

THE . CORNER . STORE

What's the condition of your home to-day? Are you neglecting its equipment because the other end of the world is at war? If so, you are doing the wrong thing. Your home is your life. Everything man holds dear is centered in the home. Then why see the home reach an uncheerful condition. This is the time of all times to make the home cheerful. Crops are good, prices fair, money is plentiful, what is needed is confidence. Confidence in ourselves, confidence in each other, confidence in the country, a little cheerfulness, a willingness to help each other, is what we most need. We begin ourselves, in fact we have never let up, in putting our best efforts first. We have bought wisely. We have kept up stocks, varieties, etc.; have gone ahead with improvements. We have kept up to the top notch the store's merchandise and service, and as a reward we feel that business is going ahead.

For the fall months we have prepared, as usual, to meet the demand. No blues here. No lack of faith; no lack of merchandise; no surrender to conditions; nothing but confidence in the people, in ourselves, in our merchandise, and in the times. Won't you meet us half way. Come see, and buy a few of the rare items below mentioned:

- Androscoggin Bleaching, 12 yards to the $1.00

State Mission Rally.

Tuesday at 10:30, the Baptist church began to fill with the representatives of the missionary societies of the Edgefield association to enjoy together a meeting in the interests of state missions.

Mrs. W. E. Lott was in charge of the program and had arranged everything very enthusiastically and the numbers were all well and effectively presented.

The morning session was given to the subject of state missions, the readers being Mrs. George Mims, Mrs. W. B. and W. S. Cogburn and Mrs. Lovick Mims. Miss Ruth Tompkins gave a splendid reading from Miss Ruth Pinson of the Training School.

Mrs. J. R. Tompkins presided at the organ and the morning's special music was given by Mrs. R. G. Shannonhouse.

A very interesting feature of the meeting was the meeting of a number of foreigners and others on the platform called together by Mrs. Curran Feltham who presided over the little demonstration. Those who took part were Mrs. Julia Taylor, Miss Sophie Dobson, Miss Jennie Pattison, Mrs. W. A. Byrd, Mrs. Fannie Tompkins, Mrs. Mamie Tillman, Miss Mamie Cheatman and Mrs. J. L. Mims.

There were representatives from many of the societies present and the dining room of the church was filled. A splendid lunch was served with iced tea. Somebody said that Edgefield women, and of course that included the whole county, were the best about sending baskets in the world, and the reply was that they were the best in the world about everything.

After the recess the Sunbeams in charge of Mrs. Tillman gave a beautiful and impressive exercise, called "State Products," and all the sunbeams took part, but the special products of our state which presented themselves in costume were the Sunday egg, Curran Feltham; the tomato, Elizabeth Lott; King cotton, Jack Feltham; Broom, Eleanor Mims; Pop corn, Gladys Lawton; The hen, Frances Jones, and the fairy who brought them in and introduced them, Effie Allen Lott.

Mrs. Pendleton Jones conducted the devotions for the morning and afternoon sessions, and gave a splendid talk on state missions in the Y. W. A. exercises which followed that of the Sunbeams. This was in charge of Mrs. Kate Dennis, president of the Edgefield Y. W. A.

A very forceful demonstration was given here by the different enterprises conducted by the Baptists. Miss Ruth Lyon represented the state mission board and wore a banner bearing the words "South Carolina Christ." Miss Brook Jones represented the Baptist hospital, Miss Jennie Pattison the lady missionaries, Miss Willie Peak the Baptist Courier, Miss Ouida Pattison the orphanage and Miss Helen Dorn Baptist colleges.

The day was pronounced a decided success.

Mt. Zion Community.

On Tuesday of last week the death angel visited our community and took away Mrs. Josephine Horn, the beloved wife of Mr. Milledge Horn. The death of this good lady was not unexpected, as she had been a great sufferer for many months, but the knowledge that death must come does not prepare a loving heart for the change, and the anguish is no less keen when some one pronounces those irrevocable words, "She is dead!"

It was an enviable legacy could any one have said over her the words of praise that were spoken on the departure of this noble christian woman. As with Dorcas, her neighbors told of her good deeds as she lay dead. In the funeral sermon which was preached at the home on Wednesday by Rev. P. B. Lanham, he spoke of the singular freedom of her life from wrong, and her husband, who knew her heart, said that if ever she did anything wrong, he did not know it.

The interment took place at the family burial plot on the plantation of Mr. J. C. Whitlock. A large crowd was present, and many beautiful floral offerings attested the high regard in which this estimable lady was held. Great sympathy is felt for her aged husband, who in burying her, has buried his all, and is now left utterly alone his home. Another aching heart is that of Mrs. J. C. Whitlock who, having already lost one sister this year, in the death of Mrs. Horn, loses her only remaining sister.

Orphanage day was observed on last Sunday at Mt. Zion church. There were readings and recitations by Homer Walker, Mabel Carpenter, Marie Padgett and W. J. Gaines, Jr. The piece given by Homer Walker was especially well recited. The work day collection at the end of the service, amounted to eight dollars.

Miss Mary Gaines, with her father, Mr. W. J. Gaines, recently attended a meeting of the patrons and trustees of the Floyd school near here. Miss Bell, the rural school supervisor of Aiken county, was present and gave a talk. There were talks also by Mr. Fontaine and Mr. Gaines, after which a school improvement association was organized.

Mr. W. T. Garner has recently bought the Roper place which was a part of the old Steven Mays tract. Mr. J. C. Smith and family have been visiting relatives and friends in the neighborhoods of Gilgal and Little Stevens Creek.

Mrs. G. G. Pardue and Miss Ella Ergle have been visiting at the home of Mr. W. A. Pardue.

Miss Bessie Gaines after a brief visit home from Ridge Crest, has gone to spend awhile in Asheville, N. C.

Mr. E. Pendleton Gaines is attending the high school in Edgefield. He is so fortunate as to be domiciled with Mrs. Lizzie H. Folk.
