LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

"Winter keeps er comin' and de coal done gone."

Mrs. A. H. Corley spent Friday in Augusta.

This is the first snow we have had this spring.

Better mind your Easter eggs to keep them from freezing.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Padgett spent Sunday in Greenwood, making the journey in their car.

Mrs. James S. Byrd and little Fritzmaurice have gone to Columbia for the Easter season.

Mr. O. L. Dobson of Augusta spent Sunday here with his mother, Mrs. Emma Dobson.

Lieut. Gov. A. J. Bethea of Columbia was among the visitors in Edgefield Sunday.

An attractive array of Easter merchandise is now displayed at all of the dry goods stores.

Bear in mind that all fools will be especially active to-morrow, that being the day set apart for them.

Early this week eggs were selling at 15 cents per dozen, which is lower than usual for the week preceding Easter.

We publish a very interesting letter this week from our friend, W. D. Ouzts, Jr., who is a member of the Clemson student body.

Messrs. Stewart & Kernaghan are advertising some seasonable implements this week. This popular firm has everything the farmers need in the way of useful and improved implements.

The bank of Edgefield will hold its annual meeting to-day and the Farmers Bank will hold its meeting next Wednesday, April 7.

Do yourself the justice to visit our Millinery Department before making a definite selection elsewhere.

Rubenstein.

Mrs. J. P. Matthews of Columbia visited her sister, Mrs. J. W. Stewart, and attended the reception in honor of Mrs. Leslie Kernaghan on Saturday.

From April 5 to May 15 we will give to some lucky customer a 5-pound box of Norris candy every Saturday night. Ask for a ticket with each cash purchase.

Collett & Mitchell.

A large number of teachers should attend the meeting of the Teachers' Association that is to be held in the court house Saturday.

The little advertisement which Mr. S. B. Mays inserted in The Advertiser twice has sold about a score of pigs. Some orders were received from North Augusta and Plum Branch.

Mr. D. Baist Anderson came down Saturday to see his mother, Mrs. Emma Anderson, who has been quite ill for some time. Mr. Anderson is one of the largest farmers in Spartanburg county.

Dr. E. Pendleton Jones is expected to arrive Thursday night and a large number of people, irrespective of church affiliation, will meet him and his family at the train. A committee from the church will meet them at Trenton.

The guano movement from Edgefield is quite heavy, some days the public square being as crowded with wagons as on some days a year ago. The hauling began so late that it is hardly possible for the consumption to be as large as for 1914.

Reports come in from practically every section to the effect that grain is small and off in color, being due doubtless to the heavy rains and the late spring. However there is yet time enough to make a good crop if conditions are favorable hereafter.

Mr. Leslie S. Kernaghan and his bride returned from their wedding journey of two weeks, during which time they visited Washington, Philadelphia, New York and other northern cities. They took a trip up the Hudson river as far as Poughkeepsie, visiting the business college of that city, which is the foremost institution of the kind in the country. Mr. Kernaghan is a graduate of this college.

The cantata, "A Saloonless Nation in 1920," has been postponed until Friday night May 14.

This is a good time to begin the spring cleaning of the old town. Mayor Corley keeps the public square and the streets free of all waste and refuse matter. Now let the home owners look after their premises.

Mr. J. G. Byrd, the public cotton weigher, has up to this time weighed about 7,000 bales, while for the entire season last year he only weighed 6,500. Mr. Byrd estimates that 1,000 bales more will be weighed on the Edgefield market.

Mr. H. W. Quarles of the Red Hill section was in town Monday and brought along a large number of cans of delicious desert peaches which he readily sold. In addition to peaches, Mr. Quarles canned a large quantity of vegetables. He practices living at home.

Why is it that robins are not slaughtered now as they were several years ago? Probably it is due to the more stringent game laws and the possibility of the game warden swooping down on the slayer. At any rate we are glad to see that robins are not molested as formerly in this section.

A welcome service for the new pastor, Dr. E. Pendleton Jones, will be held at the Baptist church Sunday night. A welcome will be extended from all the churches in town, Rev. J. R. Walker representing the Methodist church, Rev. R. G. Shannonhouse the Episcopal church, Rev. E. C. Bailey the Presbyterian church and Mr. Orlando Sheppard will welcome Dr. Jones on the part of the church.

