| managed places the heavier work is finished up so there will be no rush to save late crops that usually |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| must be left as long as possible to mature. Grass, weeds, and brush |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| should at once be cleaned up and removed from about the trees, as |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| places for vermin and breed diseases. It is seldom, if ever, that |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| trees are injured by too much manuring, provided it is applied on |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| the surface of the ground, while |  |  |
| thousands of trees and whole or-chards prove unsatisfactory or |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| come to an untimely end from |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| to give them vigor to resist insects and disease and mature a first- |  |  |

| tilizing elements where they are most needed, besides the litter on |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| the surface affords protection tothe roots against the frosts of |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| winter.  rashivg  For those who have time to do |  |  |
| it nothing pays better than annual washing of the stems of fruit trees. |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| It helps to keep the tree clear of dead bark, which is an advantage, |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| and tends to destroy mosses and the spores of fungi. By this time |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| insects have very generally goneinto winter quarters or deposited |  |  |
|  |  |  |
| their eggs and made proparation for perpetuating their kind. Wash- |  |  |

| about the trunks of the trees. The |  |  |
| old-fashioned lime wash, with the |  |  |
| nddition of sulphur and a little soot to quiet down the glare of the |  |  |
| lime, is very good. A wash of soft soap, weak lye, or potaahh bas |  |  |
