The South Passes New England.

The intersting fact is developed by a bullctin on "Power Employed in Manufacturers', issued by the Census Bureau that the South out ranks New England. The report sets out that the total amount of power employed in manufacturers at the close of the calendar year 1904 was 14,-641,544 horse-power. To this amount steam engines contributed 10,828,111 horse-power, or 73.9 per cent; waterwheels, 1,647,960 horse-power, or 11.3 per cent.; electric power, owned or rented, 1,592,483 horse-power, or 10.9 per cent.; gas or gasoline engines 289,514 horse-power or 2 per cent; an other kinds of power 283,467 horse-power or 1.9 per cent.

The important part of this report is that section showing how this power er was distributed in geographical divisions. The Middle States ranked first in the amount of power, reporting 5,000,367 horse-power. The Central States were second with 4,077, 298 horse-power; the Southern States third with 2,386,330; the New England States fourth with 2,254,264 the Pacific States fifth with 474,397 and the Western States last with 445, 937. Perhaps the most striking fact revealed by these figures is that the Southern States reported more power than New England. This has not hap pened before in the history of the country. In this connection it is interesting to note that the development in the Southern States has been in the utilization of steam-power. In the South 87.4 per cent. of the pow er was derived from steam and 6.2 per cent. from water, but in New England 59.3 per eent was from steam and 29.2 per cent. was from water.—Charlotte, N. C., Evening Chronicle All Man Man Man

The South's Cotton.

It was Mr. William S. Whitman o Georgia who drew the long bow a the meeting of the "stall-fed financiers" at the bankers' convention i Atlantic City this week. He took th ground that a panie is impossible a the season of the year when the South's cotton crop is moving to take its place of power in the world or commerce. "Yes," he told the bank! ers, "I left our people harvesting billion bushels of grain with which to feed the world. They are gather ing the only crop of sugar this country produces and of all the rice we eat, while their exports of the grain crop this year will excel in value all the gold and silver which was mined from the earth last year. Bring to me all of the grain, all of the provisions all of the feed stuff, all of the steel and all of the iron of the 47 States of this great Union, which was exported last year, and I will sell the cotton crop of 1907, and pay you cash and yet have money enough left to eapitalize 200 national banks."

That is new way of describing the wealth of the South in cotton. It is a novelty in long-bow drawing albeit, it is altogether the truth.-Charlotte Evening Chroniele.

A Record of Service.

For forty-four years The Times-Democrat, of New Orleans, has been the loyal friend of the South, doing all within the power of a most able daily newspaper to advance the interests of its entire section. In point of completeness in every department that goes to make up a great daily, The Times-Democrat has few equals and no superiors. In its news service it is full and exhaustive, and its editorial utterances are always safe, conservative and thoughtful, and withal spiey and pointed. It is indeed a valued friend of the South and a bold champion of the best traditions of the people thereof.

It has always been ristinguished for the athletic prowess hi its students. Its football. baseball, and herosse teams particularly have excelled while it has produced several intercollegiate champions in general athletics. Members of the cames family have from time to time helped the college, until to-day its inductive family about $900,000. Miss Jeanes was always opposed to athletics, holding they absorbed foo much of the students time and engen dered harsh feelings between colleges. She made known this in her will.

The question of accepting the bequest came up at the fall meeting of the Board of Mapagers and a committee, consisting of Joseph Wharton, Charles F. Jenkins and Howard Cooper Johnson was appointed to investigate the lands and make a report to the board at the next meeting in De-

No one seemed anxious to give up the money, but none seemed win ag to take the initiative in advocating the abolition of athletics.

While the committee is investigating the pulse of the college will be felt. From interviews with men prominent in the Quaker college affairs it looks as if the gift would be rejected. Dr. G. A. Hoadley, chairman of the Faculty Committee on Athletics, said:

"Athletics are the blood and bone of a college. They should not be cut out for any amount of money. The faculty are opposed to the acceptance of the gift under the conditions imposed."

Walter Clothier, chairman of the Alumni Athletic Committee, says that so far as his committee goes he does not believe athletics should be given up for any amount. He is also credited with having said that the college would rather win a victory from the University of Pennsylvania on the athletic field than have the money.

Professor Hoag, who represents the liberal element of the faculty, said: "I talked with Miss Jeanes frequently about athletics. She was particularly opposed to football, as she said she had read so much in the papers about the accidents which attended the game. She was also opposed to the gambling that so frequently develops over games. Did you ever stop to think what that phrase-nothing in the paper today-means? It means that in the day no misfortune has befallen any one in our city; that no fire has wiped out a neighbors worldly goods; that the grim angel of death has crossed no threshold of a friend; that no man driven by liquor, hatred or fear has taken the life of a human that no poor devil, handed by the past of the misdeeds of some collect, has crossed the great divide by his own harid.
