

Edgefield Advertiser.

THOS. J. ADAMS, PROPRIETOR.

EDGEFIELD, S. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1894.

VOL. LIX. NO. 34.

SILVER SHOE & HAT CO.

SILVER BLOCK,
1207 BROADWAY, AUGUSTA GA.

We offer to the Farming and Country People a special line of goods, honest, strictly solid leather Shoes, which cannot be excelled for style and durability, at the lowest possible prices.

SILVER SHOE CO. brand Shoes acknowledged the best in the city. Our Goods are especially made for us, and we sell nothing but we can guarantee, and at Rock Bottom Prices. A trial will make you our friends and customers. Remember,

Silver Shoe & Hat Co.
Leaders in Good Honest Goods, at BOTTOM PRICES.

W.M. F. SAMPLES,
Formerly with E. T. Murphy & Co., now with Arrington Brothers & Co.,
Groceries and Plantation Supplies,
621 BROAD STREET, AUGUSTA, GA.
(North side street, half block above Railroad Crossing.)

He cordially invites and would be glad to wait on all his friends and acquaintances.

THE UNITED STATES TOOTH-SAVING ASSOCIATION.

One of the Largest Organizations Devoted to High Class Dental Practice in the United States.

Pledged to the Promotion of Scientific Dentistry at Moderate Prices.
TEETH WITHOUT PLATES.

Alumina Fillings..... 50c. up
Platina Fillings..... 75c. up
Gold Fillings..... $1.00 up
Best Set of Teeth (either upper or lower set)..... $8.00
A Good Set of Teeth for..... 5.00
Extracting Teeth..... 50c.

Crowns and Teeth Without Plates at Same Rates.

PERFECT FITTING ARTIFICIAL TEETH and Best Workmanship Guaranteed or Money cheerfully refunded. Only the Best Material Used.

810 Broad Street, [Over Mullarky & Harty.] Augusta, Ga.

REMSEN & TUTT,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Grocers and Commission Merchants, AND DEALERS IN
FLOUR, CORN, SUGAR, TEAS, MEAL,
OATS, COFFEE, RICE, LARD, HAY,
MOLASSES, SPICES, MEAT, BRAN, SYRUPS,
CAN GOODS, Etc.

AND EVERYTHING IN THE GROCERY LINE.
We have NEW BAGGING, PIECE BAGGING, and SUGAR BAG CLOTH, NEW ARROW TIES, whole re-bundled TIES, and piece TIES. We make a specialty of these goods and sell them at VERY LOW PRICES. Call to see us when you come to Augusta. We want the TRADE OF EDGEFIELD COUNTY and will make it to your interest to give it to us.

Mr. HILLMAN THOMPSON is with us and will be glad to meet his friends.
843 Broad Street, - AUGUSTA, GA.

Plymouth
Rocks,
Wyandottes,
and Leghorns.
Stock and Eggs.

Address
Dr. W. D. OUZTS, - Elmwood, S. C.

KEY & CO.,

Statesville, N.C.,
— DISTILLERS AND JOBBERS IN —
Pure, Old-Fashioned N. C. Hand Made Corn and Rye Whiskies, Apple and Peach Brandies.

We make a specialty of pure goods for private use and medicinal purposes. Our brands are all recognized as standard, and we sell nothing but high grade goods. We are sole proprietors of the celebrated Key brand of old-fashioned hand made Corn Whiskey and Apple Brandies, packed in cases of one dozen bottles. We quote as follows, in lots 1 to 10 gallons:
N. C. "Poplar Log" Corn Whiskey, $1.25 to $3.00, according to age;
Rye Whiskey, $2.00 to $3.00, according to age.
Apple Brandies, $2.00
Peach Brandies, $2.75.
Extra charge for Jugs.
We can furnish Corn Whiskey in cases of 1, 2, 4, 6, and 8 dozen bottles to case, in pints, half pints, and quarts, ready for use, at low prices.
Can make special prices on barrel shipments. We have the largest stock in the country of old corn whiskey, ripened and mellowed by age, and especially recommend it for private use.

There are twenty-three feet of water on Charleston bar.

Twenty tons of grapes were shipped from the neighborhood of Kingtree last year and fifteen tons this year.

