Clemson College will resume operations on Thursday, February 15th, as its vacation expires at that time. The prospects are fine for a very large enrollment of students.

The establishment of a dispensary was defeated by the people of Yorkville in an election held January 27, to decide this question, by a vote of 71 for to 154 against it.

Judge Simonton has issued an order to the Receiver of the South Carolina Railway, permitting the State detectives to enter the property of the Company and search for contraband liquors.

In Columbia, the stronghold of the "antis" there are said to be already six candidates for Mayor, and the election yet two months off. So it seems that "official leprosy", defined as a thirst for office holding, is not confined to the "Tillmanite" or "Reform" party.

Three thousand five hundred men and one woman witnessed the Corbett and Mitchell fight. The woman's name was Norrine Willis and she was from Louisville, Ky. She was dressed in male attire, and was carried to the fight by a wealthy banker, of Montgomery, Ala.

The Augusta Chronicle states upon the authority of the Commissioner of Agriculture of Georgia that hogs raised in that State are being sold at a profit in Chicago, the great slaughtering and packing house of Armour & Co., having recently bought 6,000 in the southwestern part of the State.

Many years ago, when the now venerable Captain Basse, of the Senate, was a youth, he was directed to place a snuff-box in each of the small recesses of the rear wall of the chamber, to right and left of the Vice President and to keep them filled for the Clays, Websters, and other Senators of the old school who were habitual snuff-takers. The snuff-boxes remain as a reminder of the time and habits of Senators who made history. But they are seldom filled, as Mr. George, of Mississippi is the only Senator who uses snuff.

The Prosperity Reporter says: We are not at liberty just now to make known his name, but learn from good authority that a prominent Anti has been appointed and has accepted the position of Chief Constable for this county. He is from the county, and has an elegant home and many acres of land. He is a man noted for his courage, and well equipped for the position. And yet there are persons who say Gov. Tillman will not appoint an Anti to office. Though an Anti, he believes in the Dispensary Law, and will be energetic in enforcing it.

Capt. James H. Tillman, of Clark's Hill, and Col. George W. Croft, of Aiken, have formed a co-partnership for the practice of law at Edgefield Court House. Col. George W. Croft is one of the ablest lawyers in the State and has made a reputation in both civil and criminal cases. Capt. Tillman is a bright, intelligent young man, a son of Hon. George D. Tillman, and inherits many of the strong intellectual traits of his distinguished father. The Hampton friends of both gentlemen feel satisfied that they will receive a liberal part of the legal business.—Hampton Guardian.

The Atlanta Constitution well says: "There should be no cotton mills in New England. The fact that a cotton factory can be operated profitably a thousand miles away from the fields that produce the raw material makes the world wonder what the Southern people are doing and what they are thinking about. We should manufacture our cotton here at home and our distributing centres, railways and ports will send it to the most distant markets. We can manufacture cotton cheaper here than it can be done in New England and save the freight on the raw material and the manufactured product that comes back to us. None of the cotton mills of the future should be started in the Northeast. The South is their natural home and they will pay large dividends here than anywhere else."

SOW OATS.
The Southern Cultivator for February says: "Where not previously sown, this is the best month for sowing oats. Later sowing is not advisable, except on bottom or rich land. In the more northern sections of the South oats sown in February are not so liable to disaster from frosts as January sowings. But the crop has a shorter time for developing and maturing, therefore the land should be thoroughly prepared and highly fertilized, in order that the young plants may at once begin to take up their food supply.

FARMERS' FIRE IN. ASSO'N

A meeting of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Association of Edgefield was held in the courthouse on Monday, President Timmerman in the chair.

Steps were taken to merge the Association from the Chester charter to the charter for Edgefield recently granted by the Legislature. A call for voluntary contributions was authorized for the benefit of Messrs. D. P. and J. H. Lagroue who lost their gin houses by fire while in operation. They were insured in the Farmers' Mutual, the terms of the contract being such that the insurance was not of force while steam was applied, hence the call for contributions is not a legal assessment, but only voluntary.

The following is an abstract, from the report of the agent, of the business done the past year:

Table with 2 columns: Description and Amount. Includes items like 'No. of assessments', 'Net amount collected', 'No. losses sustained', 'Average loss', 'Total losses sustained', 'Losses paid', 'reported and unpd', 'Bal. in treasury', 'Deficit to be provided for', 'Am't In. now in force'.

TARIFF REFORM.

Tariff reform has triumphed in the House of Representatives, and in a manner so inspiring that the record made by the democratic party will be one of the proudest in its annals.

The tariff bill, with the income tax appended as an amendment, after a three weeks' discussion passed the lower house of Congress on Wednesday last by a very handsome majority. Protection and protective theories received a very black eye by the passage of this measure, and the shades of Calhoun may rejoice at the consummation, or rather an approximation, to a consummation, for which so long and devotedly wished and worked. This bill, should it pass the Senate, and of this there is little doubt though its provisions may be slightly modified by that body, will afford greater relief to the country, to the toiling, struggling masses, and they constitute nine-tenths of the people, than any measure passed by Congress since the war. By it the necessities of life become practically free; and the markets of the world will be open to our citizens for trade, to sell their products as high as they can and to buy as cheaply. Democracy may well plume itself on the passage of a law so full of promise not only to the party, but the whole country; one that was but an aspiration to democratic statesmen past and a vision of bliss merely to many still living.

