HAPPY IN A SWED-LIKE HOME

Aged Kansas Woman Can't Keep Warm in Old Shack—To Have New House.

Kansas City.—There is happiness in the little Kansas City, Kan., shack of loose boards and boxes that Grandma Bass calls home.

Formerly Grandma Bass was used to much better things. Even after the death of her husband several years ago thoughts of becoming a public charge did not enter her life.

now is, living outdoors, attempting to regain strength. Grandma Bass was not at home when visitors called. No smoke was coming from the tin stovepipe, which was stuck through a hole in the side of the little board and box shack, and the visitors could see no door at which to knock.

"Don't you nearly freeze in that little house?" she was asked. "Well, it gets pretty chilly some times," she answered. "But I've got used to the cold. Once I would not believe I could stand living as I now live, but circumstances force a person to get used to everything," she said, smiling.

"How he found the culprit Tennessee Man Who Started a Skunk Farm Had Trouble Right at the Beginning.

Louisville.—A farmer of Tennessee started a skunk farm a year ago and stocked it with twenty fine animals. He was beginning to count up his returns at $3 per head when he began to miss his animals.

enterprising devices toiling his skunks into a bag with soft musk on a banjo. It is said that the discovery of this peculiar love of music on the part of the skunks disconcerted the farmer for a moment but he succeeded in planting 37 No. 6 shot in the seat of the pants of one of the banjoists as he went over the fence. The skunk stealing stopped.

Fighting Parson Feared. Banning, Cal.—Many Indians of the different reservations of Riverside county are concerned over the announcement received from Denver that the Rev. Charles C. Brannon, the "fighting parson" of the Methodist faith, had been appointed chief special officer of the Indian service in place of Mr. Coggeshall, who takes an Indian agency in New Mexico.