There are twenty-seven cotton seed oil mills in the State with an annual product of eight hundred thousand dollars.

Fifty thousand pounds of tobacco were sold at Florence last week. Forty-nine cents was the highest and eight cents the lowest price paid.

Dr. Sampson Pope announces himself, again, as candidate for Governor; this time as an anti-dispensary candidate, and in favor of true Democracy.

A gang of counterfeiters, with a full supply of moulds, have been arrested at Manning. Their counterfeit money has been circulating at Manning for six months.

A report from St. Petersburg announces the serious illness of the Czar of all the Russians. He is said to be suffering from a serious kidney trouble. A physician is kept in constant attendance.

A Washington lady stopped a runaway the other day, by rushing into the middle of the street and shaking the skirts of her dress at the frightened animal. She then seized the horse by the bridle and held on until some men came to her assistance. There was a woman and two babies in the runaway team.

A dispatch from Augusta of September 3rd says: Henry G. Raworth, the oldest locomotive engineer in America, died here last night, aged 83. Raworth was born in Charleston in 1811. He was the first engineer on the South Carolina Railway, and ran as engineer the "Best Friend," the pioneer engine built in America.

The regulations of the British postoffice require that every unbound tooth shall be taken out of a man's head before he can be employed. An unfortunate girl who recently had fourteen teeth taken out at one sitting by order of the official dentist, who explained that "we can't have girls laid up with toothache."

When Mr. Moody was preaching in Washington last spring he asserted one day that if Jesus Christ should return to this world in person and appear in that city He would not be welcomed, and that the people would not consent to be governed by Him. He asked the audience if they would receive him, and, to emphasize his assertion, he appealed to an aged colored man sitting near the pulpit: "Would you vote for Him?" The reply came promptly: "T'wouldn't do no good. They wouldn't count my vote." Mr. Moody at once changed the subject.

The annual review of the News and Courier shows that during the past year more hay was sold in Charleston than in any year, save one, in the last twenty years; more corn, by 50,000 bushels, than in twenty years, and more oats than in any year but one, in twenty years. It is true that more bacon was raised in the State last year than in any year since the war; but the fact remains that 1,640 carloads or 41,000,000 pounds of bacon were brought from the West and sold in Charleston during the last twelve months. The hay was brought from the North and the corn and bacon from the West. None of it was made in South Carolina and a great deal of it was sold to South Carolina farmers.

Baron Hirsch has sent some three or four thousand Russian Jews to the Argentine Republic, and he hopes to have a Jewish community there of 100,000 within ten years. He sends them out in companies of fifty families, each provided with a rabbi and a doctor, and he expects them to settle in villages, giving a special tract for each company. He declares that they do well as farmers. Nor have we much immediate hope for the improvement of the Jews that are now going in such numbers to Palestine. Within the last few years, 100,000 Jews have entered the Holy Land, and that number will be greatly increased in the next ten years.

AS TO WHITE SUPREMACY.

Senator Butler Writes a Caustic Letter to Show Where He is At.

Gen. M. C. Butler has written the following letter to the editor of the Columbia Register. He uses vigorous language and hints at charges of a very grave nature against public officials:

To the Register: Judging from the tenor of your correspondence and your own comments there are quite a number of "anxious patriots" who appear deeply interested in my welfare, and concerned about my future action. I drop this line to reassure all "enquiring friends" that I am not after reelection to the United States Senate, but am after the corrupt ring now disgracing the politics of the State. You dwell with some emphasis on the importance of "white supremacy." You do not exaggerate its importance, but "white supremacy" does not mean ring rule and the disfranchisement of white tax-paying voters! the destruction, under the forms of law, of their rights and liberties and property. These wrongs do not acquire sanctity because the perpetrators of them have white skins.

I did more in one day to establish "white supremacy" in South Carolina, than this entire gang of corrupt ringsters in their whole lives, and would do more now to preserve it, but this ring has prepared the way to destroy "white supremacy." It has severed the relations of the white people, and will not permit a reunion because when the people get together again and look into their affairs dispassionately, some of these ringsters will go the penitentiary. Hence they vilify and slander every man who exposes their villainies and corruption.