In this law there is new hope for the country; and that democrat is captious indeed who would think a third party necessary now, after such a victory.

The scenes enacted on the last day of the debate, the day upon which the vote was taken, are said to have been beyond description. The House of Representatives, the galleries and the floor, was a wild scene of jubilant demonstration and rejoicing on the part of democrats. The last speeches were made by ex-Speaker Reid against, and Speaker Crisp and Chairman Wilson for the bill.

At the conclusion of Mr. Wilson's speech there was enacted a scene of wild enthusiasm such as has never before been witnessed in the House within the memory of the oldest member. The applause which broke out at frequent intervals during the speech overleaped all bounds when Mr. Wilson tried to take his seat. Cheer after cheer rang out again and again, men threw their hats and papers in the air, and women their handkerchiefs. Breckinridge, of Arkansas, embraced the speaker, and a crowd of demonstrative admirers, headed by Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, and Mr. Tucker, of Virginia, raised Mr. Wilson upon their shoulders and carried him in triumph out of the hall and to the committee rooms.

THRILLING STREET DUEL.

FIRST BLOOD HERE OVER THE LIQUOR LAW.

W. H. MEETZE PROBABLY

Fatally Wounded by Davis Miller. A Perfect Fusillade of Bullets—The Complete Story.

The Columbia State.

For the first time since the dispensary law became a law, blood was shed on its account in the capital of the State yesterday afternoon. Mr. W. H. Meetze, the man who shot and killed Clark a few years ago, and the man who defied Governor Tillman and his constables at the fair grounds last November, got into a street affray near Columbia's famous street fighting ground, the corner of Main and Washington streets, where every serious affair of any importance that has happened in recent years in Columbia has taken place, with Davis Miller, a stock dealer bailing from North Carolina, and the former fell with a bullet in his side within one hundred yards from the spot where Clark fell and expired when he shot him. The extent of his injuries cannot yet be ascertained.

Never before has a pistol fight occurred here in which so many shots were fired without injuring any one except the participants. The street was filled with people at the time, and Miller, knowing he had a cool sure shot to deal with, emptied two pistols, save one bullet, in less time than it takes to tell it. It was a perfect fusillade, and created the wildest excitement, especially when Mr. Meetze was seen to reel and fall to the ground. All day long serious trouble of some kind had been anticipated, but no one knew from what quarter it would come, or at what hour.

Miller had been a witness in the first blind tiger case and his testimony goaded some of the liquor men and their friends to desperation. Long before he had concluded the giving of his testimony, it could be seen that he would have to answer in one way or another to somebody for some of his statements. Some of the men looked very angry. Miller evidently knew too that he was to be "talked to" for he had come to the court house both self-acting, which he carried in his outside overcoat pockets. At any rate, just as the recess was taken things looked pretty squally. Miller went back into one of the jury rooms and serious trouble came very near resulting in there, two men tackling him and cursing him pretty severely. Justice Clarkson went in there, however, and pulled Miller out, taking him down stairs. Mr. Meetze and others who were very much incensed came on around on Main street, and they talked very bitterly about Miller. Several parties urged them to go on home, but somehow they got around on Law Range again. They went to a point in front of McMaster's law office and stood there talking. Among them were Messrs. William Sheppard, Meetze, Fry, and Herriot. Miller was standing up in front of Shand's law office at this time talking to some young men. Fry evidently wanted to tackle Miller, for some one heard Mr. Herriot say to him: "No you ought not to do it." Just about this time Mr. Charles Hendrix, the defendant in another case, pulled out a pistol near the corner and appeared to be very angry. Police Sergeant Morehead and Bell Towerman Dunning saw him, grappled with him and took the pistol from him, sending him away to the station house. Just about this time Mr. Miller came on down towards Main Street.

ARMED WITH TWO PISTOLS,

EXCITEMENT WAS INTENSE,

the streets were filled for two hours with excited men. Drs. Talley, Folk, and Taylor were soon at Mr. Meetze's side. They examined the wound looked for the bullet, but failed to find it. It ranged backward. The physicians say it may have entered the abdominal cavity, but they cannot yet tell. In this case the wound is a very serious one indeed. They soon inclined to think, however, from the symptoms and the fact that it was a small bullet that it ranged around towards the back, and in that case will not have serious results.

Kills His Wife and Jumps in a Well.

GREENVILLE, S. C.—Ed Davis, the colored janitor of the Greenville Club, killed his wife and jumped into a well and drowned himself. Neighbors were attracted by the cries of his three children, and on going to the house discovered his wife lying dead on a bed with the back of her skull crushed in. By the side of the bed was a bloody axe which had evidently been used to commit the deed. A search for Davis revealed his body in a well about twelve feet deep. It is supposed that he was temporarily insane.

Singing Hymns to a Dead Horse.

