

DEATH OF MISS AMANDA HARRISON

On the eve of going to press, this (Tuesday) evening, we are pained to learn that Miss Amanda Harrison has just passed away—fallen asleep in death. Her early dissolution had been feared for some time, as she had been sinking, slowly sinking, for many days. Miss Harrison was the only daughter of the late Col Stuart Harrison, of honored and beloved memory, and was a woman of many lovable and beautiful traits of character—and a pious and devoted Christian. But it is well with her now! And sweet sleep and rest are her's forever!

Oh, blessed Sleep; that will not break For tears nor prayers, nor love's sweet sighs; Oh, perfect rest that knows no pain; No thought, no thrill of heart or brain; Oh, life sublime beyond all speech 'Till only the pure through dying reach; God understands and His way; are right— Bid His beloved a long good night.

In another column is the notice giving information concerning the re-opening of the Kindergarten. Mrs King inaugurated the kindergarten work in Edgefield, and last year was an object-lesson of the great benefit to little children which this school affords. Well begun is half done. Let parents think earnestly and intelligently of this, and as only to-day is ours, and it may not be the privilege of parents to finish the collegiate education of their children, they can give them what is better, a good beginning on a solid foundation. The superstitious they may then be able to raise for themselves. The re-opening of the Kindergarten should witness the gathering of fifty children between the ages of three and eight.

Mr J. W. DeVore has for sometime been considered and regarded by those who have heard him in the management of law cases as one of the ablest, shrewdest, and hardest working lawyers in the State. His recent victory in the case of Harling and Bunch against King has gained for him the same reputation on the west side of the county that he enjoys at home.

The early education of the children which is the object of the Kindergarten, comprises the most important epoch in the life of a child. It is the period of absorption, when more is learned and retained than at any later time of the life. Habits of system and concentration, a part of the Kindergarten training, give the child a mind well prepared for entrance into the duties of school life. Before the children have become fixed in disposition the Kindergarten teaches them in theory and practice those ideas of usefulness and good deportment which in the future life, will minimize the sorrows of their own heart, the annoyance to teachers, and the embarrassment of parents. The Kindergarten is the grandest educational idea of the age.
