, were halted in the road by about 25 or 30 men with double barreled shot guns, who appeared from behind the trees and commanded the committee to hold up their hands, which they promptly did.

The committeemen were then ordered to step back, and they acted promptly and left the negro standing in the road. As soon as the citizens stepped back from Stewart the mob opened fire upon the negro, and at least 75 shots were upon him.

Fully three hundred of the buck shots struck the murderer and he fell dead. His body was riddled with bullets from head to feet, and one-half of his face was shot off.

The negro fell in the road on his face and was left there, and is still lying there untouched, exposed to the rain, about 300 yards from the railroad track.

Mr Cobb says he struck a match and looked at the negro and saw that he was dead, and that his body could not have looked worse if three freight trains had passed over him.

The other, Dunbar, is held at Langley and it is feared that he will be lynched also.

Coroner Crouch at Vauluse has been sent for to hold an inquest.

Calvin, the other negro, is about 35 years old and is said to have three wives.

The Red Men, to which order Mr. Carter belonged, offered $75 for the capture of the murderer.

RODE A JAGUAR. A Most Extraordinary Thrilling and Exciting Experience

IN THE FAR OFF WEST.

And a True Story—As True as Preaching—A Western Man Rode a Jaguar for Twenty Miles and Never Fell Off.

"I had a large cattle ranch in Winchester Trigger Valley," says a Western man in "Harper's Weekly." "The country was overrun with Indians and wild beasts. I went out one day on horseback to look after some stray stock. When about twenty miles up the valley my horse stepped in a prairie-dog hole and broke his leg. I shot the poor beast to put him out of his misery, and proceeded on foot. I forgot to say that Bones, my dog, was with me. I soon found that my rifle was heavy, so I cached it and pressed on. I was going across a little open park, when I was startled by the fierce, almost human cry of a jaguar. I looked back and saw the beast bounding toward me, covering thirty feet at each jump. My first thought, of course, was of the unfortunate Bones. Tucking him under my arm I ran. I reached a small cottonwood tree about three yards ahead of the enraged panther and climbed it, still holding close to my valuable dog.

"We remained in the tree some hours, during which time the baffled jaguar screamed and roared below, and as it were eat the air to a foam with his tail. I remained calm. Poor Bones, however, was in a state of fear, and clung to me, but I could not speak. At the end of this period I seemed to be fading away from the earth.

"Then came my death, as I call it for I know my spirit left this earth, and has now come back. Out of the darkness before me I could see, as my eyes became accustomed to it, a misty light. It kept growing brighter and brighter. Then I heard voices, the voice of my daughter, who was dead, saying, 'Mother, mother!'

"Then a wonderful scene opened before me. It was like a beautiful green lawn, stretching away in the distance, while directly in front of me was a great river. I saw it plainly—saw the dark-brown pebbles on the shore.

"Across the river, at the gate of heaven, stood my own daughter, ready to receive me, and Jesus was there. When I was partly across the river my daughter opened the gate to receive me, but Jesus shut it and spake two words; 'Begin again.'

"At the sound of his voice—I can almost hear it now—I was again in this world, and I felt a wonderful joy. I knew I was going to live, but it was a new life, like that of a new-born babe. I had been dead, and all my sins of my other life had been taken away in the time of terrible agony. After this I began to get well.

NOT GUILTY. This is the Jury's Verdict About Tom Butler To-Day.

TOM IS FREE ONCE MORE.

The Conclusion of an Interesting Criminal Case Over in Aiken. The Trial of Mr. Tom Butler for the Killing of Mr. Pettyjohn.

Augusta Evening News.
AIKEN, S. C., Sept. 28.—Tom Butler is a free man and his friends are delighted!

The jury, after being out one hour, returned this afternoon with a verdict of not guilty.

The judgment of the jury sustains Mr. Butler's plea of self defense, and is just what was expected.

There was no doubt after the State's evidence was closed but what Mr. Butler would be acquitted. That was the unanimous opinion.

No one thought he would be convicted, for the testimony of the prosecution was construed as substantially warranting Mr. Butler to pursue the course he took.

Mr. Butler's acquittal is a complete exoneration from the felonious charge, and sustains his action in preserving his life against the peril of imminent death.

Mr. Butler was not in the least disturbed throughout the trial. He was not even anxious, for he felt as though he had done what any other man would do and that he would not be punished by the law.