Laurens Herald.
After encouraging disobedience to law and resistance to legal authority in its every issue, there is just about as much virtue in the News and Courier's editorial of last Friday counselling submission on the part of the citizens of Charleston, as there is in singing hymns over the body of a dead horse. After encouraging lawlessness on the part of the whiskey element in that city, both by captions to all articles relative to the present Administration and by subheads and editorials, the evil results of its teachings have begun to show themselves in a manner which seems alarming to the News and Courier, and it now sets about trying to correct or repair the evil which it has brought about. Last Friday's issue of that paper contained an editorial strongly urging obedience to law. But while the News and Courier writes a seemingly fair editorial for the eye of the public, it "winks the other eye" at the mob. It says:

It is all wrong. The spies and constables have the law behind them, and law abiding citizens should regard their conduct accordingly, and treat them accordingly when they are engaged in their business. To "mob" them, or offer them violence in any way will only have the effect of making martyrs of them, of putting this whole community in the position of defying the law, and of making the situation still worse than it is. A few men, or many men, in Charleston cannot undertake by force to prevent the enforcement of the law in the city. The experiment should not be tried further, and than those who are disposed to try it should listen to calmer counsel and be guided by it.

The has been some loose and dangerous talk on this subject within the past two or three days. It should stop—Those who indulged in it to incite unthinking men to acts of violence are enemies to the peace and welfare of the city. There is no estimating the amount of trouble they would make for those who would be misled by them. We should have no display of disorder and lawlessness in Charleston on any account. Every one who cares for the good name and the welfare of the city will discountenance all such assemblages in the streets as that of Wednesday and all such threats of mob law as were made on that day and night."

COME ON, ALL YOU PEOPLE.

At this time Meetze was still advancing upon him still shaking his left hand at him and pulling his pistol from his hip pocket with his right. Then so several eye witnesses say, Miller let fire at Mr. Meetze. In quicker time than takes to tell it Miller proceeded to fire nine bullets at Mr. Meetze. Mr. Meetze returned the fire as rapidly, and the firing sounded like an infantry company practicing "company firing." Mr. Meetze nearly emptied his pistol. After the first fire Mr. Meetze was hit in the side and was

and fall to the ground like a dead man. He tried to rise, but could not. Sergt. Morehead of the police force rushed at Miller with his club raised. Miller still had both his pistols leveled. As the officer came up to him he raised both hands and said: "I surrender." Then Meetze's friends, seeing that Meetze was badly wounded and thinking that he was killed, cried "kill the scoundrel" and were about to make for him. Then it was Sergt. Morehead displayed

WONDERFUL COURAGE.

He placed the prisoner behind him leveled his pistol on the crowd and told them that the first man who came at Miller he would shoot dead in his tracks. As soon as possible he turned Miller around, and joined by other officers, went as quickly as possible with him to the station house. Miller felt thinking that he had killed Meetze, and sent for Capt. John G. Capers to act as his attorney for him.

THE WOUNDED MAN.

As soon as the firing ceased many of the bystanders rushed to Mr. Meetze's side. When asked if he was hurt much he said: "I think my leg is broke." A hasty examination revealed a bullet hole in Mr. Meetze's right side it being located just about the center of his vest pocket. The blood poured from the wound. Several gentlemen lifted the wounded man and dispatched messengers for a physician. They were about to take him into Dr. Ray's office, but he said: "No, take me around home." He was perfectly cool and collected, but was powerless to move a muscle. He was placed in a carriage and taken home. He asked for his hat just as he was driven off. The people all along Main street heard the fusillade and came running to the scene of the trouble. In a few moments the

PATENTS.
NOTICE TO INVENTORS.

There was never a time in the history of our country when the demand for inventions and improvements in the arts and sciences generally was so great as now. The conveniences of mankind in the factory and work shop, the household, on the farm, and in official life, require continual accessions to the apparatuses and implements of each in order to keep pace with the progress of the political change in the administration of the government does not affect the progress of the American inventor, who being on the alert and ready to perceive the existing deficiencies, does not permit himself to be lulled by the prospect of quickly conceiving the remedy to overcome existing discrepancies. Too great care cannot be exercised in choosing a competent and skillfully attorney to prepare and prosecute an application for patent. Valuable interests have been lost and destroyed in innumerable instances by the employment of incompetent counsel, and especially in this advice applicable to those who adopt the patent "patent" system. Inventors who entrust their business to this class of attorneys do so at imminent risk, as the breadth and strength of the patent is never considered in view of a quick endeavor to get an allowance, and obtain the fee then due. THE PRESS CLAIMS COMPANY, John Wedderburn, General Manager, 618 F Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., representing a large number of important daily and weekly papers, as well as general periodicals of the country, was instituted to protect its patrons from the unsafe methods heretofore employed in this line of business. The said Company is prepared to take charge of all patent business entrusted to it for reasonable fees, and prepares and prosecutes applications generally, including mechanical inventions, design patents, trademarks, labels, copyrights, interferences, infringements, validity references, and gives special attention to rejected cases. It is also prepared to enter into competition with any firm in securing foreign patents.
