METHODS USED BY DIPS VARY

Pickpockets of the Higher Grade Work in Groups in Places Frequented by Prosperous People.

As a usual thing, pickpockets vary their methods to suit circumstances. Only the low-grade dips work in pairs. These are the men who operate on street cars, elevated stations, platforms, and similar places where they will find crowds of pushed people and have opportunity to escape if detected. One of the pair shoulders a victim roughly while the other does the work and makes a getaway, says the Bohemian. Arrests are frequent, but convictions rare, because the man captured seldom has the loot.

The higher grade dips also work in such places. The difference is that they work in groups and choose times when prosperous passengers will be in the majority. During the fashionable shopping hours and after the theater at night are considered harvest times. Last winter three dips worked a clever method in Chicago. Garbing themselves in evening clothes, they mingled in fashionable crowds in big cafes, theater exits, and railway stations. One of the party was always hopelessly drunk and the others, apparently acting the part of Samaritans, were hard-put trying to keep him on his feet. With all their care, however, he would stumble occasionally and fall into groups of ladies and gentlemen. Invariably the sober companions had apologized and taken the charge away before anyone discovered the loss of valuables.

WHERE RATS ARE PROTECTED

In Copper Mines of Michigan Rodents Are Regarded as Preventors, Not Carriers, of Disease.

There are few places in the world where rats are well thought of, but in the copper mines of Michigan these rodents, so universally despised, and causing so much danger to health and damage to property everywhere else, are regarded differently. In the shafts of the copper mines hundreds of feet below the surface dwells a species of rat that never sees the light of day and is held in high appreciation by the miners. It is because these underground rodents are valuable to sanitation, preventers rather than carriers of disease. They indulge in no depredations for the reason they exist within rockbound walls inclosing nothing possible for animals such as they destroy.

The rats are the scavengers of the mines. They keep the workings clear of refuse. They are protected by the men; are often fed from dinner pails and have become so accustomed to the miners that they frisk about the workers wholly unafraid, secure in the apparent realization that, while elsewhere they are hunted and slain as enemies of mankind, underground they are treated as allies and are immune from harm.

Wives as Wage Earners.

More than one-tenth of the married women of the United States were engaged in gainful occupations in 1910, according to figures recently given out by the bureau of the census, and over 25 per cent of all women sixteen years old or over were wage earners, business women, etc. Since 1910 the per centages undoubtedly have increased rather than diminished, for the tendency of women in this country has been toward greater economic freedom for many years. In 1900 the number of married women in gainful occupations was only 769,000, while in 1910 it was 1,800,000, says Popular Mechanics. The statistics referred to show that the proportion of women—married, single and widowed—who are earning their living is greater than ever before, but it is particularly interesting to find that of all the groups cited, the proportionate increase in the number of married women is the greatest.

Hunter's Moon.

The hunter's moon is waning, but there has been very little service for it during the month, except for lovers, says the Columbus (O.) State Journal. The game question is pretty near solved. It is so different from the old days, when a man could take his shotgun and go out to the woods and bring in a bag of squirrels and birds in a few hours—enough for the family and a neighbor or two. Then he asked no favors of the moon. The game was plenty and the days were long in the good old time. In those days we had pigeon pie and squirrel pie and we didn't want the moon to put itself out of the way on our account. In these days the hunter's moon is a beautiful sentiment, but it makes no pie. How shy she was last week, when coquetting with Jupiter for an evening or two, and then slipped off to the east and refused to return.

The Footwear of Our Daddies.

In these days, when shoes cost $1 or more an inch, measured up from the heel, the recollections of a Callaway county pioneer really are painful. In a letter to the Missouri Telegraph he tells what a simple matter buying shoes once was. Those who wanted shoes lined up with their heels against a wall and the head of the household, armed with a bunch of twigs, took the measurement of each. The twigs were taken to a merchant, who fitted the shoe by putting the broken stick inside it. One farmer objected to paying $14.87 for ten pairs of shoes, so he bought leather and hired a shoemaker to make them at a grand total of $9.15.—Kansas City Times.

Relating to School Funds.

The County Board of Education has not been able to make apportionment of school funds from the fact that State Tax Commission has not made ruling on assessed valuation of corporations. The apportionment will be made as early as we hear from the commission. There is nothing to materially change apportionment from last year.

HANDS, ARMS, LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady. Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Prine, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child...I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time..."

I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. about my taking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble,' so he got me 5 bottles...After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved...before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done them. It should help you, too. Try it. E 74
