

"I Can't Sing."

How many young and old make this answer when urged to accept a song book and join in the singing! I know a gentleman who says he could not recognize "Jesus Lover of my soul" or "Nearer my God to thee" if he were to hear the tunes without the words, so wholly unable is he to distinguish one tune from another. But you would never know this from his attitude during the church song service. He procures a song book, turns to the number and from all outward appearance is singing. What he really is doing is just reading the words over and trying to get the tune, although he says as far as he knows, he has never succeeded in getting it. You who "can't sing" adopt this method; it might turn out that you will be more successful in catching the tune than the gentleman above. You may not be able to sing well or even moderately well, but, at least, you can say the words over. Perhaps you are not a Mrs. Rohrer, but it would never do to give a hungry husband the excuse "I can't cook" (if the cook leaves between meals) when he returns from his day's work. It would be safer to have the stove hot and you be going through the motion of cooking.

white. The menu was very tempting and in this the color scheme was carried out. Mrs. Walker has always proved herself a charming hostess, and this occasion is another of the many delightful affairs she has afforded guests and friends this summer.

Rev. G. A. Wright, of Newberry, and Mr. Sumter Wright, of Greenwood, are visiting at the home of their father, Mr. Wm. Wright, who is sick.

On Sunday morning at the Baptist church Dr. Dorset preached before the local lodge of Odd Fellows, using as his text, Romans, 1-14, "I am debtor both to the Greeks and to the Barbarians, both to the wise and unwise." The scripture lesson was the parable of the good Samaritan. The members of the lodge entered the church in a body wearing the robes of rank in office, and occupied the front pews. There were several visiting brethren from Edgefield and the Ridge.

Dr. and Mrs. Horace Wright, of Georgetown are spending awhile here.

Mr. Ransom Padgett, of Edgefield, spent Sunday here at the home of Mr. J. C. Lewis.

Mrs. John M. Wright gave a large reception on Thursday in compliment to Mrs. W. A. Kirby, a charming young bride, who has recently made her home. The arriving guests were refreshed with fruit nectar on the front veranda, and from here passed into the hallway which was a veritable bower of green, with foliage and blooming plants. The receiving party stood in the parlor and with Mrs. Wright were Mesdames W. A. Kirby, H. S. Grant, and Misses Leila Livingston and Lyl Parrish. Assisting Mrs. Wright in receiving were Mesdames C. F. Pechman, Peter Epes, A. P. Lewis, M. L. Crouch and Miss Emmie Wright. In the dining room a salad course with ices, was served. About 75 guests called during the hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Blavers, of Ridge, were guests of Mrs. Dink Lott, the first of the week.