Mr. Henderson made a strong and powerful plea for the defendant, and the clear manner in which he presented the case was convince-had killed her husband. The negro collectively replied: "For the small sum of five dollars.

The crowd then left Bath with the murderer and walked to Langley, two miles down the road.

Calvin confessed his guilt and implicated Steve Dunbar, another negro, who he accused of being his accomplice.

Calvin and Dunbar worked together at Langley, and he said he and Dunbar on the afternoon of the evening Mr. Carter was assassinated agreed to make a raise of some money, either by fair or foul means; that they met Mr. Carter at Langley buying provisions and saw he had money, and they settled upon him to be their victim.

Calvin said he followed Mr. Carter up the railroad track to Bath and Dunbar went by the dirt road, and they had agreed to deal deadly blow when they met on the railroad above Bath, and that when Dunbar joined him one hundred yards above Bath he hit Mr. Carter the first blow with the stick and felled him to the ground, and that Dunbar took the club and struck Carter two blows and took his money out of his pockets and then there parted company, he (Calvin) going up the railroad track and Dunbar going back the way he came over the dirt road.

After hearing Stewart's statement making Dunbar an accomplice the crowd started out to catch Dunbar, and they soon found him and carried him before Stewart, who accused him of being an accomplice. Dunbar denied the accusation but the mob held him.

The crowd wanted to lynch Stewart at once after hearing his confession. Mr. S. M. Cobb, who lives at Langley, proposed to the crowd to send Stewart to the county jail at Aiken and offered to take charge of the negro for the night and take him to Aiken this morning, as he had to come here to attend court. The mob declined the proposition.

Mr. Cobb then proposed to send Stewart to Aiken by four good citizens, he select them. This proposition was accepted and Mr. William Augustine, A. J. Green and Jim Morrison were appointed a committee to escort the negro to tianity.

For example: "One of the monks was a tall, magnificent and very powerful man, an ex-cavalry officer, Count Somebody, whose name I forget, then Fray G—.

Before he arrived there was a bully in town, rather of a free-thinking class, so he used to go and swagger up and down before the seminary and call out: 'Come out, you miserable petticoated monks! Come out and have a tree fight for God or the devil.' When Fray G— arrived he heard of this, and it so happened he had an English friend when he was with his regiment who had taught him the use of his fists. He found that his brother monks were dreadfully distressed at this unseemly challenge, so he said: The next time he comes don't open the gate, but let the porter call me.'

"So the next time the bully appeared it was so arranged that the gate was opened by Fray G— (the usual crowd had collected in the road to see the fun) who looked at him laughingly and said: 'Surely brother, we will fight for God or the devil, if you please.' So saying, the friar turned up his sleeves and gown and told his adversary to 'come on,' which he did, and he was immediately knocked into a cocked hat. 'Come, get up,' said the friar. 'No lying there, and whimpering; the devil won't win that way.' The man stood three and four rounds, at the end of which he whimpered and hallooed for mercy, and amidst the jeers and bravos of a large crowd the 'villainous cock' retired a mass of jelly and pulp, and was never seen within more than half a mile of the seminary again."

the branch to which Bones clung. It was a small branch and made a pole about ten feet long, with Bones glued to one end of it. The Indians were now less than two hundred yards away. Taking the other end of the pole in one hand, I hurriedly began to descend. The jaguar had spied the Indians and stood looking at them. When six feet from the ground I made a flying leap and lit astride the back of the tiger. Swinging my pole around I held Bones about a yard in front of the beast's nose. He leaped for the unhappy dog. Of course he did not get him, as I retained my hold on the pole and my position on his back. Pointing Bones toward the Indians, I charged them, the tiger thinking to get the dog at every bound. My appearance so terrified the savages that they turned and fled ignominiously. I chased them two miles scattering them right and left, and by joining my own cries with the yells of the tiger and the howls of the Indians to death. When the last one had disappeared I turned the tiger in a broad curve by swinging Bones slightly to starboard, and rode him to my ranch. The distance was twenty miles, which I covered in one hour and thirty minutes, the optimistic animal thinking that he would grasp Bones at the next jump for the whole way. I was so pleased at the success of my experiment that I kept the jaguar, tamed him, and used him for a saddle beast during the two years that I staid in Montana. I soon taught him the use of the bit and spur, however, as the exertion of holding Bones before him was too great.