CLEMSON ENCAMPMENT.

dred yards from where the camp was situated. He has about fifty dogs which he keeps mainly for pleasure. The race was very short, for the fox ran about five hundred yards, and jumped up a tree, where he was caught and put up again until the next morning, then turned loose for another race. This time the dogs caught and killed him.

At three in the afternoon we had to give the people of the town another dress parade. The streets were crowded again and it was a hard matter for us to go through manual of arms, when so many girls were there watching us. After being marched back to camp, and released many of the cadets attended and enjoyed another dance that was given for their benefit that night. Those that did not attend the dance stayed around town and enjoyed the movies.

Friday morning we broke camp. We had to take the tents down and fold them up, then get our blanket rolls and accoutrements ready for the return march. Having gotten everything ready to return, we were released until 1 p. m. At one we assembled, put our blanket rolls on our shoulders and our accoutrements on. At 1:15 the bugle sounded for forward march. All then marched to the depot, put our accoutrements on the cars, then attended the ball game. Clemson played against Furman, and of course came out with the victory. At 5:30 we assembled at the depot, and the first sergeants called the roll, then we boarded the train bound for good old Clemson once more. Every one kept his eyes on the town that he had had such a royal time in for the past four days until it vanished from his sight. We soon reached Cherrys, and after a few minutes march we reached barracks again. Although every one of us had a sumptuous time I think every one warmly welcomed his old room once more.

In conclusion I must say that the conduct of the cadets was excellent, and every one conducted himself in as gentlemanly manner as possible. W. D. Ouzts, Jr. Clemson College, S. C.

The Crusade of the Women of Johnston Against the Saloon in 1881.

The spring of that year was a sad gloomy time for our little town. Whiskey and drunkenness were everywhere, also card playing and gambling of all kinds. Of the ten or twelve stores that were here, six or seven were bar-rooms. Ladies and children were almost afraid to go on the streets especially on Saturday afternoons. The municipal election was soon to be held and so much were the men under the control of fear of the saloon-keepers that while some were for prohibition it was hard to find a man who was willing to allow his name to be seen on the prohibition ticket.

Mr. W. J. Huiett was interviewed. At first he refused, but when the women of the town sent a petition begging him to accept the nomination he did accept, and it was then that the call came for the women to work for the election of Mr. W. J. Huiett.

A day was appointed, and although we had a small union that had been organized by our beloved Mrs. Sallie F. Chapin, South Carolina's first president of the W. C. T. U. we wished to have the co-operation of the women of the town in a body. Mr. Hundley, then pastor of the Baptist church, with two girls, went to all the homes, inviting the mothers, daughters and sisters to meet at the Methodist church that afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. At the appointed hour the church was filled with the women of Johnston. Mr. W. L. Rogers, the pastor of the Methodist church being the only man present opened the meeting with such a prayer for wisdom and guidance in this undertaking that I believed all were aroused to enthusiasm on the subject. The local president of the W. C. T. U. was present, but not feeling quite fit that afternoon, the Corresponding Secretary was asked to take the chair and call the meeting to order and state the object of the meeting. After hearing the object for which we were here, some were afraid their husbands might object and hesitated to join us, but we having convinced them that we must all go together soon they consented. We formed into a procession of two and two, the wife of the pastor heading the line with another lady. I expect we looked quite formidable, but I assure you we did not feel so. A band of weak, timid nervous women, doing something certainly out of our line of work, but were strengthened by the thought, that it was for "home and loved ones. As we neared the worst saloon, those in front halted, but only for a moment; a dear old country woman, who had never before thought she could speak a word in public, came forward and telling us she was not afraid, she was the first to press the green screen and enter the door. The keeper, although under the influence of whiskey at the time came forward and as politely as he could, asked our business. We told him how and what we wished him to do, and although he would make no promises, he afterward said, had we talked much longer he would have broken down and cried.

To the honor of the saloon let it be said, though we met many black looks, we were not insulted, only one telling us "we had better be at home at work."

Thus we sowed the seed, and a prohibition law for our town was the harvest.

After that several men who had been active in the movement were threatened by having a bundle of lightwood splinters and matches tied to the door knobs, but nothing came of it.
