Golden Seal Root.

Golden Seal, the root of the above plant, is a very useful medicine. Many people gather it in our rich woodlands during the summer. Few people know how valuable it is in dyspepsia, catarrh, and as a general tonic.

Many thousands of pounds of this root are used each year in the famous catarrh remedy, Peruna. This fact explains why everybody uses Peruna for catarrh.

Peruna is sold by your local druggist. Buy a bottle today.

WOULD HAVE BEEN DEAD

Says Temple Clark, of Pope, Had it Not Been for Cardui, Now in Good Health.

Pope, Tenn.—"As the result of a fall from a horse, I suffered intense agony for about 4 years," writes Mrs. Temple Clark, of this place. "I was irregular and had falling feelings and other womanly trouble. At last I was induced to take Cardui, the woman's tonic, and it helped me a great deal. I certainly believe if it had not been for Cardui and Theodor's Black Draught, I would have been dead, instead of having the blessing of health.

"I love a dollar, but I have never seen one I think as much of as I do of a bottle of Cardui. I could tell a great deal more and not get tired. I recommend it to all my friends, for I am sure it will cure others as it has me."

Remember that Cardui is a vegetable extract, composed of valuable medicinal ingredients, which build up vitality, tone up the nerves and strengthen the womanly constitution.

For over 50 years, Cardui has been in successful use. Its merit is proven and known. Using it is no new experiment. It has stood the greatest of all tests—the test of TIME.

NOTE—The Cardui Home Treatment for Women consists of Cardui (31), Theodor's Black Draught (35c), or Veto (50c) for the liver, and Cardui Antiseptic (50c). These remedies may be taken singly, by themselves, if desired, or three together, write to Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for special instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent in plain wrapper, on request.

Beneficial Road-Making.

The importance of road-building in civilization will receive illustration in the completion of 300 miles of macadamized highways in the Philippines. These bring isolated barbarians into contact with populous centers. This is a modern application of the familiar policy of Rome, whose roads were built so well that at many points they are today available for traffic. They penetrated the rayless gloom of German forests, they crossed on viaducts the gullies of the Appennines, they provided a firm footing for the legion across the marshes of the Iberian peninsula, and made a straight path through many a wilderness. Just as in our day civilization in a new country huddles close to the steel rails and the whistle of the locomotive, so in the days of Horace and Virgil the Goths and the Vandals flocked to their villages, and came to the meeting of the ways not merely to fight the Roman legionary, but to learn of the "mercator" what the rest of the world was like beyond their bristling mountains and rock-bound estuaries. Thus in this day the head-hunters and bandits of the Philippines will be taught the arts of peace. But the work, it is estimated, will still require seventeen years for completion. The benefits of similar work in Porto Rico have become apparent.

Sweetened Faith.

Recently the Register called attention to the testimony of a prominent physician that the proportion of the use of drugs is declining. Added evidence now comes from England to the same effect. A proprietary pill widely used and popular in the United Kingdom has been found, on analysis, to contain nothing but pure sugar. Yet it cures, as the testimonials prove.

There is no reason to doubt the testimonials. We can't all be straight believers in the faith cure. Sweet faith, but sweeter still is the faith that is founded on the sugar pill. No doubt they cure. Did not the old New England doctor, generations ago, make pills of bread dough, stain them without with rhubarb, and with them cure half the ills his patients evidenced? He was a tyro, it appears. The inventor of the sugar pill has greatly improved on him. Long live the sugar pill. May it march on to conquer all the ills of the flesh. It is cheaper than quinine, and produces no "head." Rarely sweet is sweetened faith.—New Haven Register.

A Wonderful Clock.

An electric clock without hands is exhibited in Chicago. Its pendulum weights more than 3,000 pounds. It contains 5,485 colored bulbs and over a mile of wire. The minutes are indicated by sixty series of lights, each series containing thirty-two globe covered bulbs, radiating from an ornamental centerpiece to the outer edge of the dial. Shorter rows of different colored lights indicate the hour, and these change their position twelve times during each sixty minutes. The seconds are shown by sixty lights placed at equal distances around the extreme outer edge of the face. The hour figures are three feet high, outlined in colored lights. Each second the illumination in the outer circle of light moves forward one bulb, and when the dial has been entirely circled, the lights indicating the minute also advance, and the hour hand, formed by lights, makes its slow journey at five minute intervals.

Foot Rot and Its Prevention.

No flock can thrive where this is present, and as undoubtedly it is contagious, it is wise to submit all bought sheep (which should be few) to a thorough disinfecting before being allowed to mix with the general flock. Generally speaking, it may be said that foot rot is the outcome of laziness, and with due care it should rarely be present to any large extent.

