

What Bothered the Cook. A lady had a cook who gave her every satisfaction, and she was under the impression that the cook was equally satisfied with her place. But one morning, to the lady's intense surprise, the cook gave her the usual month's notice.

Straw Lace. There is a new guipure lace which, when laid over white, resembles nothing so much as straw lace, both in color and in texture. It is exceedingly effective as a trimming over mousseline de soie, because that delicate tissue may be pulled in places through its wide meshes, thus adding novelty to smartness.

Public Closets. Few great cities of America are adequately provided with public closets of such a size and so conveniently located as to indicate the time over wide metropolitan districts. It is high time to check kidney and bladder complaints, manufactured by inactivity of the organs affected. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters remedies this as it does dyspepsia, rheumatism, constipation, biliousness and nervousness.

Beauty Is Blood Deep. Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarella, Candy Cathartic cleans your blood and keeps it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin today to banish pimples, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarella's beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

What You Get When You Buy Medicine is a Matter of Great Importance. Do you get that which has the power to eradicate from your blood all poisons and all other impurities? Do you get only what it will do?

HORSES BRAVE IN WAR.

MARTIAL SPIRIT THEY DISPLAY WHEN THE BATTLE IS ON.

It is remarkable how quickly they adapt themselves to the military service—Charge of a Rideless Steed at Murfreesboro—Answer Bugle Calls.

"It is remarkable how quickly horses adapt themselves to the military service," said an old soldier. "Every artilleryman knows that they learn the bugle calls and the evolutions quicker than the men, as a rule. They soon acquire a uniform gait, which is about the same as what we call the route step or the usual marching step. If the horses did not acquire the same gait as the infantry, there would be very serious distances between the different arms of the service—that is, between the infantry and the cavalry, artillery, and the commanders and their escorts. In the drills in the artillery service the horses will preserve their alignment as well as the infantry rank."

"I shall always remember one illustration of this trait which I noted at a battle during our civil war. In order to save some of our infantry from being surrounded and captured, the commander of one of our batteries quickly mounted the cannoneers on the guns and put the whole battery at a dead gallop across a stretch of meadow about half a mile wide. I was quite accustomed to such sights, but when that dashing company was half-way across the field I noticed the inspiring array, and for a moment was lost in rapt admiration of the magnificent picture. Every driver was plying whip and spur, the great guns were rocking and thundering over the ground, and every horse reeking with foam and full of animation and excitement was straining every muscle as he galloped forward, yet a straight line drawn along in front would have touched the noses of the lead horses in front of the six guns. That was an artillery charge, one of the most thrilling sights in the evolutions of war."

"It is surprising how quickly horses learn the bugle calls. Let the first note of the feed or water call be sounded, and instantly there will be a stamping, kicking and neighing among the horses. Once, during a terrible night storm in camp, our horses were seized with such terror that those of nearly every battery broke loose and scattered about. The next morning there was a wild rush among the artillerymen to capture horses for use. All was excitement, and the horses refused to be caught. An officer ordered the bugler to give the feed call. Horses from every battery came running to the call."

Covert cloth, poplin and Bedford cords are shown in great variety for the indispensable tailor made suit. Piquets, marseilles, lawns and linens will be much worn this summer for morning gowns, as well as at the watering places. A very pretty and fashionable design in table linen is the shamrock. It is used on napkins, and promises to become popular. Persian mauve, pale color are also worn.

American Women and Gray Hair. Is it true that the hair of American women turns gray much earlier than that of the women of other countries? There are those who make the assertion. It is, too, say these, a rule, she is around to the one main subject to certain. From matting to the Klondike, to India's coral strand, and including the most approved methods of clipping dogs ears, she quotes but one authority, and seems to regard that one as omniscient and indisputable. Her self-conceit is by no means a minor attribute of the engaged girl, but as one who has made a scientific study of the species says: "She can't help it, you know, poor thing; she lives in such a perfect atmosphere of flattery, with increase burning before her in wholesale quantities and all the time, that it is no wonder her hair is inspired to act as though the whole solar system revolved about her." But whatever may be said against the engaged girl, one thing is always in her favor, the most captious cannot find fault with it, the most callous must be glad of it, and it eclipses her conceit as it eclipses her folly—she is so happy.—Philadelphia Times.

