"Having used Peruna for catarrhal troubles, I am able to testify to its great remedial excellence and do not hesitate to give it my emphatic endorsement and earnest recommendation to all persons afflicted by that disorder. It is also a tonic of great usefulness."

Mr. T. Barrecoot, West Aylmer, Ontario, Canada, writes: "Last winter I was with pneumonia after having taken Peruna. I took Peruna for two months and became quite well. I also induced a young lady, who was all run down and confined to the house, to take Peruna, and after taking Peruna for three months she is able to follow her trade of tailoring. I can recommend Peruna for all who are ill and require a tonic."

ASTONISHED THE DOCTOR

Old Lady Got Well With Change of Food.

A great scientist has said we can put off "old age" if we can only nourish the body properly.

To do this the right kind of food, of course, is necessary. The body manufactures poisons in the stomach and intestines from certain kinds of food stuffs and unless sufficient of the right kind is used, the injurious elements overcome the good.

"My grandmother, 71 years old," writes a N. Y. lady, "had been an invalid for 18 years from what was called consumption of the stomach and bowels. The doctor had given her up to die.

"I saw so much about Grape-Nuts that I persuaded grandmother to try it. She could not keep anything on her stomach for more than a few minutes.

"She began Grape-Nuts with only a teaspoonful. As that did not distress her and as she could retain it, she took a little more until she could take all of four teaspoonfuls at a meal.

"Then she began to gain and grow strong and her trouble in the stomach was gone entirely. She got to enjoy good health for one so old, and we know Grape-Nuts saved her life.

"The doctor was astonished that instead of dying she got well, and without a drop of medicine after she began the Grape-Nuts." "There's a reason."

PRACTICAL ADVICE ABOUT DIVERSIFIED FARMING

Bitter Rot.

The apple disease known as bitter rot occurs in very destructive form throughout the Piedmont and eastern sections of North Carolina, though it is possibly less destructive further west. In a recent trip through the middle of the State, the writer saw dozens of orchards ruined by this rot which, but for the presence of the rot, would have yielded largely. In many of the orchards visited, the trees were in fine condition, showing suitability of soil and climate, and they bore an abundance of fruit, but closer examination showed that the ground under the trees was completely covered with rotten apples and that the apples still on the trees had numerous specks of soft, brown rot. In many villages and towns all apples offered for sale in stores were affected with this rot.

This rot has been known in destructive form in the United States since 1867. It is estimated to have done $1,500,000 of damage in four counties in Illinois in 1900. In the Middle States the losses are estimated to be from one-half to three-fourths of the entire crop. The president of the National Apple Shippers' Association estimated the damage in the United States in 1900 at $10,000,000.

There are many different types of apple rot; some are hard, some are soft, some wet, some dry, some of one color and some another, etc. The bitter rot of the apple, sometimes called the ripe rot, is a soft, wet, yellow rot, occurring usually as circular spots on the fruit. These spots, of which there may be from one to twenty or more on each apple, enlarge rapidly, run together, and the whole fruit becomes a soft, rotten mess. The disease usually begins while the fruit is still hanging on the tree, and as the disease progresses, many of the apples fall to the ground below.

This rot is caused by a fungus, known as Gloeosporium, the spores of which fall upon the apple, grow, penetrate it, and cause the decay. The spores are produced in immense quantities in small pustules, which appear upon the rotted surface. In many instances the fungus passes the winter in cankered spots on the twigs and bark.

There are two forms of treatment, both of which should be followed.

First, inasmuch as the fungus is known to winter in the canker on the branches, it is very important, when the leaves are off the trees, to carefully inspect the orchard, hunt out these cankers, cut them out and burn them, and thus remove the most dangerous source of spring infection.

Second, the trees should be sprayed with Bordeaux mixture in order to kill all spores which fall upon the fruit or twigs. Spraying should be applied before the buds begin to swell in the spring, just after the blossoms fall, and every ten or fourteen days thereafter until the fruit is almost ripe.

These two treatments combined will, to a very large extent, serve to control this very serious disease.—F. L. Stevens, Biologist, North Carolina Experiment Station.

Spurs for Poultrymen.

Use milk freely to develop chicks and to make hens lay, but use care to keep the vessels clean. Milk left in the vessels, day after day, even if in only small quantities, begins to rot and cause bowel trouble.

