

Monkeys Like Scrapping.
 "Monkeys are in a class by themselves," said the circus man. "If one of them has red hair he is sure to be a dandy scrapper. The best fighter is always the leader. They hang together and bow and scrape before the boss just like a good many people. Monkeys with red faces and flat heads will whip the life out of those smaller than they are, but will run like the wind when it comes to an even break. A monkey riot is a funny spectacle. Even in the same cage you will find groups bawling together as if there was some class distinction and the lines were drawn tightly. If two of the big ones come together in a row the others generally stand off and let them have it out, but if any of the little ones get scrapping then the father and mother are apt to mix in, and the next step is a general row. We separate them by turning on the hose and punish them by locking up the den so that they cannot get any peanuts from the crowd and hold back their meals. This plan puts them on their good behavior for a while at least. The monkey likes to eat and likes to be noticed."

Slightly Mixed.
 They had just set up housekeeping and were working on the plan of economy. The bathtub needed a coat of varnish. He promised to attend to it if she would order the varnish. "You'll find the varnish in the closet with the groceries, dear," she said a day or so later, "and the can opener in the knife drawer."

He opened the can and, according to his contract, applied the coat of varnish and then left it to dry. The soup for dinner that day had to be abandoned, for somehow it possessed a peculiar paint shop odor that was nauseating. After dinner he took her to inspect his work on the bathtub. Now that it had dried it had a certain unnatural appearance. The top and sides were streaked, and here and there little lumps clung to it. "The man said that was the best varnish," she exclaimed, taking up the can of varnish for an examination, "but why, dear, you have varnished the bathtub with the oil tail soup?" "Then it was the varnish we ate, dear," he added, horror-stricken. —Lippincott's.

A Model Hotel "Boots."
 It was in a Dublin hotel, and as I closed the bedroom door, says a writer in the Manchester Guardian, I noticed that the end of one of my boot laces was inside the room, the boot to which it was attached having been placed as usual outside. When I awoke next morning the boot lace end was still there, and I opened the door expecting to find that the boots had not been cleaned, but I was wrong. A very careful hotel servant, a very model among "boots," had found the lace tightly gripped by the door and rather than disturb me had carefully removed it from the lace holes and carried away the boot. Presumably I heard a quiet noise outside the door. The model boots had brought my boots back again and was industriously relacing that one which he had unlaced.

Cheese in the Middle Ages.
 Cheese must have been a rather dear or scarce article of food in 1502, for it is recorded in the "Black Books" of the Honorable Society of Lincoln's Inn that at Easter term, 1502, it was "agreed by the governors and benchers of this term that if any one of the society shall hereafter cut cheese immoderately at the time of dinner or supper or shall give cheese to any servant or to any other or shall carry it away from the table at any time he shall pay 4 pence for each offense. The butlers of the society shall present such defaulters weekly under pain of expulsion from office." —Law Times.

Her Test.
 "When a young man proposes you should always be careful and test his love," cautioned the conservative chaperon. "But I go one better, auntie," twitted the pretty girl. "Do you see this tiny bottle?" "Yes. Does it contain perfume?" "No; it contains acid. I test the engagement ring."

Not Very Funny.
 "I did my best to be entertaining," said the young man in a voice of sorrow. "Did you succeed?" "I'm afraid not. I recited Hamlet's soliloquy. She looked at me reproachfully for several seconds and then exclaimed, 'I don't think that's very funny.'" —London Telegraph.

His Conscience.
 "He's forever prating about what his conscience tells him. What does his conscience tell him, anyway?" "Apparently it usually tells him what awful sinners his neighbors are." —Catholic Standard and Times.

THE ONE GREAT GATHERING OF SOUTH CAROLINIANS
 The State Fair This Year—October 26 to 30.
 The fortieth annual State Fair will be held at Columbia this year October 26-30, and it gives promise to be the greatest State Fair ever held. No matter how bad the crops or how hard the times, everybody goes to the State Fair at Columbia. It has been the custom now for nearly half a century, and it will ever continue so with crowds increasing each year.
 The State Fair is the one time of the year that work can be put down and everyone have a good time for a few days. Old acquaintances and relatives meet at the State Fair if they are not fortunate enough to meet elsewhere during the year. Friends meet friends and college men meet their college mates and renew friendships with good stories of the good times of the past.
 This year the fair holds even more than that for South Carolinians. It has been made up of new exhibits that will teach the farmers new methods and improvements that mean money to every one of them.
 The races will be the best ever seen in the South. This being the first year that the Fair Association has entered the Virginia-Carolina Circuit. The stake races will bring many of the country's very finest racers. The two football games will draw thousands of enthusiastic "rooters" from both the Carolinas.
 Columbia is better fitted to take care of her guests than ever before, with more hotel accommodations. The railroads will all put on special rates, as usual. President John G. Mobley, of the Fair Association, has worked hard to get everything in ship-shape, and he predicts the largest crowd in the history of the fair.