"White supremacy" is a very precious thing in this country, and I would lament the day when it is lost, if it ever should be, but if we are to be robbed and plundered as we now are, I do not know that the color of the skin of the robber makes it more bearable or palliates the offence.

So "you can say to your people," I am not after the United States Senate, but the ring and its villainies and that I am in for the war.

The Arab Horse—His Treatment.

Major General Tweedie.

In the desert the mares and foals and stallions stand day and night before their master. There are no grooms in our sense. Black slaves keep the ground clean, and the wives and daughters of the tent folk wait upon the mares, and romance becomes reality when a drooping mare or a motherless foal is taken into the best part of the tent to be nursed. In villages the mares' shed is close to the habitation in which the family life proceeds. The result is that food and fellowship are among the first ideas which are associated in the minds of Arab horses with the human figure. The mares turn as kindly to those around them as Gustavus did to Dugald Dalgetty. The youngling takes its cue from the dam, and is not afraid of that with which they are all familiar.

The colt, which is handled by everyone from the first, and ridden as soon as he is strong enough, is sure to prove docile and obedient. Even when full allowance is made for the advantages of early tuition, Arab men deserve some credit for the fine temper of Arab horses. The most patient colt may have to resist its rider if either his anger be excited or too much of his own way be given to him.

A little incident which we lately witnessed in a crowded thoroughfare in Bagdad may here be worth introducing. An awkward groom had tumbled off the back of a playful filly, and left her free to career hither and thither. Among the spectators there was nobody who blamed the filly. A red-bearded Persian, whose bookstall was kicked into the Tigris, had the senses to curse the biped and not the quadruped. When she was caught, and the end of her halter rope was put into the groom's hand by a bystander, the man merely jumped on her back and rode quietly away.

The Faults of English Cavalry.

Blackwood's Magazine.

The tradition still clings to the British cavalry of undisciplined and headlong recklessness in the field—of fruits the most ruinous. Wellington considered his cavalry

A METAL-EATING PLANT.

Philadelphia Times.

Prof. Schelwisch, the well-known naturalist of Bavaria, while travelling with the Stanley expedition in the heart of Africa for the purpose of studying the flora and fauna of the Dark Continent, was the first white man to discover this strange plant. One day while resting at a small village near the foot of Mount Milosia, in the Umbopo region, Prof. Schelwisch noticed a plant with a peculiar steel-colored foliage, and on examination it was found that the shrub, although growing like other plants from the soil, was practically composed of iron. The leaves, though very thin, were bent with great difficulty, and the twigs and branches resisted pressure with a force about equal to the same amount of iron, and to secure a leaf it was found to be necessary to separate it from the bush with a file. While Prof. Schelwisch was digging at the base of this plant for the purpose of making an examination of its roots, the natives crowded around him, gesticulating and shouting. The professor, however, was not deterred.

The following remarks of W. T. Hundley were given in his sermon on the morning, 2nd inst., with reference to the discharge of M. from the job office of the News:

"We have fallen upon hard times. Here in the city of Greenville, which boasts of a number of churches, here is her culture, and her refinement, and her refinement find an anomaly in the fact that a young Christian man, a member of our commonwealth, is cotted by his employees for what he did what he believed to be right (and what was right) in punishing an offender against the law who was helping to ruin the souls of his young brother, and bringing down upon him the den of sorrow on the head of an aged mother.

"What are we, God's people, doing to do in the midst of these times? Shall we endorse the keeper in his unholy traffic, we condemn the young man who upholds the law of his land, and tries to save his brother, and free him from the clutches of vice and sin. No, a thousand times, no."

"Men talk about personal liberty. Yes, personal liberty for the employer and his patrons, but not personal slavery for the poor, drunken boy and his loved ones.

"It's all right to cry out against the thief and house burner, but it is all wrong to say a word against the man who steals away the happiness of your home and burns out the moral life of your own flesh and blood.

"We are not pleading for the dispensary, but we are pleading for the upholding of the law and the enforcing of the punishment against those who break it, and he is the ideal citizen, who if he knows that the law is being violated, has the moral courage to rise up and report the offender although it shall cost him his situation.

"The right must win. Some day a reaction will set in, and he who is now persecuted and boycotted because he did what was right, will be honored of God and the people. No man ever loses anything by doing what is right."