The open front poultry house is always good in the South; and during the hot weather it is almost a necessity. Do not force the chickens to steam their strength away by sitting on roosts summer nights in houses that have insufficient ventilation.

Removing and burning the old hay or straw in the nests a number of times during the summer is one of the best means to keep down vermin. Before the new material is put in, give whatever treatment is preferred for combating vermin; but do the work thoroughly.

After the drink vessels have been scalded and well washed, put them out awhile where the bright sun will shine into them well. Sunshine is an excellent germ killer. Vessels containing disease germs are responsible for many deaths, the cause of which is undreamed of.

Very fat hens are likely to die of apoplexy in hot weather. Preventive measures are better than cures, which are not often accomplished. To keep them from being too fat, cut down their ration, especially that part of it that tends to make fat; and force them to hunt more for their feed. Over-fatness is not good for any end.

You belong to the class who keep their house laws looking like a velvet carpet by the frequent use of a lawn mower, the lawn will look all the better if the clippings are caught in an attachment put on the mower for that purpose; and if the clippings are stored in a dry place to cure, they will be convenient next winter for throwing down for the poultry to work over. Some of the clippings,

THE LAW OF HABIT.

That which has been done once is easier done the second time. Reputation is the only basis of perfection. Patient continuance in well-doing conduces by a straight path to glory, honor and immortality.

Since 1874 I have been a steady student of the law of habit—I had well-nigh said the law of fate. I have seen it slowly, gently, imperceptibly, wrap men round and round in its close winding sheet, as if they were Egyptian mummies. So quietly was all this done that they never knew their bondage until the first faint movement toward a better life, when, behold, their helplessness recalled the Indian tortured hunter perpendicularly planted in the ground with earth packed around him even to the lips. A miracle of faith has rescued some of these, but a study of years compels the admission that not more than five in one hundred inebriates, gamblers or libertines are ever permanently reformed. The thoughtless boy, cigar in mouth playing cards "just for fun," and a little later with a glass of beer as the stake, hiding all these things from his mother, saying to himself, "I'll quit this after a while, but I want to sow my wild oats," the idle spendthrift youth with fondness only for the vile company where his worst passions can be gratified; the besotted man, sold under sin, accursed of God and his own conscience and his fellowmen—these are the piteous object lessons that have taught me the supreme power of habit over human destiny. But I saw that the tendency to repeat the same act, and the greater ease with which this is done the second time than the first, and the third time than the second, is the key to paradise as well as to pandemonium. I saw the slow, unerring, unflinching plan of God, by which our habits may become our stepladder to sainthood. And I said to my own heart in the presence of many a bloated inebriate, what I now whisper to you: "No evil habit, however small, shall have dominion over me."—Francis E. Willard.

Rotation of Crops a Good Thing.

One correspondent wishes me to tell why rotation of crops is a good thing. I will give four reasons:

(1) Because no plants thrive long if compelled to feed on their own decay.

(2) Different crops take plant food in different proportions, and the same crop grown continuously uses up what is available in the soil of that which it particularly prefers. At Rothamstead, England, they grew potatoes year after year on the same land until it utterly failed to make potatoes. But when they then put it in barley, it made seventy-five bushels per acre. The potatoes needed the mineral matters, phosphoric acid and potash, and had drawn them down till there was not a sufficient amount of these to make potatoes, but still an abundance for barley.

(3) Constant clean cultivation and exposure to the sun burn up the humus or decayed vegetation in the soil, the home of the soil bacteria that work for the farmer, and the bacteria perish, so that the soil becomes literally a dead soil. Exposure to sunshine is death to the microscopic forms of plants that we call bacteria. Even those forms that are the causes of disease cannot endure the sunshine, and one of the very best means for sterilizing waste matters like sewage is to expose it to sunlight.

(4) We introduce the legume crop in our rotations because they furnish forage for stock and enable us to keep up the humus, making material in the soil, and in their growth get us the nitrogen we need, which we would otherwise have to buy. The vital point in any rotation is the maintenance and increase of the organic decay, the living soil, for, as has been well said, "sand and clay are only the dead skeleton of a soil, humus is its life," and in no way can we keep up this life in the soil but by a rotation of crops that will be restoring what is wasted in the sale crops.