Passing the whole flock twice during the year through a trough in which a solution of arsenic and potash, or some other equally effective ingredient, is placed, is strongly recommended.—Inland Farmer.

Eye Disease.

Dr. David Roberts, Wisconsin State Veterinarian, says:

Sore eyes may be due to various causes, such as injury or catarrhal infection, and when due to the latter the entire head is apt to become affected.

It is advisable to keep animals thus affected in a dark stable during the day, allowing them to pasture at night.

The eyes should be bathed several times daily in an antiseptic solution, after which time an eye lotion should be injected into the eye. Give animals access to medicated salt.

Lamb Feeding.

Corn and the bearded or Scotch barley, when fed with alfalfa, were about equal in value for mutton production. Barley in this test proved to be a shade the better. Twenty-seven per cent less alfalfa and twenty-eight per cent less grain was required where barley replaced emmer in a ration.

Grade lambs with mutton sires made greater gains, conditions being similar, than did Rambouillet lambs, though a record of food consumption for each class was not kept.

The Western stockman has a feed in barley that is of great value for meat production, and may be used to advantage as a corn substitute.—Wyoming Station.

Curing Clover Hay.

I have read a good deal in farm journals about curing alfalfa, etc., under hay caps, but have never seen my method published. While I do not pretend to say it is perfect, it gives the best results of any method I have ever seen tried, considering quality of hay and expense of making it.

I start cutting just as soon as the clover comes into bloom, and try to arrange to have it all cut by the time the heads begin to turn brown. My mowing outfit consists of one mower, one side delivery rake, one hay loader and rack wagon, a two-beel cart attached to hoisting rope of harpoon fork.

Corn Versus Oats as Horse Feed.

The Ohio station recently conducted some experiments to test the widespread belief that oats are superior to other grain as a feed for horses. Six mature grade Percheron geldings were fed on a basal ration of clover and timothy hay, three receiving oats and three corn as a supplementary ration. Estimating corn to be worth forty cents per bushel, oats thirty cents per bushel, and hay $8 per ton at the time the experiments were made, it was found that the average cost of food per hour of work was 3.3 cents for the corn-fed horses and 4.54 cents for those fed oats. The use of corn to the exclusion of other grain for a period of forty-eight weeks was not found detrimental to the health of work horses and they endured hard work during the hot weather as well as those receiving oats. When mixed (clover and timothy) hay was fed to mature geldings at general farm work, ear corn was practically as efficient, pound for pound, as oats. A drop in weight of the corn-fed horses coincident with the beginning of the use of shelled corn indicates that ear corn is to be preferred above shelled corn for work horses.

Feeding the Crops.

The noted millionaire farmer, David Rankin, of Missouri, says:

I have been asked why I always feed all my corn, and I always say—first, I find it profitable to feed it, because in that way I can get full value out of it, and secondly, I also gain an immense amount of fertilizer, and then to haul my corn to the railroad to ship would be a big job. And, further, I do not believe in selling farm material. You see, I run my farming business something on the plan of the manufacturing industries of the country. I want to sell the finished product, and can do so only by feeding all I raise to stock. If by doing so, I gain only an average of $1 a head for the cattle and hogs I feed, you see it pays me. But, of course, I expect to make more than that.

Colors for Houses.

The safe colors for a house, besides red, are white, gray, yellow and brown. Yellow or gray, with white trimmings, suits many a plain pitched-roofed or square colonial house. Grays and browns are good for ugly nondescript ones; the grays always being pleasanter on the yellow shades than on cold blue tones. White suggests the formal type again. It is a very good color for a country house, showing it up from a distance in fascinating glimpses, for it needs trees about it, and flowers to sparkle against its walls. Such a house will be attractive when the leaves are gone from the trees, for the bare boughs will serve to soften the effect.—Scraper's Magazine.

A Minifying Estimate.

"Does your son know the value of a dollar?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox, "he has some idea of it. He knows better than to invite the scorn of the waiter at whose table he dines by offering him one as a tip."—Richmond Evening Star.

Woman's Questions.

They faced her with the gloom of death

From breakfast time to midnight's breath;

Where'er she stirs, at her they stare;

"I wonder what I'm going to wear?"

With changeless and persistent will

They hunt her on the stairs, the sill;

Grim as the changeless law of fate:

"I wonder if my hat's on straight?"

In household hours of toil and play,

In pastimes at the end of day,

Re-echoing through the realms of night:

"I wonder if my hat's a sight?"