"The Girl I Left Behind Me."

Isle of Wight Express.

Although the song "The Girl I Left Behind Me" is so well known, its authorship is obscure. No one can tell who wrote either the words or the music. In this respect it is like a good many songs, notably the old ballad of "The Bailiff's Daughter of Islington." The song "The Girl I Left Behind Me" has been the soldiers' and sailors' lullaby for nearly a century, and it has been so long played on men-of-war as they weigh anchor, and by the hands of regiments as they quit towns where they have been quartered, that its omission would be regarded as a slight upon the fair sex.

The song is doubtless of Irish origin. Chappell, however, puts in an English claim to the air, although he admits it may be Irish. This authority thinks that it was probably written about 1758, when there were encampments along the coast, where many tunes of this sort originated. Bunting supports the Irish theory. He says the air was taken down from an Irish harper, named O'Neil, in 1800, the author and date being unknown. The song has been found in a manuscript dated 1770, but its true origin is veiled in obscurity.

IN THE PENINSULA SO INFERIOR TO THAT OF THE FRENCH, FROM WANT OF ORDER, THAT HE WAS RELUCTANT TO USE IT UNLESS WHEN IN SUPERIOR STRENGTH; AND HE SAID, SPEAKING OF WATERLOO: "NAPOLEON HAD HIS CAVALRY IN ORDER, MINE WOULD GALLOP, BUT COULD NOT PRESERVE THEIR ORDER."

It was this gallant but undisciplined propensity to get out of hand which in the battle of Waterloo, as the issue of a single charge, reduced Lord Uxbridge's splendid division of heavy cavalry to a single squadron. The wild gallop of the "Third Light" through the heart of Kalska camp in the evening dusk of Ferozesbah, like the charge of the Light Brigade down the north valley of Balacava, "was magnificent, but it was not war."

Kinglake innocently expresses his admiration of the prolongation of front in Scarlett's heavy cavalry, occasioned by the circumstances that "the two ranks which had begun the advance were converted by degrees into one."

What a Preacher Thinks of It. Greenville Mountaineer.

The following remarks of W. T. Hundley were given in his sermon on the morning, 2nd inst., with reference to the discharge of M. from the job office of the News:

"We have fallen upon hard times. Here in the city of Greenville, which boasts of a number of churches, here is her culture, and her refinement, and her refinement find an anomaly in the fact that a young Christian man, a member of our commonwealth, is cotted by his employees for what he did what he believed to be right (and what was right) in punishing an offender against the law who was helping to ruin the souls of his young brother, and bringing down upon him the den of sorrow on the head of an aged mother.

"What are we, God's people, doing to do in the midst of these times? Shall we endorse the keeper in his unholy traffic, we condemn the young man who upholds the law of his land, and tries to save his brother, and free him from the clutches of vice and sin. No, a thousand times, no."

"Men talk about personal liberty. Yes, personal liberty for the employer and his patrons, but not personal slavery for the poor, drunken boy and his loved ones.

"It's all right to cry out against the thief and house burner, but it is all wrong to say a word against the man who steals away the happiness of your home and burns out the moral life of your own flesh and blood.

"We are not pleading for the dispensary, but we are pleading for the upholding of the law and the enforcing of the punishment against those who break it, and he is the ideal citizen, who if he knows that the law is being violated, has the moral courage to rise up and report the offender although it shall cost him his situation.

"The right must win. Some day a reaction will set in, and he who is now persecuted and boycotted because he did what was right, will be honored of God and the people. No man ever loses anything by doing what is right."

IN THE PENINSULA SO INFERIOR TO THAT OF THE FRENCH, FROM WANT OF ORDER, THAT HE WAS RELUCTANT TO USE IT UNLESS WHEN IN SUPERIOR STRENGTH; AND HE SAID, SPEAKING OF WATERLOO: "NAPOLEON HAD HIS CAVALRY IN ORDER, MINE WOULD GALLOP, BUT COULD NOT PRESERVE THEIR ORDER."

It was this gallant but undisciplined propensity to get out of hand which in the battle of Waterloo, as the issue of a single charge, reduced Lord Uxbridge's splendid division of heavy cavalry to a single squadron. The wild gallop of the "Third Light" through the heart of Kalska camp in the evening dusk of Ferozesbah, like the charge of the Light Brigade down the north valley of Balacava, "was magnificent, but it was not war."