A Woman Baker. There is a woman now in New York who has had most serious misfortunes, and yet has shown rare perseverance and energy at the critical moment. Only a short time ago she and her husband lived in a comfortable home in a western city. They owned the property and had been moderately well-to-do. Then the husband died very suddenly. Then the insurance on the house gave out, and soon the widow found it necessary to dispose of the property. Pending the negotiations the house burned to the ground, and although the widow escaped, everything in her possession had been consumed. She had to borrow clothes before leaving for New York, where she had friends. She resolved not to allow her grief to have a serious effect upon her, but to find some immediate source of support, and took the first opportunity that offered. She had made a specialty of making bread for a friend here who was suffering with indigestion, and who appreciated it at once suggested a means of support—she would bake and sell bread. Calling on neighboring residences and boarding houses, she at once took orders for all she could bake, delivered the bread the same day, and secured regular customers. With the proceeds of successive sales she took in a large supply of materials, and is steadily increasing her profits. She declares that with her ambition she will not remain poor long, and will soon make a big success of her undertaking.—New York Sun.

The Return of the Shirt Waist. Shirt waists of plain, solid color are varied with bands of embroidered insertion or heavy bands of lace, running up or down or crosswise, as the figure may demand, and many of them have bias bands, cuffs and collar of plaid or striped material. Others of plain, solid colored material have cuffs, collar and front box plait of polka-spot material, in which case a plain white tie finishes short at the neck, and a belt of white is worn. Cotton chevise, plique in all colors, duck and blue gingham are the popular waists.

A Den of Rattlesnakes. Mr. Floyd Williams had a narrow escape one day recently. He was sitting beside a log on Mr. Wash Williams' place near Dixie, and threw his arms behind him across the log, when he felt something, and upon looking across the log he saw the snake, rattlesnake. He attacked the gopher hole, which crawled into a gopher hole. He dug it out and killed him. He had twelve rattlesnakes. He dug two others out which had five or six rattlesnakes apiece.—Quintan (Ga.) GRANT IN THE WILDERNESS.

A Wounded Soldier's Close Study of the Great Commander.

"Oh, it was an intensely interesting study—my study of Grant at close range in the Wilderness!" The speaker was the Rev. Theodore Gerrish, a Maine veteran of the civil war.

"All I can never forget that terrible day in 1864, when was fought the first of the two days' bloody battles of the Wilderness," continued Mr. Gerrish. "I at the time lay wounded under a tree, close to Grant's headquarters in the field, and hour after hour watched Grant."

"While serving as a private in my regiment, I was severely, though not dangerously wounded, and, like a great number of others, was taken to the rear. I was placed under a small tree, and, as it happened, within a few rods of the spot where the leader of that mighty host of Union warriors was conducting the battle. In fact, I was so near to Grant that I could see every motion he made, and critically study him in the momentous, fearfully responsible role he was playing."

"And such a study! 'Why, it is not hyperbole to say that it was worth a man's life.'"

When the gripe visited that section, about seven years ago, Herman H. Evers, of 811 W. Main St., Jefferson, Mo., was one of the victims, and has since been troubled with the after-effects of the disease. He is a well-known contractor and builder, a business requiring much mental and physical work. A year ago his health began to fail alarmingly, and he lives to-day in almost a helplessness. He says: "I was troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and a general debility. My back also pained me severely. 'I tried one doctor after another and numerous remedies suggested by my friends, but without apparent benefit, and began to give up hope. Then I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and decided to give them a trial. 'After using the first box I felt wonderfully relieved and was satisfied that the pills were putting me on the road to recovery. I bought two more boxes and continued taking them. 'After taking four boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I am restored to good health and feel like a new man. I am now capable of transacting my business with increased ambition. 'Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a wonderful medicine and anyone that is afflicted with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration and general debility, will find that these pills are the specific. H. EVERS, JR., Notary Public, this 24th day of May, 1897. ANAM POTZKOWSKI, Notary Public. Mr. Evers will gladly answer any inquiry regarding the gripe he has just recovered from. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure people troubled with the after-effects of the gripe because they act directly on the impure blood. They are also a specific for chronic erysipelas, catarrh, rheumatism and all diseases due to impure or impoverished blood."