Your rotation would be improved by sowing crimson clover among your corn to prevent winter waste and make a feed crop in the spring that will come off before sowing the peas for hay. Then wheat and clover one year, and then manure the sod and bark to corn. In this way your land will always be protected in winter and will gain humus.—W. F. Massey.

A Land of Milk and Money.

And while you are making the South a land of milk and money you can make all the more cotton on a smaller area of land because of feeding the cows or bees.

Study that record from the A. and M. College herd. When a man makes $880 worth of manure in nine months, what a crop of corn he can make with that manure spread broadcast, and what a crop of small grain following it to be followed by peas and then to cotton, with cash in his pocket to dictate prices to the fertilizer men and no fertilizer to buy except acid phosphate and potash for the peas.

What an area of land you would have to cultivate in cotton that makes 150 to 200 pounds of lint per acre, to equal the amount of money that was made from these cows? I believe that you would never get there. But with the cows and the manure it would not be long before you would be talking about 1000 pounds of lint per acre on only one-fifth the land that now makes the 200 pounds, and crops of corn and small grain that would soon be something more than "supplies," but would be putting money in your purse. But the men who imagine that it does not pay to grow anything but cotton will probably keep on with the 150 to 200 pounds per acre and keep poor and keep their land poor.—W. F. Massey.

THE COUNTRY PRESS.

One of the finest tributes to the country newspaper that has ever been rendered was contained in a recent address by Senator Chauncey M. Depew before the New York Press Association. Mr. Depew said: "I pay my respects to and express my admiration for the country editor. His lines are not cast in the places of the great and profitable organs of the metropolis, whose profits are reckoned often by the hundreds of thousands of dollars every year. But the country editor lives in and is part of the community. His virtue is not so much what he prints as in what he refuses to print. He could easily destroy the peace of the community by admitting to his paper the scandals and gossip of his neighbors. But he stands as a censor and guardian of public morals and I know of no conditions under which the public is appealed to in a certain measure where the utterance is so free from criticism as the general tone of the country press."

The Ingenuity of Inventors.

The ingenuity of inventors and manufacturers is ever at work in the endeavor to reduce the expense of production, and at the same time to improve the quality of articles having a large sale. This is not only beneficial to the purchasing public, but it inures to the benefit of the producer in increasing sales and preventing competition. This has been so in the case of farm machinery, clothing, shoes, bicycles, etc., and now it is apparent in the safety razor field. Thousands of this style of razor have been sold at from $1.50 to $5 each and given satisfaction. Recently manufacturers have applied more scientific principles and improved methods in their manufacture, and the result is seen in the "Shrp Shavr" razor, which is sent postpaid for twenty-five cents in stamps by the Book Publishing House, 134 Leonard street, New York. It is superior to any razor sold, being bought largely by those already owning the highest priced razors. Not every one knows that the best results are obtained by having two or three razors and alternating them in use. This practice of alternating possibly accounts for the very large sale of this low priced implement.

Trust in the Lord.

Sometimes men are dissatisfied with their work and with the position they occupy. They think they are not appreciated, and that they are competent to fill what they regard as much more important positions. This may sometimes be true; but if such persons are faithful in the positions they occupy, their worth will be recognized, and they will be called to such positions as they are found competent to fill. But a man of real worth may be successful in one position, to which he is adapted, while he would be a total failure in another to which his talents are not suited. Men are not always the best judges of their own abilities, or of the positions which they are best qualified to fill. It is always better for the place to seek the man than for the man to seek the place. Modesty is generally an evidence of worth, while presumption is almost invariably an evidence of shallowness or unreliability. If a man has but a small field, let him cultivate it well; when it becomes too small for him others will perceive it; and he will be called to more extensive labors. A man who is always laboring to do good will succeed; while a man who is always seeking for place will fail.

If one believes that he is in God's hands and engaged in God's work, why should he not commit himself to God's will as to allow God to put him forward. Does he fear that God may neglect him and allow some one to supplant him? This is a most unworthy view of God, and ought never to be entertained by one who believes himself called of God and living in communion with Him. The meek are to inherit the earth, according to the Saviour's teaching, and he illustrated it in his own life. "Commit thy way to him and he shall bring it to pass," says one whose experience taught him lessons by which we may profit. "The trouble with most persons is, they want to choose their own way and are unwilling that God should lead them.—Methodist Recorder.
