"SUMMER HOUSE THOUGHTS,

EDGEFIELD IN SUNSHINE AND SHAD-FOW FOR TWENTY YEARS."

Col. Folk writes easily and rapidly, currente calimo. His sentences are Johnsonese in their stately tread and rhythm, or rather a happy blending of Sam and "rare" Ben Johnson and T. Babbington, every period having a ends and caps each paragraph. In the abstract they remind one of a number of beautiful statues in the shimmering shades of June's umbrageous woods, each one topped and adorned by the radiant figure of some grace or virtue, Hope, Love, Peace, Truth, Charity or Religion; in the concrete, of some great wheel made to revolve by the propelling force of an infinity of smaller ones-"the little wheels roll the big wheel."

The dedication of this book reads

"Dedicated to Julia, my beloved and only child, in the hope that she may cheer the hearts of many, bless the home of one and live and die in the fear of God-and in the hope that all who run and read these shifting sunbeams and shadows may find solace for the woe and pleasure in the weal of the past as well as hope for the future."

We predict success for "Summer House Thoughts." It is just the thing our people have been hoping for and longing for for years.
