Santa Claus to Visit Trenches, Camps and Hospitals.

French women are busy cutting, basting and hemming several thousand Santa Claus costumes and making whiskers and wigs to match, for every American camp from the front line to the seaports is going to have a Christmas pageant the last week in December at which old Santa "will appear in person." Minstrel costumes are being made also, for the boys dearly love amateur theatricals with the opportunity they afford for good natured criticism of the performers. In six weeks one Y. M. C. A. bureau is said to have loaned out 1,684 costumes, 110 wigs, 257 musical instruments, 702 plays, 191 orchestras, 1,279 songs, and 1,311 sets of makeup and grease paints. So parents, relatives and friends need not worry because they may not follow the dictates of their hearts in the matter of gifts, for the boys will be well taken care of and the Christmas celebration will be a merry one. The postmaster at Tours, in trying to work out the distribution problem, estimated that if every man in the Expeditionary Forces were permitted to receive only one 5-pound package it would require 700 freight cars a day for ten days to transport the gifts from the base ports to those to whom they are directed. The weight limit has been set at three pounds.

The Mother Who Smiles.

I am so glad you smiled at me
When we said our last goodbye;
It warmed and cheered my aching heart
To see you more brave than I.

It took me back a score of years
To where I, a timid child,
Turned, halting, on my way to school
And you waved me on and smiled.

I've brought that smile across the sea
And your look of courage rare;
They'll give me strength to meet the foe
And the heart to do and dare.

I know I'm in your constant thought,
That you often kneel in prayer,
Entreating God to spare the world
And your first-born "over there."

God bless the mothers, every one
And comfort their hearts the while;
But pour a double blessing on
These rare, brave mothers who smile.

How to Operate Gasoline Motors Economically.

In a speech delivered recently before a meeting of farmers, W. Champin Robinson, Director of Oil Conservation of the United States Fuel Administration, told a story about a farmer who gave all his horses to Uncle Sam for war work and installed a gasoline equipment. "I find," said the farmer, "that to get the best results I've got to be as kind to my motors as I was to my horses. Gasoline horses have to be fed, groomed and bedded or else they'll go lame. A man who keeps a lame motor on his place is just as bad as the man who works a lame horse."

With the approach of cold weather the wise farmer will turn his attention to his machinery, and there is no item of his equipment that demands as much attention as his gasoline motors. A new motor, which has been running all summer, requires particular attention because the "shaking down" which comes with the first year's service is generally the most telling in the life of the motor. Unless it is kept in proper adjustment after the first year's use it will lose from one half to one third of its power.

Here are some points to observe in the overhauling program:

1. Clean carbon from cylinders and plugs. Accumulated carbon is a fuel and power waster, besides the extra wear and tear on the motor.
2. Watch piston rings. See that they fit snugly. Badly fitting piston rings are responsible for the loss of power and the waste of gasoline and oil.
3. Go over wiring system with special attention to timer and ignition.
4. Adjust the carburetor. During cold weather a rich mixture is needed for starting but after the motor "warms up" it will give more power if the mixture is made leaner. Watch the exhaust and you will be able to determine whether you are wasting fuel or not. A smoking exhaust indicates that you are wasting gasoline or oil or both. A sharp, snappy explosion from the exhaust without smoke indicates that you are getting good service in the engine.
5. Don't fill oil cups while motor is running because it frequently causes spilling. Every drop of oil saved counts.
6. When cleaning crank case, don't throw away the oil. Strain it carefully and put it back in the crank case. Oil cans and containers should be kept tightly covered to prevent dirt getting in and in the case of gasoline to prevent evaporation. An open container attracts dirt, insects and trash which results in great waste when using the last few gallons. — Progressive Farmer.

LIFE WAS JUST MANY DAYS OF SUFFERING.

FOR FOURTEEN MONTHS SHE THOUGHT EACH DAY WOULD BE LAST PASSES GOOD ALONG.

TELLS OF WONDERFUL RESTORATION TANLAC BROUGHT ABOUT—GAINED FIFTEEN POUNDS.

"I've always believed in 'passing a good thing along' and that's just why I want to tell everybody what Tanlac has done for me," said Mrs. J. M. Mayes, wife of a well-known coal and wood dealer, residing at 1719, Twelfth St., Augusta, Ga., some time ago.

"For fourteen long miserable months I suffered with disordered kidneys, severe headaches and other serious complications until my life was just one day of torture after another," she continued. "My appetite failed me entirely and I seemed to poison my system. Extreme nervousness made it almost impossible for me to sleep, and I was dragged down by one trouble after another until I thought every day would be my last and was that an operation was the only hope for my life. I refused to allow operation, however, and after reading what Tanlac did for a friend of mine, I tried it as a last resort.

"I honestly believe that Tanlac is the best medicine in the world. Right after the first few doses I began to improve and pick up weight until I am now fifteen pounds heavier than when I started taking Tanlac. I have not had a headache since I began using it and my kidneys have stopped troubling me entirely. I am relieved of all that dreadful suffering and am in better condition than I have been for fourteen months past."
