THE AGRICULTURAL DISPLAYS SPLENDID

Rivalry Between Various Agricultural Clubs Exceedingly Keen and Interest Is Intense.

Augusta, Ga.—The agricultural display at the Georgia-Carolina Fair, which will be held in Augusta, November 6 to 11, will be the biggest feature at the fair to the majority of attendants. The competition in this department will be strong. The various club and individual exhibits will even surpass those at the fair here last year. The agricultural display at the fair this year will be in all larger than last year and in every respect it is expected to be finer. The live stock exhibits will be unusually good, and it is already known that several fine animals—above the ordinary—will be on exhibit. There are always a very large number of entries in this line and especially good show is expected this fall.

The superintendent of the agricultural exhibits at the coming fair, Mr. J. M. Westbrook of Beech Island, is receiving inquiries nearly every day in regard to entries and rules governing the department of agriculture at the fair. His assistant, Dr. W. E. Mealing of North Augusta, is also answering questions about the agricultural exhibits at the fair this year. Doctor Mealing is a student of agriculture.

Suffragettes Raise—What Do You Think.

Ten women, smartly dressed, were making one minute speeches on woman and the ballot to a corresponding number of victims yesterday afternoon at the yellow trimmed booth of the Woman Suffrage Party at the Pure Food Show in Madison Square Garden. Yellow sashes across their bosoms shrieked for "Votes for Woman."

A portly dame, her arms full of samples and three trailing children behind her, paused to cry out to a friend in scornful accents: "These are the women that raise h— instead of babies."

is ready to inform any one about matters regarding the exhibits in his department.

There will be a large number of club exhibits at the fair among which are the Meriwether, Schultz' Hill, Clark's Hill, Beech Island and the Richmond County Agricultural Society. The club exhibits are the most interesting part of this line of the fair. The Richmond County Agricultural Society's exhibit will be a new one. It did not compete for the prizes at the fall fair last year, but it will be "right there" this year. Another fine exhibit this year will be that of the Georgia and Florida railway, showing the products of the "wiregrass country." Their exhibit at the last fair was splendid and was complimented on all sides. Some of the finest products raised in this section are grown along the line of the Georgia and Florida railway.

The individual agricultural exhibits at the coming fair will be even better than those of last year. There will be many and the competition among them is going to be keen. By now those who intend to make exhibits in the coming fair realize that they have got to put out a display a great deal better than they had at the fair the year before in order to successfully compete with the other exhibitors. Every exhibitor, no doubt, realizes this, and the consequence is that each year these exhibits are much improved.

It will be of interest to agricultural exhibitors that a scale of points as to merit will be used in judging the agricultural exhibit this year. Government institutions are not allowed to compete for premiums. Another important rule is that no article can compete for two premiums. The following is a list of premiums to be given this year in the agricultural department:

No.	Premium.	First Premium	Second Premium
1.	For the best, largest and most artistically displayed agricultural exhibit by any club in Georgia or South Carolina—produced by members of said clubs.	$275.00
2.	Next best as above.	250.00
3.	Third best as above.	225.00
	Consolation prize, $200. For the club not receiving first, second or the third award.
		4.00	2.00
4.	For best collective, individual agricultural display grown by the exhibitor as above.	$100.00	$50.00
5.	For the best and heaviest 100 ears of corn.	4.00	2.00
6.	For the best and heaviest 2 bushels quality, in bales of not less than 75 pounds each.

19.	For the best display of peavine hay, not less than five bales of 75 pounds each	4.00	2.00
20.	For the best display of bacon, home-raised, not less than 100 pounds	15.00	8.00
21.	For the best display of pumpkins, not less than 10 pounds	2.00	1.00
22.	For the best gallon of cane syrup, exhibited in glass	3.00	1.00
23.	For the best 1 dozen stalks of sugar cane	2.00	1.00
24.	For the best 5 pounds of sugar	2.00	1.00
25.	For the best, largest and most attractive exhibit of home-raised syrup in gallon jars	8.00	4.00
26.	For best display fall vegetables, quality and variety considered	8.00	4.00

RACING WILL BE FEATURE AT FAIR

Many Horses That Performed at Augusta Last Season Now in Grand Circuit—Fine Prospects for Racing This Year.

Augusta, Ga.—The racing feature at the Georgia-Carolina Fair every year is one of the greatest of all the attractions. Those who have an idea that Augusta's fair doesn't have choice talent each fall should take a look at the summaries of the races in the grand circuit, where a number of horses who performed on the local track are making great records.

Within the fair grounds inclosure each winter a great number of horses are wintered and trained and becoming used to racing on the track and because of having great numbers of practice heats the horses get into the very best of condition for making fast time.

At the approaching fair, which opens on November 6, and continues throughout the week, there will be both harness and running races
