

God Give Us Men.

God give us men. The time demands strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and willing hands; Men whom the lust of office does not kill; Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy; Men who possess opinions and a will; Men who have honor, men who will not lie; Men who can stand before a demagogue And damn the treacherous flatteries without winking; Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog In public duty and in private thinking! For while the rabble with their thum-worn creeds, Their large professions and little deeds Mingle in selfish strife; lo! Freedom weeps! Wrong rules the land, and waiting justice sleeps!

Unity in Purpose.

A united people can accomplish great things. The country that is united in ideals and sentiment has nothing to fear in economics, sociology and citizenship. It is that unanimity of purpose that assures the success of a united people.

As a nation we are not making use of our opportunities for co-operation as we should. We have not fully realized the close connection between the manufacturer and the farmer; the transportation companies and the shippers; the professional man and the business man; the merchant and the farmer; the capital and labor. We have not made use of the fact that every citizen engaged in serving society in a legitimate way is a factor for co-operation, and his interest must not be ignored in any system for economy.

The richest, most prosperous and most independent countries in the world are where people produce an abundance of food and clothing and have developed markets so that the surplus is disposed of economically. This cannot be done by antagonism, strife and bitterness engendered by selfishness existing among classes and occupations. It must be done by co-operation and good will to all, and with special emphasis to economy and efficiency. If this requires monopoly it must be a monopoly for the benefit of the people.

Every farmer should be proud that he is a farmer; believe it is the best occupation among men; that in producing the people's food he is rendering society a great service as well as himself and his family. But he should recognize the importance of his fellowmen in other legitimate occupations. Markets must be had; the things that we cannot produce must be bought; professional services must be had; manufacturing, transportation, merchandizing, banking, etc., are necessary; facilities for education, recreation and human efficiency must be in our reach.

To get the best results for ourselves, our state and our nation we should strive each to help the other and thus be helped by co-operation that builds up society and makes the earth a better place to live in.—Farm & Ranch.

Poultry on The Farm.

No other form of intensive agriculture is better suited to help feed our rapidly increasing population than poultry raising. A very small area devoted to poultry raising will produce enough to supply a family. Could the entire farm produce yield as much according to the area as that which is used to raise poultry there would be larger crops and better profits for those who till the soil. A small flock of fowls even under conditions of low prices and little attention given to the fowls may afford considerable revenue.

The fowls on the average farm usually have few restrictions. They must let the crops and the stored grain alone, but with this exception they must have the courtesy of the farm; roost where they choose and eat what they can find.

With better care and attention the farm fowls could produce more wealth and be a better source of profit on the farm. It would only be necessary to get good foundation stock and use care in selection and feeding, and see to it that the birds are properly housed and fed. A dozen hens from a strain of heavy layers might be more profitable than two dozen of the type often found in the farmyard.

This is the season for increasing the flock. There will be a demand for fresh eggs and poultry on the table of the farm manager. It now seems likely that the market will take care of more than has been produced in the past. A few dollars per week from the hens will go a long way toward meeting the expense of necessities.—Farm & Factory.

JOHNSTON LETTER.

a number of years. The celebration will be the latter part of February, so as not to conflict with the day chosen by the New Century Club. The hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. H. W. Crouch, and Mesdames Earl Crouch and C. P. Corn served a most delightful course of salads, sandwiches and chocolate.

One of the most pleasant social affairs of last week was given by Mrs. E. R. Mobley, those present being the members of the Pi Tau club and a few other invited guests. Mrs. Olin Hamilton who was one of the most beloved members before her marriage took her to Virginia, was the guest of honor. Several tables of rook were enjoyed and at the ending of the game the honoree was presented with a set of forget-me-not hat pins. A tempting salad course with coffee and whipped cream was served, the hostess being assisted by Mrs. P. N. Keese and Miss Marion Mobley. So pleasant was the time spent that all very reluctantly made adieux.

Mr. James Quarles died here at his home about 11:30 o'clock last Friday evening after a lingering illness. He was in his 21st year and was a young man of many noble traits of character. He was very patient during all his illness and was a Christian man. At the time of his death the conditions in the home were very pathetic, all of the members of the family being critically ill, and friends and neighbors were very kind and thoughtful to them in their distress. The body was carried to Bethlehem burying ground for interment.

Miss Lillian Smith of Newberry spent last week here with her sister, Mrs. J. L. Walker.

Miss Julia Jumper of Springfield was a guest last week in the home of Mrs. F. L. Parker.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Watson most delightfully entertained the teachers of the high school on Monday evening.

Prof. W. F. Scott stated at the opening exercises of the school on Wednesday morning last that Lee and Washington university had offered scholarships to the young gentleman of the graduating class making the highest average. Mr. Hill Ready is the only young man in the large class of 1916. It was fitting that the announcement should have been on the birthday of Robert E. Lee, one who has meant everything to this noted university.

ALL WRONG.

The Mistake is Made by Many Edgefield Citizens.

Look for for the cause of back-ache.

To be cured you must know the cause.

If it's weak kidneys you must set the kidneys working right.

An Edgefield resident tells you how.

John D Smith, overseer at cotton mill, Edgefield, says: "The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and very scanty. They were highly colored and I had to get up several times during the night to pass them. I also had headaches and dizzy spells. Friends recommended Doan's kidney pills and as I had also seen them advertised, I decided to try them. One box cured me of all symptoms of kidney trouble."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's kidney pills—the same that Mr. Smith had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