Kinglake innocently expresses his admiration of the prolongation of front in Scarlett's heavy cavalry, occasioned by the circumstances that "the two ranks which had begun the advance were converted by degrees into one."

What a Preacher Thinks of It. Greenville Mountaineer.

The following remarks of W. T. Hundley were given in his sermon on the morning, 2nd inst., with reference to the discharge of M. from the job office of the News:

"We have fallen upon hard times. Here in the city of Greenville, which boasts of a number of churches, here is her culture, and her refinement, and her refinement find an anomaly in the fact that a young Christian man, a member of our commonwealth, is cotted by his employees for what he did what he believed to be right (and what was right) in punishing an offender against the law who was helping to ruin the souls of his young brother, and bringing down upon him the den of sorrow on the head of an aged mother.

"What are we, God's people, doing to do in the midst of these times? Shall we endorse the keeper in his unholy traffic, we condemn the young man who upholds the law of his land, and tries to save his brother, and free him from the clutches of vice and sin. No, a thousand times, no."

"Men talk about personal liberty. Yes, personal liberty for the employer and his patrons, but not personal slavery for the poor, drunken boy and his loved ones.

"It's all right to cry out against the thief and house burner, but it is all wrong to say a word against the man who steals away the happiness of your home and burns out the moral life of your own flesh and blood.

"We are not pleading for the dispensary, but we are pleading for the upholding of the law and the enforcing of the punishment against those who break it, and he is the ideal citizen, who if he knows that the law is being violated, has the moral courage to rise up and report the offender although it shall cost him his situation.

"The right must win. Some day a reaction will set in, and he who is now persecuted and boycotted because he did what was right, will be honored of God and the people. No man ever loses anything by doing what is right."

IN THE PENINSULA SO INFERIOR TO THAT OF THE FRENCH, FROM WANT OF ORDER, THAT HE WAS RELUCTANT TO USE IT UNLESS WHEN IN SUPERIOR STRENGTH; AND HE SAID, SPEAKING OF WATERLOO: "NAPOLEON HAD HIS CAVALRY IN ORDER, MINE WOULD GALLOP, BUT COULD NOT PRESERVE THEIR ORDER."

It was this gallant but undisciplined propensity to get out of hand which in the battle of Waterloo, as the issue of a single charge, reduced Lord Uxbridge's splendid division of heavy cavalry to a single squadron. The wild gallop of the "Third Light" through the heart of Kalska camp in the evening dusk of Ferozesbah, like the charge of the Light Brigade down the north valley of Balacava, "was magnificent, but it was not war."

Kinglake innocently expresses his admiration of the prolongation of front in Scarlett's heavy cavalry, occasioned by the circumstances that "the two ranks which had begun the advance were converted by degrees into one."

What a Preacher Thinks of It. Greenville Mountaineer.

The following remarks of W. T. Hundley were given in his sermon on the morning, 2nd inst., with reference to the discharge of M. from the job office of the News:

"We have fallen upon hard times. Here in the city of Greenville, which boasts of a number of churches, here is her culture, and her refinement, and her refinement find an anomaly in the fact that a young Christian man, a member of our commonwealth, is cotted by his employees for what he did what he believed to be right (and what was right) in punishing an offender against the law who was helping to ruin the souls of his young brother, and bringing down upon him the den of sorrow on the head of an aged mother.

"What are we, God's people, doing to do in the midst of these times? Shall we endorse the keeper in his unholy traffic, we condemn the young man who upholds the law of his land, and tries to save his brother, and free him from the clutches of vice and sin. No, a thousand times, no."

"Men talk about personal liberty. Yes, personal liberty for the employer and his patrons, but not personal slavery for the poor, drunken boy and his loved ones.

"It's all right to cry out against the thief and house burner, but it is all wrong to say a word against the man who steals away the happiness of your home and burns out the moral life of your own flesh and blood.

IN THE PENINSULA SO INFERIOR TO THAT OF THE FRENCH, FROM WANT OF ORDER, THAT HE WAS RELUCTANT TO USE IT UNLESS WHEN IN SUPERIOR STRENGTH; AND HE SAID, SPEAKING OF WATERLOO: "NAPOLEON HAD HIS CAVALRY IN ORDER, MINE WOULD GALLOP, BUT COULD NOT PRESERVE THEIR ORDER."

