good government, which can impartial execution. By taking a retrospective view of our municipal affairs, comparing the condition of Edgefield in former days with the conditions that obtain at present, one is forced to admit that our town has undergone both a reformation and transformation that are marvelous.

We will refrain from parading our shortcomings and errors of the dead past before the outside world. We, however, make bold to assert, that there is not a town in the state, similarly environed, in which the municipal affairs are more satisfactorily administered than in Edgefield. Such as boisterous and riotous conduct, cursing and swearing on our streets during the day or night to have good roads without the are seldom seen or heard. proper legislation; the present The reckless discharge of fire legislature has set the limitations arms, endangering life and beyond which we may not go.