Little Pigs in Clover. Michael Barry of Hallstead, Penn., has made himself famous on account of his wonderful invention. A few days since seventeen pigs, the largest ever known in this section, arrived on Barry's farm. The mother had made no arrangements for such a large family, and something had to be done to provide nourishment for the young rooters, so the inventive genius of Barry came into play. He made a large tin receptacle, and around the bottom of this main reservoir he attached short pieces of rubber hose, to small holes made for the purpose. On the ends are fastened the pails filled with milk, and the young pigs waddle up and draw nourishment. The litter is doing well.—New York Press.

Sweden's Matches. The oldest match manufacture in the world is in Sweden. Matches were made there long before the old, riddled splinter of wood, tipped with sulphur, was discarded with the tinder boxes for which they were used. In twenty-five years the export trade of Sweden in foreign matches increased to 10,000,000 boxes a year.

PRACTICE SHEEP HUSBANDRY.

Let the rams have plenty of fresh air, good pure water, drawn from a good, and fresh as it is drawn, and good food, and they will reward the care. Don't crowd the sheep too much. Ten square feet is ample room in a stable or pen. The sheep will move about contentedly with this allowance of room. Less may do, but not for ewes with lamb.

Give plenty of dry litter in the pen, and stables. There is nothing better than leaves from a wood lot for sheep. It is the natural bed for a sheep. And it makes the very finest and richest manure. Keep the floor of the sheep pen dry, it may be a foot deep in litter and manure, but if it is dry and sprinkled well with plaster—the common land plaster known as gypsum—finely ground; this will keep the floor free from odor. Some odor is unpreventable in a sheep pen. It may be due to the large natural perspiration from the sheep, caused by the warmth of the fleece, but care is to be observed that it is not due to a lot of fermenting manure under the feet. When sheep are seen to be biting themselves, look for ticks. If it can be got, a little buttermilk put round the flanks will kill these pests, or a small quantity of some good dip may be used for this purpose. Get rid of every tick before the lambs are due, or when they suffer.

When clover or alfalfa hay is made it is a good plan to scatter a pound or two of salt upon it. It will be absorbed by the hay on its first exposure to dampness. It is best used in this way when the hay is put into the barn, and it prevents mildew if the hay is rather too moist. While sulphur is an important element in the food of a flock, it must not be thought that it is to be given in its raw condition, in which it is not food, but an active purgative. Feed clover hay, alfalfa, turnips, cabbages and such foods as contain this element in a digestible and nutritious form. Sweating, especially after exposure to rain will loosen the wool by causing an inflammatory condition of the skin. When wool is falling off it is too late to save it. Any red spots on the skin, or such irritation as will cause the sheep to rub themselves and tear the fleece, should be attended to without delay. A chilled lamb will be quickly revived by a warm bath and half a spoonful of gin in a pint of milk.

Growing Mushroom on a Large Scale.

Something more than 50 years ago a tunnel was built about 60 feet below the street level of the city of Edinburgh. It was used for a time by one of the railway companies, but has been for many years abandoned. About ten years ago a number of capitalists conceived the idea of using this tunnel as a place for growing mushrooms. The temperature and the darkness are perfectly suited to the growth of this edible, and the experiment has proven a great success. As much as 5,000 pounds of mushrooms have been sent out in one month from the 800 beds kept in active operation. The output is so large that it is said to control the market, and has decidedly affected the growing of mushrooms in France.

New York is glutted with half-rate "artists"—alleged painters of landscapes and marine scenes. Most of them dub and starve. Genius refuses to unbend to mere physical necessity. Why don't these stupid abandon canvas and take up carpet designing? There is money to be made by the change. Until a year ago our carpet patterns were stolen abroad, but now American artists have driven the foreigners nearly out of the business. In the splendid studios of the Philadelphia companies, of the mills of Bigelow, Hartford, Lowell, Smith and Higgins, designs are made almost exclusively by native talent, and excellent salaries are paid, with valuable prizes for competition. It is better to be a carpet designer than to starve. It is more honorable.—New York Press.
