SISTERS OF CHARITY

Rely on Pe-ru-na to Fight Catarrh, Coughs, Colds and Grip.

A letter recently received by Dr. Hartman from Sister Beatrix, 410 W. 30th street, New York, reads as follows:

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:

Dear Sir:-"I cannot say too much in praise of Peruna. Eight bottles of it cured me of catarrh of the lungs of four years' standing, and I would not have been without it for anything. It helped several Sisters of coughs, and colds and I have yet to find one case of catarrh that it does not cure."-SISTER BEATRIX.

THE WHIP-POOR-WILL. BY HENRY VAN DYKE.

Henry Van Dyke, the noted Presbyter ian divine and professor of English litera-ture in Princeton University, was first represented in this series when his poem, "The Song-Sparrow," was printed, with a sketch of his life.

Do you remember, father-It seems so long ago—
The day we fished together
Along the Pocono?
At dusk I waited for you,
Beside the lumber mill.
And there I heard a hidden bird,
That chanted "Whip-poor-will."

The place was all deserted;
The mill-wheel hung at rest;
The lonely star of evening
Was quivering in the west;
The veil of night was falling:
The winds were folded still;
And everywhere the trembling air
Re-echoed, "Whip-poor-will."

You seemed so long in coming,
I felt so much alone;
The wide, dark world was round me,
And life was all unknown;
The hand of sorrow touched me,
And made my senses thrill "
With all the pain that haunts the strain
Of mournful "whip-poor-will."

What did I know of trouble?
An idle little lad,
I had not learned the lessons
That make men wise and sad.
I dreamed of grief and parting,
And sometimes seemed to fill
My heart with tears, while in my ears
Resounded, "Whip-poor-will."

'Twas but a shadowy sadness, That lightly passed away; But I have known the substance Of sorrow, since that day. For nevermore at twilight, Beside the silent mill, I'll wait for you, in the falling dew, And hear the whip-poor-will.

But if you still remember, In that fair land of light, The pains and fears that touch us
Along this edge of night,
I think all earthly grieving,
And all our mortal ill,
To you must seem like a boy's sad dream, Who hears the whip-poor-will

CANADA'S WINTER PORT.

Harbor of St. John Has Not Been Froze

Over in Man's Memory.

The most important feature of the recent commercial history of St. John is its claim to the title of being the "winter port of Canada." Its ambition to secure this name is not of recent origin. It has been hoping and planning for it for half a century. Some forty years ago, or nearly ten years before the British provinces were united to form the present dominion, and before either of the great railroads, the Intercolonial or the Canadian Pacific, had been constructed to bring the widely separated provinces into communication with each other, the prediction was made concerning the future of the city: "Looking at its position with regard to Lower Canada St. John must yet become the winter port of the country. If its people will work for it, in a few years it will be

The first prediction of this prophet was a long time in coming true, but St. John did finally become a winter port. There is no way of telling whether it will ever be "the Liverpool of America," or, if it is really going to put the other Atlantic ports out of business, just how many more years they will be permitted to flourish. It is probably a question that the present generation will not have to bother itself certain to rise to a position where it will be known as the Liverpool of

For a great many years St. John's claim to importance was not taken very seriously by any one but her own citizens, but they were certain that its location was such as to eventually make it a great ocean port. The confederation of the provinces took place. Then the Intercolonial Railroad was built. After that came the construction of the great transcontinental enterprise, the Canadian Pacific Railway, and it selected St. John as its Atlantic terminus. Then the prophets said, "I told you so," and began to hustle. The problem how to get Canadian trade through Canadian channels had at last been solved. There was no longer any necessity for sending the business in a round-about way when the ice had the St. Lawrence River blocked so the ships could not get up to Quebec and Montreal for their cargoes. The harbor of St. John has never been frozen within the recollection of the oldest inhabitant, say the people of that city, which is not true of any other harbor south of Hatteras. When the season of navigation closes on the St. Lawrence the freight is hauled on to St. John before it is taken off the cars .- St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

But its scenery is even more varied. How many people, for instance, would dream that there on the very equator is to be found a regular Alpine range? Yet that is the fact, and in this range is to be found the great Mount Ruwenzori, rising probably 20, 000 feet in the air, its summit always enveloped in clouds, and covered with snow and ice. "The kingdom of Uganda is one of the best organized and most civilized African negro kingdoms. The Baganda natives described as 'the Japanese of Central Africa,' are tall and muscular, standing over six feet in height. They are courteous and honest, their chief vice being drunkenness. They make excellent soldiers. . "On the western slope of Mount Elgon are to be found the Masaba, degraded and Simianlike negroes, who are wilder even than the Congo dwarfs. They are hostile and probably represent the most aboriginal race of negroes in Africa. "Cannibalism is practically unknown among the different races, although some tribes devour the raw flesh of animals immediately after killing. The chiefs are worshiped as spirits, and generally are buried in the huts in which they lived. In some cases, however, the corpses are exposed and are devoured by hyenas."-New York Trib-

Each Month's Unlucky Days. Each month has its set of days that are thought to be unlucky. A Philadelphia woman possesses a "Book of Precedents," printed in London in 1616, which contains a calendar with the unlucky days of the year all marked "B." Wouldn't Work Overtime. An extraordinary story of an elephant employed in a timber yard is told in Animal Life. A number of logs had to be moved by him, and only one remained when the bell rang for ceasing work. Of course the elephant knew the bell and what it meant, and was sauntering away, when the foreman bade him move the last log. He did not object, but, with all his tugging and straining, did not manage to lift it. Seeing this, the foreman called up-a second elephant to help, but even the two together did no good-the log could not be stirred. It must be left. Next day, to the foreman's astonish ment, when the bell rang for beginning work the first elephant marched spaight up to the log, lifted it quite easily, and carried it to its proper