It was this gallant but undisciplined propensity to get out of hand which in the battle of Waterloo, as the issue of a single charge, reduced Lord Uxbridge's splendid division of heavy cavalry to a single squadron. The wild gallop of the "Third Light" through the heart of Kalska camp in the evening dusk of Ferozesbah, like the charge of the Light Brigade down the north valley of Balacava, "was magnificent, but it was not war."

Kinglake innocently expresses his admiration of the prolongation of front in Scarlett's heavy cavalry, occasioned by the circumstances that "the two ranks which had begun the advance were converted by degrees into one."

What a Preacher Thinks of It. Greenville Mountaineer.

The following remarks of W. T. Hundley were given in his sermon on the morning, 2nd inst., with reference to the discharge of M. from the job office of the News:

"We have fallen upon hard times. Here in the city of Greenville, which boasts of a number of churches, here is her culture, and her refinement, and her refinement find an anomaly in the fact that a young Christian man, a member of our commonwealth, is cotted by his employees for what he did what he believed to be right (and what was right) in punishing an offender against the law who was helping to ruin the souls of his young brother, and bringing down upon him the den of sorrow on the head of an aged mother.

"What are we, God's people, doing to do in the midst of these times? Shall we endorse the keeper in his unholy traffic, we condemn the young man who upholds the law of his land, and tries to save his brother, and free him from the clutches of vice and sin. No, a thousand times, no."

"Men talk about personal liberty. Yes, personal liberty for the employer and his patrons, but not personal slavery for the poor, drunken boy and his loved ones.

"It's all right to cry out against the thief and house burner, but it is all wrong to say a word against the man who steals away the happiness of your home and burns out the moral life of your own flesh and blood.

"We are not pleading for the dispensary, but we are pleading for the upholding of the law and the enforcing of the punishment against those who break it, and he is the ideal citizen, who if he knows that the law is being violated, has the moral courage to rise up and report the offender although it shall cost him his situation.

"The right must win. Some day a reaction will set in, and he who is now persecuted and boycotted because he did what was right, will be honored of God and the people. No man ever loses anything by doing what is right."

IN THE PENINSULA SO INFERIOR TO THAT OF THE FRENCH, FROM WANT OF ORDER, THAT HE WAS RELUCTANT TO USE IT UNLESS WHEN IN SUPERIOR STRENGTH; AND HE SAID, SPEAKING OF WATERLOO: "NAPOLEON HAD HIS CAVALRY IN ORDER, MINE WOULD GALLOP, BUT COULD NOT PRESERVE THEIR ORDER."

It was this gallant but undisciplined propensity to get out of hand which in the battle of Waterloo, as the issue of a single charge, reduced Lord Uxbridge's splendid division of heavy cavalry to a single squadron. The wild gallop of the "Third Light" through the heart of Kalska camp in the evening dusk of Ferozesbah, like the charge of the Light Brigade down the north valley of Balacava, "was magnificent, but it was not war."

Kinglake innocently expresses his admiration of the prolongation of front in Scarlett's heavy cavalry, occasioned by the circumstances that "the two ranks which had begun the advance were converted by degrees into one."

What a Preacher Thinks of It. Greenville Mountaineer.

The following remarks of W. T. Hundley were given in his sermon on the morning, 2nd inst., with reference to the discharge of M. from the job office of the News:

"We have fallen upon hard times. Here in the city of Greenville, which boasts of a number of churches, here is her culture, and her refinement, and her refinement find an anomaly in the fact that a young Christian man, a member of our commonwealth, is cotted by his employees for what he did what he believed to be right (and what was right) in punishing an offender against the law who was helping to ruin the souls of his young brother, and bringing down upon him the den of sorrow on the head of an aged mother.

"What are we, God's people, doing to do in the midst of these times? Shall we endorse the keeper in his unholy traffic, we condemn the young man who upholds the law of his land, and tries to save his brother, and free him from the clutches of vice and sin. No, a thousand times, no."

