Summer Diarrhoea in Children.

During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. O. Sockland, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children. Sold by G. L. Penn & Son."

Through the kindness of Pastor J. T. Littlejohn, who is as large in soul and power and influence as he is in stature, we were permitted to see the interior of the handsome new church building at Red Hill on Friday last. It is decidedly the largest church auditorium in the county, and its snow white walls and ceiling, beautiful carpet and newly stained seats, make it one of the most attractive.

Mr. R. H. Mims has a cow that is doing her part well toward supplying the home market with beef, so that our people will not be dependent upon the western packers. The happy owner has named his pets "Mary Fair" and "Stella Walker."

Capt. and Mrs. N. G. Evans returned on Monday from a delightful visit to relatives in Macon, Ga. Capt. Evans saw the fish weighed.

The Colored Summer School.

The Edgfield colored Summer School, which convened in Macedonia Baptist church on July 18th, has been very satisfactory to both the Teachers and Professors. There was some fear and uneasiness told by the Teachers during the first day's session, when the news came to the school that the train on which Professor Peters was coming to Edgfield had been wrecked. We are pleased to say that the good work has gone on steadily and pleasantly, with no hindrances excepting the rainy weather. The Teachers have manifested much interest in the school, and have shown how much they appreciate it by attending it.

A literary entertainment which was given by the school on Thursday night, July 26th, was quite a success. The whole evening seems to work in harmony, and the prospect for a successful session is very bright. We have enrolled nearly a hundred Teachers. Another literary entertainment will be given by the school on Friday night, July 27th, the public are cordially invited to attend.

The Summer School had as a part of its program last Thursday night, a debate. The question discussed was "Resolved that the fear of punishment is more conducive to Righteous Living than the hope of Reward."

All engaged in the debate did well; they made good speeches, and brought many clear and strong points. It was all very interesting and instructive. The affirmative speakers were Marshal Harris and Julia Wardlaw; the negative, Edna Tankly and Rev. B. W. Jones. The negative side won.

"Make Hay While the Sun Shines"

There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may last but a day and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may attack some member of the house without warning. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which is the best known medicine for these diseases, should always be kept at hand, as immediate treatment is necessary, and delay may prove fatal. A TRIBUTE.

In memory of Mrs. J. P. Mealing, the beloved wife of Rev. Jobu P. Mealing, of Curryton, South Carolina.

Mrs. Mealing was born near Columbus, Georgia, on May 5th 1836, was educated at the Slade school in Columbus, united with the Baptist church in 1853, was married the third day of December 1856, and died January 1st 1906.

Why say more? No words of praise or love can give added charm to her many virtues or enhance the worth of her long and useful life, and yet, such words fall as soothing balm on the hearts of those who loved her with a love that shall last "beyond the years of time." What a priceless gift is memory! When, in voiceless sorrow, we realize the fact that our best loved are with us no more, we begin to live in the past. We call up the face of those who journeyed with us so long, and live over again and again the scenes in which they shared our joys and sorrows.

Under the influence of this strange power, which enfolds us and them in "silence love and mystery," we thank God that we can remember that this the best of life can be made an enduring treasure, ever a source of sad yet sweetest joy.

The husband, children, and devoted kindred and friends of this good woman were the beneficiaries of her virtues and her sacrifices. She was the engaging center of this large circle. In many dark days of trial and distress, by the force of her unflinching courage, and steadfast faith she strengthened their hands, comforted their hearts, encouraged them to renewed endeavor, and served them for the duty and the struggle each day imposed. She never lost heart or hope, never faltered, never swerved from the path of duty or sacrifice for the good and happiness of those around her. Truly she was a spirit of loving ministrations to human suffering and need.

They say "the good die first." Nay! not so. The best of earth's children, tested and found pure gold, have lived to a "good age" and made their living a constant benediction to sad, and tired, and desponding souls.

In Mrs. Mealing's sphere as helpmeet to her husband, she magnified her wisdom, her purity, and her devotion. For half a century she stood by his side, his right arm and tower of strength. In his minority of fifty years off in physical weakness, oft in mental distress, she was the tender guardian of his health, the wise counsellor of his work, his very inspiration in the long and faithful service he has given to the Master's cause.

"Be still and strong, O man, my brother; hold thy sobbing breath, They whom we loved and lost not long ago Dwell in the mansions far from mortal woe God wipes their tears away." We shall shortly know that lengthened breath Is not the sweetest gift God sends his friend, And that sometimes the sable pall of death Conceals the fairest bloom his love can send, If we could push aside the gates of life, And stand within, and all God's workings see, We could interpret all this doubt and strife, And for each mystery could find a key."