"Men talk about personal liberty. Yes, personal liberty for the employer and his patrons, but not personal slavery for the poor, drunken boy and his loved ones.

"It's all right to cry out against the thief and house burner, but it is all wrong to say a word against the man who steals away the happiness of your home and burns out the moral life of your own flesh and blood.

"We are not pleading for the dispensary, but we are pleading for the upholding of the law and the enforcing of the punishment against those who break it, and he is the ideal citizen, who if he knows that the law is being violated, has the moral courage to rise up and report the offender although it shall cost him his situation.

"The right must win. Some day a reaction will set in, and he who is now persecuted and boycotted because he did what was right, will be honored of God and the people. No man ever loses anything by doing what is right."

IN THE PENINSULA SO INFERIOR TO THAT OF THE FRENCH, FROM WANT OF ORDER, THAT HE WAS RELUCTANT TO USE IT UNLESS WHEN IN SUPERIOR STRENGTH; AND HE SAID, SPEAKING OF WATERLOO: "NAPOLEON HAD HIS CAVALRY IN ORDER, MINE WOULD GALLOP, BUT COULD NOT PRESERVE THEIR ORDER."

It was this gallant but undisciplined propensity to get out of hand which in the battle of Waterloo, as the issue of a single charge, reduced Lord Uxbridge's splendid division of heavy cavalry to a single squadron. The wild gallop of the "Third Light" through the heart of Kalska camp in the evening dusk of Ferozesbah, like the charge of the Light Brigade down the north valley of Balacava, "was magnificent, but it was not war."

Kinglake innocently expresses his admiration of the prolongation of front in Scarlett's heavy cavalry, occasioned by the circumstances that "the two ranks which had begun the advance were converted by degrees into one."

What a Preacher Thinks of It. Greenville Mountaineer.

The following remarks of W. T. Hundley were given in his sermon on the morning, 2nd inst., with reference to the discharge of M. from the job office of the News:

"We have fallen upon hard times. Here in the city of Greenville, which boasts of a number of churches, here is her culture, and her refinement, and her refinement find an anomaly in the fact that a young Christian man, a member of our commonwealth, is cotted by his employees for what he did what he believed to be right (and what was right) in punishing an offender against the law who was helping to ruin the souls of his young brother, and bringing down upon him the den of sorrow on the head of an aged mother.

"What are we, God's people, doing to do in the midst of these times? Shall we endorse the keeper in his unholy traffic, we condemn the young man who upholds the law of his land, and tries to save his brother, and free him from the clutches of vice and sin. No, a thousand times, no."

"Men talk about personal liberty. Yes, personal liberty for the employer and his patrons, but not personal slavery for the poor, drunken boy and his loved ones.

"It's all right to cry out against the thief and house burner, but it is all wrong to say a word against the man who steals away the happiness of your home and burns out the moral life of your own flesh and blood.

RUMORS OF A NEW ROAD

From Knoxville to Anderson—George Vanderbilt "In It."

SAVANNAH, Sept. 11.—A special to the Morning News from Augusta says: It is rumored here to-day in railroad circles that George Vanderbilt, who owns so many thousands of acres of land in North Carolina, is about to enter the field of railroad building as a means of getting some of his timber to market.

The line which it is said he will build, is from Knoxville to Anderson, S. C., via Wauhatchie. A large part of the line is already graded and should Vanderbilt build the road, it will decrease the distance between Cincinnati and the South Atlantic Coast over 100 miles. The road, together with the Knoxville, Cumberland Gap and Cincinnati railroad and the Port Royal and Western Carolina will give an air line from Cincinnati to Augusta.

Union Meetings.

The Union Meeting of the First Division of the Edgefield Association will meet with Berea Church, at 10 A. M., Saturday before the fifth Sunday in September.

Introductory sermon by Rev. J. P. Mealing. Alternate, Rev. P. P. Blalock.

Missionary sermon by Rev. J. S. Jordan.

QUERIES.

1st. As the word of God is the only rule of faith and practice, what knowledge of the Bible should churches require of their members, and how can we best impart the knowledge? Speakers, Rev. J. P. Mealing, Rev. J. L. Ouzts, and J. M. Rambo.

2nd. How can we convince our members of the necessity and Scriptural grounds for disciplining our members for non-payment of church and